BRITISH VOTE TODAY IN GENERAL ELECTION; TORY VICTORY SEEN

All Three Parties Concede Conservative Gains, With the Possibility of a Small Majority.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The election campaign closed tonight with the usual large claims put forward by all parties, but the consensus of opinion favors the Conservatives having a considerable plurality, though their most responsible spokesmen will not venture the prediction that they will have an independent majority large enough to carry on a Ministry without help from the Liberals.

No official predictions in numbers are being given out by any party, but the figure generally put forward by optimists among the Conservatives is that in the voting tomorrow out of a House of Commons of 615 they will carry 330 to 340 seats in place of the 259 they held in the last House and 346 two years ago. They concede to Labor 170 to 180 seats, and that would allow the Liberals 90 to 110, with five seats for independents.

The Conservatives expect to gain in London and the counties immediately surrounding it, and in the south of England, but they have not much hope of the western shires. Liverpool and Birmingham they assume to be their own, and likely to give back seats lost at the last election, and they seem very certain about Lancashire, now that the tariff issue is put in the background, but they admit they have not made any impression on the solid Labor vote in the mining districts.

Labor Doesn't Expect Majority.

The most optimistic view on the part of Labor put its strength in the next House at 238, with the Conservatives 294 and the Liberals 86. That would result in placing Stanley Baldwin in the awkward position of leading the largest party but having no majority. Labor, being still in office, thoroughly understands the advantage that such a situation would give it and seems not to have given up hope that turning the Government out may yet prove a difficult task. The party calculates on gaining seats in Scotland, Northern England and the Midlands, and some in Western England, particularly Bristol. It regards the Prime Minister as quite safe at Aberavon, in Wales, although this opinion is not shared by the other parties. These hold that he will have difficulty retaining his seat, largely through opposition of the ex-service men. They have been canvassing actively against him, and have also made their power felt by J. R. Clynes, leader of the House of Commons and Lord Privy Seal. The latter's defeat is freely prophesied by his opponents, who also say that Arthur Henderson, Home Secretary, may suffer one more defeat.

The Conservatives are rather nervous about Sir Lamar Worthington-Evans, an ex-Minister, while Labor is hoping to score by turning out Dr. Thomas Macnamara in Camberwell, one of Mr. Lloyd George's closest friends and ex-colleagues.

Mr. Asquith is generally admitted to have a good chance in his own seat at Paisley, as he has only a Labor opponent, the Conservative having withdrawn.

Winston Churchill's success in Epping Forest is counted upon by both Conservatives and Liberals.

The Liberal Party leaders refuse to believe they can lose more than twenty or twenty-five seats, and are looking for the Conservatives to number 315, Labor 155 and Liberals 135. That would give the Liberals a balance of power in the new Parliament and would make the lines of division within their own ranks very interesting. They are confident that many who swung away from them to Labor at the last election are coming back, and they are banking much on promises of giving security of tenancy to farmers and ownership in improvements affected in the land held by tenants to have a great effect in the country districts.

MacDonald Suspicious on Red Plot.

Premier MacDonald, winding up his campaign today, made several references in his speeches to the Zinovieff letter. While still retaining a suspicion that the whole affair was a plot engineered by his political opponents, he confessed that he had not come to a definite conclusion as to whether the document was a forgery or not. Among other things he said:

"Whatever is in the newspapers, they cannot get away from this fact, that the so-called 'Red plot' was handled by the Government in an efficient, businesslike and definite way; that we have nothing to be ashamed of, nothing to apologize for, but that, on the contrary, we have the greatest assurance that if any other Government had been in office they would have made a muddle of the situation created by the appearance of that letter in this country."

Advising his supporters to vote early, Mr. MacDonald said:

"The Red plot, whether it is authentic or whether it is not, is safely in the hands of the Government. Tomorrow

Seized German Radio Patents Can Be Leased to Americans

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Attorney General Stone ruled today that the Navy Department could lease to American manufacturers certain German patents for the manufacture of radio parts held by the department since the war.

Responding to a request from Secretary Wilbur for an opinion on the question, Mr. Stone held that there appeared to be no inhibition against the issue of licenses to manufacture under the patents, such licenses not to be exclusive, but that the patents could not be sold.

While the text of the Attorney General's opinion was not made public, it was believed the ruling would constitute a precedent that would open the way for use by American industry of several hundred patents held under seizure by various Government agencies since the war. Use of the patents by license or otherwise heretofore has been denied. Owing to the varying nature of the patents, however, it has not yet been determined just how far-reaching the ruling will be.

FRANCE RECOGNIZES SOVIET GOVERNMENT

TO CONFER WITH RUSSIANS

Negotiations on New Relations Expected to Begin Soon—Emigres in Paris Protest.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—The French Government sent today its formal notification of recognition to the Soviet Government as the de jure Government of Russia. Premier Herriot signed the short message to Tchitcherin this morning, on his return from Lyons, after a short consultation with Senator de Monzie and other members of the commission which has been studying during past weeks the form recognition should take.

At noon the announcement of the recognition of Russia was broadcast by the Eiffel Tower radio station, a step which is believed to have been dictated by the desire indirectly to help Ramsay MacDonald and the Labor Party in England at tomorrow's elections. In the midst of the discussion of the Zinovieff letter in England, it is hoped that the recognition of Russia by France may have some effect favorable to the Labor Party. The recognition at this time, however, may be simply a coincidence.

In official quarters here the Zinovieff note is believed to be authentic. But that has not dissuaded the French Premier from trying to repeat MacDonald's experiment of granting recognition to the Soviet first and trying to bargain afterward. Practically all Governments in Europe are now in direct relation with Moscow and one of the many comments heard here is that so far none of them seems to have got anything out of it.

Before taking the risk of sending out his wireless message Herriot through de Monzie and Rakovsky made sure that Tchitcherin would reply with a cordial, if not grateful, acknowledgment.

It is expected that as early as next week a conference will be begun on the economic and financial questions which remain in suspense, for the French have reserved all matters arising from past treaties and agreements for discussion subsequent to recognition and have qualified their intention to resume commercial relations.

Jean Herbette, former editor of the Temps and brother of Maurice Herbette, French Ambassador at Brussels, will, it is stated, be sent as Ambassador to Russia. M. Kameneff will, it is expected, represent his country here as envoy and as chief of the delegation for the discussion of a modus vivendi. In that connection it may be recalled that the Russian debt to France, apart from the investments of the French people in Russian bonds and industrial securities, amounts to more than 5,860,000,000 francs.

Today a meeting of emigrés was held here and a note of protest drafted, which will be handed to M. Herriot and in which warning is given that should the Bolshevist Government at any time fail, none of the agreements between France and the Soviet will be recognized by its successor.

Soviet to Send Delegates to Paris.

PARIS, Oct. 28 (Associated Press).—Russia accepts with satisfaction the official recognition of France accorded her by the Herriot Government today. The Russian reply to the French notification was received at a late hour tonight. The Soviet Government agrees to send delegates to Paris to effect a friendly settlement of the problems at issue between the two countries.

The hope is expressed that all questions mentioned in Premier Herriot's telegram will be settled in full accord and that a general accord founded on solid and friendly relations will be concluded.

The Soviet note emphasizes the advantages of the inauguration of reciprocal commercial reports, with non-intervention as a condition of mutual relations. Paris is accepted as the seat of the negotiations.

Premier Herriot's telegram announcing France's recognition of the Soviet expressed the belief that the resumption of diplomatic relations between France and Russia would be the preface to a general agreement. In this respect the telegram expressly reserved the rights French citizens hold by reason of obligations contracted by Russia under previous régimes. It added that France would welcome to Paris delegates empowered to negotiate with the French. In the meantime matters would remain as they now are. In any case non-intervention in internal affairs would be the rule in the relations between the two countries.

Russia in her reply says that she considers non-intervention in internal affairs an indispensable condition in the relations of all States in general and France in particular.

GOV. SMITH SAYS MACHOLD IS A LIAR; DERIDES ROOSEVELT

ADDRESSES TWO MEETINGS

Harlem Negroes Give Him an Ovation for Attack on the Ku Klux Klan.

CITES OPPONENT'S RECORD

Declares Roosevelt Was One of Two Assemblymen to Vote Against First Rent Bill.

Addressing two crowded meetings, Governor Alfred E. Smith brought his Gubernatorial campaign to the city last night. Completing his swing through the State with a speech at Mount Vernon in Westchester County Monday night, the Governor will give his attention for the remainder of the campaign to New York City, making speeches every night up to election eve. In a statement given out during the day he referred to Speaker Edmund H. Machold of the Assembly as "an ordinary, everyday liar."

Last night the Governor made two speeches. He motored from the Biltmore Hotel to Queens Borough, where at 8 o'clock he spoke at Public School 90 in Richmond Hill. Leaving there he made a quick run to Harlem. He spoke to several hundred negroes in Liberty Hall, who gave him a tremendous ovation.

At this meeting the Governor took up the Ku Klux Klan and said:

"My Republican opponent spoke in this section of the city last night and he made mention of the Ku Klux Klan. My attitude to this un-American and undemocratic organization is known not only in our own State but throughout the Union.

"Recently, while I was speaking from a public platform in the city of Ithaca, in the very shadow of Cornell University itself, the Ku Klux Klan in a spirit of bigotry and intolerance set up a fiery cross not only in defiance of my candidacy but in defiance of the Governor of the State.

"I will never make an appeal to prejudice. I don't have to do it. I'll be elected on the record. But as an evidence of the Republican attempts to carry water on both shoulders, and in answer to the Republican charge of insincerity, I leave it with you people here tonight to determine for yourselves who the Ku Klux Klan will support in this election."

Gets Five-Minute Ovation.

The demonstration following the speech lasted five minutes and the candidate had difficulty in getting to his automobile.

In his Richmond speech the Governor attacked Colonel Roosevelt's legislative record on the housing bills.

In a statement he issued earlier in the day the Governor passed the lie to Speaker Machold. Commenting on the statement of Mr. Machold in the Bronx on Monday night that Governor Smith had insisted that the Governor have the power of appointing the Commissioner of Education, a statement which the Governor has frequently denied, declaring it was all due to a stenographer's error, Governor Smith said:

"I have made up my mind that it is about time that I let Mr. Machold know what I actually think of him. The statements that he made in Bronxville about the Educational bill in Albany forces me to say something that I hate to say, but I find no better way of expressing it. He is just an ordinary, everyday liar, and I read from the speech of Colonel Roosevelt in Watertown, who says that he got his knowledge of State affairs from Machold."

In the same statement the Governor had this to say about Elihu Root:

"I read in the paper this morning that Senator Root sat on the platform with Colonel Roosevelt last night at the Free Christmas Dinner Lists To Be Checked for 'Repeaters'

Steps were taken in the Municipal Building yesterday to prevent "repeaters" from getting Christmas dinners from three or four different charitable organizations. Commissioner Bird S. Coler of the Department of Public Welfare held a conference with the heads of many charitable societies, including newspaper Christmas dinner funds, to systematize this charity and eliminate superfluous preparation.

Commissioner Coler said that long before Christmas some families make their applications with three or four different agencies and that the duplications of effort have made it necessary to sell the extra dinners to the highest bidders or else waste the food. The various agencies agree to get together, check the names of all applicants and establish a "clearing house."

ATTERBURY TO HEAD PENNSYLVANIA ROAD

Will Succeed President Rea Next September as Latter Reaches Age of 70.

NEW POSITION IS CREATED

General Promoted to "Vice President" to Fit Him for Chief Office—Other Changes.

General W. W. Atterbury, Vice President of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, will become President of the road when President Samuel Rea retires next year. Important promotions in anticipation of Mr. Rea's retirement as head of the nation's largest railroad system were announced yesterday. General Atterbury, who won his military title for service with the American Expeditionary Forces in France, will be called upon to tackle some of the hardest problems faced by railroad men since the close of the nineteenth century.

Among these problems is the question of railroad consolidations, which already has been closely studied by executives of railroads, their lawyers and their bankers in the efforts of the trunk lines to strengthen their hold on strategic traffic arteries and cities. In this battle of railroad giants, General Atterbury will encounter P. E. Crowley, President of the New York Central; Daniel Willard, head of the Baltimore & Ohio, a seasoned railroad campaigner, and the combination of railroad executives and interests figuring in the recent Van Sweringen mergers, which have brought together the Nickel Plate, the Erie, the Chesapeake & Ohio and other lines.

Mr. Rea will become 70 years of age on Sept. 21 and, under the company's retirement system, will cease his labors. In preparation for this change, General Atterbury was moved up one peg yesterday from his position of Vice President in Charge of Operation to that of Vice President. In this new position he will be the right-hand man of Mr. Rea and, in Mr. Rea's absence, act as President. Thus he will receive nearly a year's schooling for the task before he actually takes over the reins of leadership. Like Mr. Crowley of the New York Central, General Atterbury has won prominence chiefly as an operating man. He has the reputation among shippers of knowing their business requirements almost as well as he knows the needs of a railroad.

Other changes announced are the appointment of Elisha Lee, now regional Vice President at Pittsburg, as the new Vice President in Charge of Operation; that of E. T. Whiter, now regional Vice President at Chicago, to succeed Mr. Lee, and that of T. B. Hamilton, General Manager of the Northwestern region at Chicago, to succeed Mr. Whiter. All of these changes will become effective on Nov. 15.

A thumbnail sketch of General Atterbury's career was furnished by the Pennsylvania. He was born at New Albany, Ind., in 1866; graduated from Yale in 1886, and entered the same year the Pennsylvania's service as an apprentice in the Altoona shops. Promotion came rapidly. As in the case of Mr. Crowley, he worked his way step by step

REPUBLICANS SPENT $3,451,323 TO OCT. 20; DEFICIT IS $621,332

Total Reported to Borah Committee Already Exceeds Amount Forecast by Butler.

$4,000,000 FUND IS LIKELY

More Than Two-thirds of the Amount Raised Has Been Spent in the West.

MELLON'S NEPHEW WITNESS

He Gathered $270,000 in Pittsburgh —C. H. K. Curtis Is Also a Witness.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The Republican National Committee spent $3,451,323.28 on its campaign up to Oct. 20, although Chairman Butler announced some time ago that $3,000,000 would be enough. This total is $621,332.95 in excess of the receipts of $2,829,990.33, according to reports made today to the Borah Investigating Committee. La Follette supporters no assert that at the present rate of disbursements the Republican expenditures will exceed $4,000,000 before the election.

While Chairman Borah, Senator Shipstead and Samuel Untermyer, counsel for La Follette, were on their way to Chicago to question Mr. Butler and William V. Hodges, Republican Treasurer, on the mysterious fund clue, the others in the committee, under the direction of Senator Caraway as Chairman, heard testimony today on Senator La Follette's charge that the Republicans were raising $600,000 in Pennsylvania for expenditure in other States. W. L. Mellon, nephew of the Secretary of the Treasury, testified that he had collected $270,000 in the Pittsburgh district, which added to the $365,000 raised by Joseph R. Grundy in the rest of the State makes a total of $635,000 contributed to date.

This does not include about $10,000 which Cyrus H. K. Curtis testified was expended by the Curtis Publishing Company in advertising political articles attacking Senator La Follette. According to Mr. Curtis's testimony $31,000 of this was for stories in The Country Gentleman, and $40,000 for an article in The Saturday Evening Post."

W. E. Harkness, Assistant Vice President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, told the committee of the amounts spent for broadcasting speeches by the three major Presidential candidates. This totaled about $25,000, of which $13,450 was for Coolidge, $6,045 for Davis and $5,485 for La Follette speeches. There was a charge of $10,800 for loud-speaking equipment on the Davis train.

Wants Labor Leaders Called.

Weymouth Kirkland, counsel for the Republican National Committee, asked today that Frank Morrison, Vice President of the American Federation of Labor; William M. Johnston, President of the International Machinists' Association; Edward Keating, former member of Congress and now editor of Labor, and Alexander Kohn of New York, editor of Forward, be called to testify concerning the "enormous" sums of money which Mr. Kirkland said yesterday had been spent on the La Follette campaign outside of the contributions reported by Chairman Nelson.

Complaint was made by Mr. Walsh that all the witnesses subpoenaed had not responded and Senator Caraway directed the sergeant-at-arms to get them here.

"We have enough witnesses now all drawn from hostile sources to prove all that Senator La Follette has claimed," asserted Mr. Walsh. Senator Caraway promised Mr. Kirkland that the time would be divided, thus replying to Mr. Walsh's demand of yesterday that all his testimony come first.

The supplemental report received by the committee today from Mr. Hodges, Republican Treasurer, covering receipts from Oct. 16 to 20, shows that in that five days' period contributions had been listed aggregating $628,589.53. Of this amount $504,750.95 was reported by the New York headquarters and $123,838.58 by the Chicago headquarters.

In previous reports, covering the time between the start of the campaign in June and including Oct. 15, inclusive, Mr. Hodges accounted for contributions totaling $2,201,400.80. Mr. Hodges's figures indicate that in the conduct of the campaign so far his committee regards the West as the real battleground. Of the total disbursements of $3,451,323.28 authorized up to Oct. 20, the Chicago headquarters has spent $2,611,429.26 and the New York headquarters $839,884.02.

STONE WILL TEST TAX PUBLICITY IN COURT, BASING SUIT ON PUBLICATION OF LISTS; INFORMAL OPINION UPHOLDS BLAIR'S VIEW

Text of Statement by Attorney General Stone Announcing Test Case on Income Tax Publicity

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Attorney General Stone's formal statement today on the Government's position on income tax publicity was as follows:

Section 257, Subdivision (a) of the Revenue Act of 1924, provides, among other things, that income-tax returns "shall constitute public records; but they shall be open to inspection only upon order of the President and under rules and regulations prescribed by the Secretary and approved by the President."

Subdivision (b) of the same section makes it the duty of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, "as soon as practicable in each year," to cause to be prepared and "made available to public inspection in such manner as he may determine, in the office of the Collector in each internal revenue district, and in such other places as he may determine, lists containing the name and the post-office address of each person making an income-tax return in such district, together with the amount of the income tax paid by such person."

Section 1018 of the same act re-enacts Section 3167 of the Revised Statutes as amended, which provides, among other things: "It shall be unlawful for any person to print or publish in any manner whatever not provided by law any income return, or any part thereof or source of income, profits, losses or expenditures appearing in any income return; and any offense against the foregoing provision shall be a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, at the discretion of the Court."

The effect of these provisions is to allow general inspection of income-tax returns only under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury with the approval of the President. Subdivision (b) above referred to, however, makes it the duty of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to make available to inspection in such manner as he shall determine in the office of the Collector, and such other places as he may determine, lists containing only the post-office address of the person making a return and "the amount of income tax paid by such person."

We are informed that the Commissioner of Internal Revenue has authorized the inspection of such lists only in the office of the Collector in each internal revenue district. He has authorized no publication of such lists in newspapers or otherwise. Publication of this information in newspapers is nowhere specifically provided for by the laws and appears not to have been authorized under the provision of Section 257 (b).

Section 3167 of the Revised Statutes, re-enacted in the Aevenue Act of 1924, makes it a criminal offense to print or publish in any manner whatever not provided by law "any part" of an income-tax return. Just what purpose Congress had in mind in re-enacting this provision after it had made it the duty of the Commissioner to make available for public inspection the amount of income tax paid by each taxpayer can only be surmised. The provision, however, is expressly made a part of the present Tax law, and it appears clearly to be the duty of the Department of Justice to have an appropriate case presented in the courts so that the full force and effect of this provision may be judicially determined. This will be done at an early, convenient date.

TAX MUDDLE TO COURTS

Stone Announces That 'Appropriate Case' Will Be Prosecuted.

SEES CONFLICT OF LAWS

Purpose of Congress in Penalty Clause 'Can Only Be Surmised,' Attorney General Says.

QUESTIONS RIGHT TO PRINT

Not Covered in Instructions Sent Out by Commissioner to Collectors, He Argues.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28. — Attorney General Stone made a formal statement today concerning the right of newspapers to print amounts of income tax payments contained in lists required by law to be opened to public inspection in the offices of Internal Revenue Collectors, in accordance with the Revenue act of June 2, 1924. The burden of the statement was that as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, in giving notice to the country that the lists were open to the inspection of the public, failed to authorize newspapers to publish the lists, the newspapers publishing these appeared to have committed a criminal offense.

In order to find out what Congress meant in enacting provisions of law which seem to be in conflict, the Department of Justice, the Attorney General announced, will "have an appropriate case presented in the courts" to test in a judicial way "the full force and effect" of the provision of the Revenue act relative to publicity for income tax payments.

"This will be done at an early date," the Attorney General said, in concluding his opinion.

Interpreted, the opinion means that the Government has been unable to make up its mind as to what the publicity provision of the Revenue act contemplates, and in order to find out intends to charge a criminal offense against one of the many newspapers which printed the lists of tax payments opened to public inspection by Internal Revenue Collectors. The Attorney General indicated orally that some individual or individuals connected with a newspaper might be made the defendant in the test case.

What newspaper is to be made the medium of the Government's prosecution was not disclosed by Attorney General Stone. The Government may be confronted by an embarrassing situation, with the possibility of making the matter a political issue. The first publication of the figures of tax payments is said to have been made by a Republican newspaper on the afternoon of Thursday, Oct. 23.

Supports Treasury Officials.

The Attorney General's declaration of intention to bring a criminal prosecution to test the law came at the end of his brief statement, which to all intents and purposes, not being a formal opinion, supported the position taken by Treasury officials on the meaning of the Revenue act of 1924 respecting income tax publicity. His declaration did not take the elaborate form of an opinion because, as he himself pointed out orally, there were questions of law involved which he thought required consideration of a court, and also because an opinion would have a binding effect one way or another, depending upon its conclusions.

The statement of the Attorney General does not alter the situation as it now stands. He said, while discussing the matter informally with newspaper men, that if newspapers continue to print names they do so at their own risk.

Attorney General Stone announced the determination to bring a test case after reading a brief prepared for him by officials of the Department of Justice which, it is understood, showed him a difference of opinion among Government attorneys as to the construction to be placed upon the law. The publicity given income tax returns was discussed this morning at the regular Tuesday Cabinet meeting at the White House. Afterward it was said that the President had not given consideration to the problem, but would expect the law to be enforced if it had been violated. It was indicated also that the President would expect to see the law carried out if any officials were found blamable or derelict in duty.

Mr. Stone was visited by the largest delegation of newspaper men this afternoon since he assumed the position of Attorney General. His statement, already prepared, was distributed first and he permitted questions to be asked afterward.

In reply to one of these, Mr. Stone stated that no formal decision yet had been reached as to how the department will proceed to find a test case. At the same time he indicated that it was not intended that blanket proceedings should be started throughout the country against all the newspapers that printed the income tax lists.

"Of course," Mr. Stone said, "we shall try to select a case with all the questions involved."

To one line of questions he said that "it may be a newspaper or some one else," but he would go no further in indicating just what he contemplates

U. S. STEEL CONTINUES EXTRA 50C. DIVIDEND

Declares Additional Payment on Common as Well as Regular Distribution.

EARNINGS SHOW A DECREASE

But Gary Foresees Election of a Wise Administration in Washington and Prosperity.

The United States Steel Corporation directors yesterday declared the usual preferred and common dividends, including the extra dividend of 50 cents on the common, for the quarter ended Sept. 30, although the net earnings showed a decrease from the preceding quarter of $10,662,624, leaving a deficit after dividends of $122,102. Net for the quarter was $30,718,415. This deficit compares with a surplus in the quarter ended June 30 of $8,575,079 and with a surplus of $5,078,479 in the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1923. The extra dividend on the common was declared in both these periods also, but in the 1923 quarter it amounted to 25 cents instead of 50 cents a share.

The announcement of the earnings and dividends was made at a meeting of the directors at 71 Broadway after the close of the stock market. Because the Presidential election is only a week away, and by reason of the fact that the iron and steel business has shown distinct improvement since Sept. 30, the financial district had not looked for any omission of the extra dividend, although there had been talk of a deficit if the extra was declared.

The decreased business for the quarter was attributed by Judge Elbert H. Gary in a talk with newspaper men after the board meeting to lower prices and to the effects of the abolishment of the Pittsburgh base price. In this connection, however, the United States Steel Corporation has suffered far less than other steel companies. Judge Gary, in his address to the directors, dwelt on business conditions, about which he was optimistic, and on the importance of next Tuesday's election results to future business conditions. Judge Gary said:

Reviews Trade Conditions.

"I undertook to say last Friday at the meeting of the Iron and Steel Institute what I believe were or are the qualifications of a President of the United States. If any candidate shall be decided by a majority of voters of this country to measure up to these qualifications and they will vote accordingly, I think we should expect material increases in the volume of business and steady growth toward prosperity, which would be satisfactory to every one.

"Just at the present time, less than a week before election, there is in the minds of business men generally a feeling of anxiety concerning the possible election results. As a result, the purchases which are being made in the iron and steel industry are made only by those who are pretty certain in regard to the results, or by those who are buying to supply their actual everyday necessities.

BIGGEST INCOME TAX IS PAID BY U. S. STEEL

Corporation's $15,930,901 Tops That of Ford Company by More Than a Million.

RECORDS ARE THROWN OPEN

Collector Bowers of the Second District, the Financial Section, Aids Information Seekers.

The income tax paid by the United States Steel Corporation for 1923 was made available to the public yesterday in keeping with the income tax publicity law. It was $15,930,901, the greatest single tax to be paid by any one industrial corporation, and topping by $1,481,228 the 1923 tax payment of the Ford Motor Company, which was $14,449,673.

Comparison of the two returns was said yesterday to throw a particularly interesting light on the comparative earnings of the billion-dollar Steel Corporation and of Henry Ford's automobile company, which started with a capitalization of $100,000, of which its backers were able to furnish only $28,000 in actual cash. Earnings of the Ford Company had always been hidden from the public, and even the keenest students of finance in the Wall Street district had been unable to even approximate the earnings of the automobile concern. The latter, owned by only two persons and being in effect a "closed corporation," and therefore not required to make public its earnings, had for years been one of the mysteries of the financial district.

Even with the aid of comparison afforded by income-tax payments the actual net earnings of the Ford Motor Company can only be approximated, but apparently they were close to those of the Steel Corporation.

The Contracts Brought Forth.

Available figures, which in the case of the motor company are scanty, show the following contrasts between the size, earnings and capitalization of the two largest industrial concerns of America.

The Steel Corporation showed in its 1923 report outstanding capital stock of $368,553,600 against only $17,264,500 in the case of the Ford Motor Company. The Steel Corporation had outstanding many millions in bonds; the motor company had no bonds against it. Total assets of the Steel Corporation amounted to $2,420,882,704; for the motor company they totaled $368,101,639. Working capital of the Steel Corporation—representing the difference between total current assets and total current liabilities—was $451,192,447; for the Ford Motor Company, $257,295,916. Plants of the Steel Corporation showed a long list of properties of which there were 147 steel works, 128 blast furnaces, 321 open hearth and electric furnaces and 157 sheet jobbing and plate mills, not to mention railroad properties and millions of dollars' worth of other properties; the Ford Motor Company's properties comprise only thirty-four plants with the principal one in Michigan, and the rest scattered all over the world.

The United States Steel Corporation reported gross earnings in 1923 of

Klansmen in Georgia Move to 'Cut' Davis; Allege Negro Equality Talk, Which He Denies

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 28.—The Ku Klux Klan in Georgia is sending out word to its members throughout the State not to vote for Davis and Bryan, according to a story which The Atlanta Constitution will publish tomorrow morning.

"It has been rumored for some time," the Constitution will say, "that 'word' had been sent to Klan leaders of various counties to 'cut' the Democratic Presidential nominees, and that there is some basis for the report appears to be substantiated by receipt this week of clippings from last Saturday's Searchlight, official organ of the Ku Klux Klan, being sent from all parts of the State, indicating that the paper has been broadcast on the eve of the election with a view of injuring the Democratic nominee.

"This issue of the paper contains conspicuously on the front page a heavy headlined article charging that in a recent address at Indianapolis, John W. Davis, in appealing to the negro vote of that State, declared for 'complete equality regardless of race or creed.'

"The Searchlight makes prominent display of the action of the J. E. Donalson Klan of Bainbridge, in which in denouncing the above alleged utterance it declares:

"'The white Democracy of the South have read with some astonishment the speech of John W. Davis, the party's nominee for President, made before the Negro Voters' League of Indianapolis last Monday when he appealed for complete' equality, regardless of race or creed.

"'Mr. Davis may believe in placing the negros on an absolute equality with the white race, but he will find a few people who hold different viws, especially in the South. When he puts in the word "complete," we tak it to mean just that, and that he would advocate a policy to the whites wining, dining and intermarrying with all races regardless of color.

"'The supremacy of the white race will be maintained, notwithstanding the whims and appeals of cheap politicians to the contrary.'

"This copy of The Searchlight is being sent all over the State this week.

"Democratic officials do not believe it will have the slightest effect, as they are confident the people of the State will not be misled by utterances falsely attributed to Mr. Davis.

"Mr. Davis, in the address referred to, indicated that he, in common with all the declarations of the Democratic Party, favored legal equality and equal justice, and no mention, of course was made in any way of social equality."

On the ground that the language of his Indianapolis address contained nothing that would in any sense bear out the charge made by The Searchlight, John W. Davis emphatically declined last night to take notice of or reply to the allegations made by that publication.

doing. "We will not pick on the correspondents," he said with a laugh in reply to one inquiry.

What about printing names before the test case is decided?" the Attorney General was asked. He replied: "They will do it at their peril." Then he added that his statement, not being an "opinion," did not make it impossible to secure the names.

"This was not an opinion," Mr. Stone explained. "It was thought advisable not to give an opinion, as it controls everybody."

Revenue Commissioner's Position.

The Attorney General said there was no question raised about the Commissioner of Internal Revenue violating the law.

"If he had authorized publication," Mr. Stone added, "that might excuse the newspapers." The Attorney General pointed out, too, that the Commissioner might have determined that the matter could be published in the newspapers, but had not done so.

"What would be the right of an individual whose name was printed?" Mr. Stone was asked.

"I would not care to pass on that question," he answered.

The Attorney General admitted that constitutional questions of considerable moment were involved in the matter. One of these related to the freedom of the press and whether the law itself, or as it might be construed, constituted an unconstitutional abridgment of this freedom. Mr. Stone said this was one of the matters making it advisable that the courts pass upon the question.

When he was pressed another time as to how the test case would be developed the Attorney General said it might be brought against a newspaper, newspapers, individuals, or both. Determination of the course of procedure will depend upon an investigation of what has transpired since the Commissioner of Internal Revenue threw the lists open to public inspection.

The Attorney General was asked if consideration had been given to the question as to whether the taxes listed after the names of individuals are in fact "the tax paid" as stipulated in Section 257 (b) instructing the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. He declared that it was one of the fine points of law that has been considered, but on which no determination has been reached.

Whether the sums named in the lists are in fact the tax paid on 1923 incomes to date, there being yet one quarterly payment due, or the amount assessed was a subject, he said, upon which he wished to await further investigation.

GOV. SMITH WILL GET MARGARET VALE'S VOTE

Wilson's Niece to Aid Him Though She Is for the Third Party Nationally.

Margaret Vale, niece of President Wilson, announced yesterday that she intended to vote for Governor Smith, although she is for Senator La Follette for President. Miss Vale has been presiding throughout the campaign at the regular weekly meetings of the All-Party Progressive League, held at the Café Boulevard. After yesterday's luncheon, which was the final one of the campaign, she made public a letter to Raymond V. Ingersoll, Chairman of the Citizens Committee for Governor Smith.

Her letter follows in part:

"Though I have been a lifelong Southern Democrat, nothing could induce me to vote for the Democratic Presidential candidate, John W. Davis. In my opinion, his nomination was your party's base surrender to expediency, for Mr. Davis represents the organized greed and graft of special interests and monopolies just as truly as does Mr. Coolidge.

"The same corrupt political machines that dictate the inequitable and dishonest policies of the Republican Party have clearly gained control of our once noble Democratic Party, and by unbelievable guile and trickery blackjacked the Democratic National Convention into accepting their mandates and their chosen representative in the person of John W. Davis.

"But the State campaign is a totally different matter. New York State has never had a better Governor than 'Honest Al Smith'; in fact, all who know him think him the best man who has ever sat in the Executive office in Albany. The esteem, admiration and personal devotion in which he is so universally held is more than justly deserved. 'To know him is to love him.' For 'the Republican messenger boy' to dare to aspire to be even mentioned as his rival is simply too ridiculous to be taken seriously.

"Every man, woman and child of New York State owes Al Smith a debt of personal gratitude for all he has so courageously and so unselfishly undertaken for us—and so splendidly accomplished. We shall never be able to fully repay this debt. But on Nov. 4 we shall all deem it a privilege to express our appreciation by writing his name on our ballots.

"I shall deem it a great honor, therefore, if you will add my name to the Independent Citizens Committee for Alfred E. Smith for Governor."

J. A. H. Hopkins, Chairman of the Committee of Forty-eight, who spoke at yesterday's luncheon, said that a permanent new political party would result from this election.

"Election day," he said, "will make the beginning, not the end, of the work for which the Progressives have joined hands. The real importance of the campaign lies not in the election of La Follette and Wheeler, but in the preparing of the new party which will sweep the country in the Congressional elections of 1926."

Arthur Garfield Hays, State Chairman of the La Follette campaign, said the success of the Progressive campaign had exceeded "the wildest expectations of any worker in the movement."

TAYLOR CLAIMS TENNESSEE.

Congressman Predicts State Will Go Republican This Year.

Congressman J. Will Taylor, Republican National Committeeman from Tennessee, predicted yesterday that his State would go Republican this year, although it usually was found in the Democratic column. He said that President Coolidge and Judge H. B. Lindsay, Republican nominee for United States Senator, would carry the State by 20,000, or 8,000 more than President Harding's plurality in 1920.

"I doubt if the Third Party polls more than 40,000 votes, which will be made of 90 per cent. normal Democratic and Socialist votes, and the rest Republican," he said. "This will give us the edge."

SENATOR STRAUS ENDORSED

Central Labor Council Approves His Record on Legislation.

The Central Trades and Labor Council at a special meeting yesterday endorsed the candidacy of State Senator Nathan Straus Jr., Democrat, who is running for re-election in the Fifteenth Senatorial District.

"Our endorsement of Senator Straus," said Joseph P. Ryan of the Council, "was based on the analysis of his record, which was 100 per cent. favorable on labor legislation in the last session of the Legislature."

Mrs. Harriman to Help Davis.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman will take an active part in the Democratic campaign for the remainder of this week. It was announced yesterday. Mrs. Harriman will speak at the Davis-Smith Theatre, 1,717 Broadway, tomorrow night, will preside at the Women's Non-Partisan League meeting in Pershing Square tomorrow noon and will address a street meeting at Broad and Wall Streets Friday noon.

ROOSEVELT CITES RECORD ON LABOR

In Ten Brooklyn Speeches He Stresses Republicans' Efforts for Workers.

CALLS RIVALS INSINCERE

His Party's 24 Years of Control Out of the Last 30 Have Done Much for the Toiler, He Says.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt spoke to between 15,000 and 20,000 people in ten meetings in Brooklyn last night, his itinerary taking him as far as Bay Ridge and Coney Island. Originally nine meetings were scheduled, but a meeting at the Academy of Music was added and, although the candidate arrived there at 11:45, a large audience still remained to greet him.

All the meetings of the evening were well attended. Two were held in high school auditoriums, which held as many people as could be accommodated. The largest meeting of the night was at Arcadia Hall, Halsey Street, near Broadway, where nearly 5,000 people packed the hall.

The arduous schedule last night kept the large fleet of motor cars carrying the party careening through the streets of Brooklyn, and great speed had to be maintained to keep the engagements on time.

Colonel Roosevelt devoted considerable attention to labor matters in his meetings last night. He attacked the record of the Democratic Party on labor, particularly its claim that it had passed most of the labor laws in force in the State. He said the Democrats wer insincere in their claim of being "the only friend of the workingman."

"Out of the last thirty years," he said at one time, "we have been in control twenty-four years and they for but two, and the record for legislation of this nature stands in about that ratio."

In the morning he appeared at a reception of the Foreign Language Bureau at the National Republican Club and defended the American citizen of foreign birth from what he called "the snobbish attitude of certain of our American citizens."

Reviews Labor Legislation.

After asserting in his night speeches that Republican support of the Tariff law was a benefit for the workingman in protecting his standard of living against that of cheap foreign labor, Colonel Roosevelt turned his attention to the history of labor legislation in the State, which he reviewed at considerable length.

In this portion of his speech he said in part:

"Our opponents, the Democrats, claim the credit for all labor laws passed that are popular. I am fair. I want to give every man and every party due credit for what they deserve, but what does the record show?

"In the last thirty years both branches of the Legislature in our State have been Democratic but twice, in 1911 and in 1913. During twenty-four years they have been Republican in both branches. For the four remaining years the Senate was Democratic and the Assembly Republican. In all fairness, therefore, the Democratic Party may be given the credit for the legislation passed in 1911 and 1913, but, by the same token, must accept the blame for legislation that was not passed during those years. During the four years when they were in control of one branch while the other branch was Republican I will concede them 50 per cent. of the credit, but during the twenty-four years when the Republicans were in control of both branches honesty demands that full credit should be given to the Republican Party.

"To sum up, out of the last thirty years we have been in control for twenty-four years, and they but for two, and the record in legislation of this nature stands in about that ratio.

"In view of what I have said, let us look over the record on labor and welfare legislation in our State. The Democrats in this State declare they are the only true friends of labor and that we Republicans are not interested in the workingman and do not care about the workingman and do not guard his welfare. This State of ours has fine labor and welfare laws. The majority of them were placed on our books within the last thirty years. They are as advanced as those in any State of the Union, and I am proud of my State on account of this. To hear the Democrats talk you would think that they and they alone were responsible for all these laws. What does the record show? The record shows that fully 86 per cent. of these laws were initiated by the Republican Party, and it is to them that the credit is due.

Says It Began Under Fenton.

"The very idea of labor laws in this State was initiated by our party. When Governor Fenton, a Republican, was Governor, and with both houses of the Legislature Republican, in 1867 we passed the first eight-hour law, and not only did we pass and Governor Fenton sign the first eight-hour law in 1867, but under Governor Cornell, when the entire State Administration was Republican, in 1881, an act was passed providing employes with safe places in which to work. We can justly, therefore, claim the credit for initiating the idea of protecting the interests of working people. That in itself would amount to but little if we had abandoned them later, but we have not. We have maintained our interest in working people through the long years of our useful control in politics, and today our platform is advocating sane, constructive measures in their behalf."

After reviewing the inauguration of the Department of Labor and the passage of workmen's compensation laws as initiated by Republicans, the candidate continued:

"I have before me, passed in the last twenty-four years by Republican Legislatures, some eighty laws of interest to and beneficial for the working people. They range from laws relative to the question of child labor to laws providing means for protecting the public as well as the workers in places of amusement maintained for pecuniary profit. Two years ago the Republican Legislature extended the requirement of employment certificates to minors between 16 and 18 years of age in cities of 5,000 population or more. Not long since Republican lawmakers passed an act prohibiting the employment of children between 14 and 18 years of age for more than eight hours a day. It was a Republican Legislature that adopted an amendment forbidding the employment of women on dangerous machinery. We provided that wages must be paid in cash. We provided that wages were a first lien on any bankrupt concern. In 1915 we increased the medical care for the injured workmen.

"Previous to that time the employer was not liable for medical treatment furnished more than sixty days after the accident. In 1921 and 1922 we penalized non-insurers to the extent of a fine of $500 or by imprisonment for a year. We made the loss of hearing compensable. We provided that general contractors should be responsible for subcontractors. We provided that awards for disability may be made after the death of injured employes. In 1923 we greatly enlarged the list of occupational diseases.

Declares Party Has Performed.

"I could recite to you a great number of laws of the same general character, but these will suffice. They are indicative of what the Republican Party was doing. They show that the Republican Party has not contented itself simply with broadcasting promises. It has performed, and performance is what counts."

The schedule of meetings in Brooklyn was as follows:

New National Hall, Driggs Avenue; hall at Bushwick Avenue and Stagg Street; Brooklyn Labor Lyceum, 945 Willoughby Avenue; Arcadia Hall, Halsey Street near Broadway; Public School, Eastern Parkway and Schenectady Avenue; Erasmus Hall, Flatbush Avenue; Manual Training High School, Seventh Avenue, between Fourth and Fifth Streets; Bay Ridge High School, and Cameo Palace.

CANDIDATES ANSWER ON ARMS CONFERENCE

Davis Would Have America Represented—Coolidge Would Consider Invitation 'Sympathetically.'

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—The Peace Committee of the Philadelphia yearly meeting of friends made public tonight replies received from President Coolidge and John W. Davis to questions the committee asked concerning their attitude on American participation in the proposed conference on limitation of armaments in Geneva in 1925.

President Coolidge replied:

"This Government is deeply interested in every effort to promote the limitation of armament and to remove the burdens of militarism. This Government has not yet been invited to attend the conference to which reference has been made, nor have we yet been advised that plans to hold such a conference have been perfected. It is our desire that there should be a conference to effect limitation in armament, and we shall sympathetically consider any invitation that may be received for this purpose and will gladly give our cooperation, provided we are permitted to do so without commitments which would involve us in European politics or be contrary to the established policies of this country."

John W. Davis replied as follows:

"I have frequently said if I were elected President and a conference on disarmament in Geneva in 1925 took place, America would be represented. I have also frequently taken the opportunity to advocate the World Court, and to state that we find a complete precedent in our own Supreme Court."

Senator La Follette's reply has not yet been received.

GROSVENOR FOR COOLIDGE.

Authority on Government Ranks Him With Lincoln.

Saying that he ranked Coolidge as a statesman, Davis as a lawyer and La Follette as a politician, Dr. Edwin Augustus Grosvenor, a life-long Democrat and an authority on government and international law, came out for Coolidge and Dawes in a statement made public here yesterday.

"The single, all-sufficient, compelling reason why I shall vote for Calvin Coolige," he said, "is the man himself. No occupant of the White House has had so many traits in common with Mr. Lincoln since Lincoln's day. The criticisms of Coolidge are the exact duplicate of what was said of Lincoln more than sixty years ago. This is an election where the personality of the candidate will prove the decisive factor. I judge Mr. Coolidge to be a stronger and more self-reliant man than Mr. Davis, and a safer, saner man than Mr. La Follette."

Dr. Grosvenor is a retired Amherst professor. He is the author of standard works on government and was editor of the Reference History of the World in Webster's International Dictionary published in 1900.

MOSES SEES G. O. P. VICTORY

Senator Says Coolidge Surely Will Get 312 Electoral Votes.

Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, who visited Republican Eastern headquarters yesterday after speaking in the West and New England, said that Coolidge would win easily.

"My observation has convinced me," he said, "that in the electoral vote there are 312 sure for Coolidge, 114 sure for Davis and 18 sure for La Follette. The others are doubtful."

SMITH PASSES LIE TO E. H. MACHOLD

Union League Club and listened to Colonel Roosevelt decrying the Executive budget. Senator Root came down from the speakers' rostrum during the constitutional convention not only to defend but to make a personal plea to his colleagues that they enact the Executive budget into the Constitution to dispose for all time of what he termed as the invisible government of the State and lessen the power, as he himself said, of men on the outside who had some control over the finances of the State and who could not themselves be elected to any position within the gift of the people.

"While the Senator did not dispute the candidate, it is nevertheless the fact from the printed reports of his speech that he spoke in glowing terms of his father and devoted the balance of his speech to a discussion of the power of the Supreme Court of the United States. He was particularly careful not to tell his intelligent friends in the Union League Club that Roosevelt was right."

In his speech at Richmond Hill the Governor ridiculed Colonel Roosevent's promises, saying that he would rather "go back and attend to the horses again" than be asked to do all the things Roosevelt is promising. Referring to the Colonel's speech in Harlem in which he guaranteed reforms in the health and tenement house departments, Governor Smith provoked laughter when he said "It must be that the Colonel intends to take care of all the furnaces in Harlem and keep the cellars clean."

After telling the people of Queens about his upstate trip and declaring that he had disposed of the public utilities issue of Colonel Roosevelt to date, the Governor said:

"Last night the Colonel rushed around the city, talking about the housing problem. The record is a little thing to the Colonel. Let me remind him that he was one of two members of the Assembly to vote against the first important rent bill introduced on the recommendation of the joint legislative Committee on Housing and designed to protect tenants against exorbitant rent increases.

"We have many vexatious problems which grew out of the war, and when I went to Albany first, in 1919, I appointed the Reconstruction Commission. That commission was made up of men and women throughout the State who had given of their time and their energy to the Government of the United States during the long period of the war. Your own District Attorney, Judge Newcombe, in this county was a member of that commission.

Demanded Better Housing.

"Among the many problems which I committed to the Reconstruction Commission and one upon which I laid special emphasis, was the problem of securing more and better housing for the people. Aside from the scarcity of buildings occasioned by the let-down in building operations during the war, the shortage drove up rents to a point where they became unbearable to a great body of our citizenship. Realizing this to be a vital problem, the Legislature itself finally appointed a legislative committee to investigate and report.

"Colonel Roosevelt in the course of his remarks last night said that the Republican Party created such a legislative housing committee in 1918. I excuse this mistake on the part of the Colonel because he has no knowledge of his own about this or in fact about any other subject which he has discussed thus far in the campaign and must rely upon information furnished to him by other people, who apparently know very little more about it than he does himself.

"In 1919 and 1920 the Reconstruction Commission brought in reports on housing conditions. The first so-called rent law enacted in this State was recommended by the so-called Lockwood committee. In the Assembly two men voted against this rent law, and one of the two was Colonel Roosevelt himself. During the Summer it was discovered that additional rent legislation was necessary. It was apparent to every one that with the arrival of Oct. 1, the new renting period, a crisis would exist unless prompt action was taken to protect people in possession of their apartments and to prevent their eviction.

Saved Situation for Tenants.

"The Reconstruction Commission appointed by me made a more comprehensive study of the subject than that made by the legislative committee. At the suggestion of the Reconstruction Commission, joined in by the legislative committee, I called the Legislature into extraordinary session in the month of September and saved the situation for the rent-payers of the greater city. Every rent-payer and every tenants' organization knows that. Strange as it may seem, in the extraordinary session Colonel Roosevelt voted for the rent laws.

"In other words, it took him five months to find out that the first rent law was a desirable and necessary thing for the protection of the people of the great city. He could only have voted against it in the first instance because of his absolute lack of knowledge of what it sought to do. The fact that he joined the other member from his county in his negative vote shows that he subordinated the common good of the great army of tenants in the City of New York to considerations within his own county, which at that time contained only one city, the small city of Glen Cove.

"In the course of his speech last night in the Borough of the Bronx he charged his understanding of this whole housing problem by declaring that when he is Governor he would make the Health Department and the Tenement House Department in New York City sanitary. As long as he insists upon pointing with so much pride from time to time to the Republican record, let me call the attention of the people of the State of New York to the facts taken directly from the record and not open to dispute. The Republican Legislature consistently and insistently stood against every permanent solution of the housing problem.

"Everything that they suggested or even agreed to was simply of a temporary nature and intended only to tide over a crisis, but permanent, constructive measures were something to which they were either unwilling or unable to lend their aid. They delayed the creation of the Bureau of Housing and Regional Planning until public indignation appeared at their failure to tackle this problem in a constructive manner.

Signed Original Rent Bills.

"I signed the original rent emergency bills. The tax-exemption legislation which has been of such especial benefit to the Borough of Queens became a law on my recommendation. When the Housing Commission found that the housing emergency still continued I recommended and signed bills extending the emergency rent laws for another two years."

The Governor declared that it would be infinitely better for his opponent to admit candidly that he has no knowledge of the record and blame his inaction on the fact that he was engrossed in his business at Washington.

"But," he added, "he has chosen another course and that is to permit somebody else to tell him what he ought to talk about and what he ought to say in the campaign without giving him the other necessary information about just where his party stood on all of these great proposals when they had an opportunity to help them along." Taking up automobile legislation, Governor Smith said:

"Nothing to my mind is more ridiculous than to hear the Republican candidate hopping all over the State, claiming credit for his party for the passage of the automobile legislation. I recommended this legislation in 1923. It was introduced in the Senate by a Senator from Queens County. It passed the Senate and went down to defeat in the Assembly. In 1924 Machold came to me and frankly said to me that he desired my assistance in order that Republicans save their faces on the defeat in 1923 of the automobile legislation and asked me to speak to the Democratic Senators to the end that the Automobile bill of 1924 might originate in the Republican Assembly.

"I was particularly anxious to save the slaughter of human beings and I discarded all political considerations. I proceeded along the line that would bring relief quickest to the people of the State of New York and I consented to let the bill originate in the Assembly. Contrast my attitude and the attitude of the Democratic Senate on this important legislation with the Republican attitude which played politics with it up to the last session of the Legislature."

DAVIS WINS CHEERS OF 3,000 NEGROES

Prediction of Political Equality Loudly Applauded in Packed Hall.

YORKVILLE CASINO SPEECH

Candidate Also Makes an Address in the Twelfth Assembly District.

John W. Davis, the Democratic candidate for President, addressed a series of three meetings in Manhattan last night as part of his last week's campaign to roll up a big plurality in New York City.

The Democratic nominee in addressing three thousand negroes at Liberty Hall, 129 West 138th Street, made an appeal for these traditionally Republican votes and declared that the political equality of the negro race in the United States depended largely upon their taking independent political action. He attacked Republican corruption and discussed the issues of the campaign before four thousand men and women in Yorkville Casino, and wound up the evening by addressing a meeting in Public School 135, First Avenue and East Fifty-first Street, that part of the Twelfth Assembly District of which Martin G. McCue is leader.

Mayer on the Platform.

The negro meeting was the most interesting of the three and was one which apparently produced not only votes for Mr. Davis but for the rest of the Democratic ticket. Mayor John F. Hylan was on the platform when Mr. Davis arrived and spoke after him, as he did at the Yorkville Casino meeting.

Municipal Civil Service Commissioner Ferdinand Q. Morton presided and introduced Mr. Davis as a man who had shown a spirit of fairness to the colored citizens by fighting "Jim Crow" car legislation, by winning the peonage cases in Alabama and by winning the fight to have the "grandfather clause" in the Oklahoma State Constitution nullified by the United States Supreme Court as contrary to the Federal Constitution.

Mr. Davis was received with cheers by the assemblage of negro men and women and was questioned frequently in a friendly manner during his speech, although no one asked him to define his attitude toward the Ku Klux Klan, that apparently being well understood by the audience.

"I am a Democrat," Mr. Davis said in beginning his speech. "The underlying principle of Democracy is the principle of equal rights for all men and special privilege to none. There is no limitation in that motto of race, creed or color. I, for one, will never write such a limitation there."

Mr. Davis then spoke of his success in winning the cases while he was Solicitor General of the United States, to which Mr. Morton had referred, and in reply to a written question explained that he had been a delegate to a West Virginia Democratic Convention which had endorsed the "Jim Crow" car law, but that he had been a leader in the minority with opposed adoption of the resolution.

"You're Honest, Anyway."

"Well, you're honest, anyway," shouted a voice.

"I try to be," Mr. Davis replied smiling.

Mr. Davis then declared that the safety of the negroes of the United States rested on the Constitution. "So long as that great document stands it will remain a protection for the humblest citizen, regardless of race, creed or color. The right to vote, the right of free speech, the right of freedom of religious worship cannot be impaired by any man or association of men.

"You have a great stake in this country," Mr. Davis began, when he was interrupted by a man who shouted:

"Will you give us the booze?"

The heckler was quieted quickly by a rush of those near him, and it is doubtful if Mr. Davis heard the question fully, for he continued:

"I do not wish to presume to advise you, but I do believe that the political future of the colored men and women in this country lies in the exhibition of political independence. Your ancestors got economic equality by throwing off the shackles of chattel slavery at the cost of four years of bloody war. You will get political equality only when you shake off anything that resembles political slavery."

This assertion caused the greatest display of enthusiasm of the meeting and there were shouts of "right" and "good" from all parts of the hall.

Political Equality for Negro.

"When the colored voter demonstrates that he is not the puppet of any political party to be thrown out on the firing line until the reserves can be brought up, when he forms his own opinion and is willing and ready to defend it, when that day comes—and I believe it is near at hand—the negro will attain political equality."

"What is it you want in this country?" Mr. Davis asked.

"An honest man for President," was the reply.

"I'll change the form of the question," said Mr. Davis. "What do you hope to obtain from your Government?"

"Justice," "equal rights" and "equal opportunities," came replies from men and women all over the hall.

"That's the answer," Mr. Davis rejoined. "That is what we want in this country. We want every person born in this country and every one who comes here to live under its flag to have equality of opportunity. We want conditions so that honesty, thrift and an upright life may bring happiness to every one. We want every father and mother to be happy in the belief that their children will live better and more useful lives."

An incident which was considered of some significance occurred when Mr. Davis predicted the re-election of Governor Smith and urged support of him by his hearers. The applause mention of the Governor's name received was only second to that which greeted Mr. Davis's assertion regarding the desirability of the political independence of the negro.

Has Praise for Wilson.

At Yorkville Casino, Mr. Davis received a warm welcome from a typically Democratic gathering in that strongly Democratic part of Manhattan. In his speech there Mr. Davis stressed the record of the Democratic Party on labor. He recalled that it was a Democratic Administration that enacted the law that declared that labor was not a commodity or article of commerce, that enacted into law a recognition of the laboring man's right to organize and that gave him the law protecting him against the abuse of the writ of injunction.

Mr. Davis recalled that Woodrow Wilson had spoken in the same hall twelve years ago when first a candidate for President and eulogized Mr. Wilson not only for his achievements in domestic administration but in his conduct of America's part in the World War and his attempt to bring about international cooperation for peace.

The Democratic nominee discussed the scandals of the present Administration, as disclosed by the investigations at Washington, and urged the election of the Democratic national ticket on the ground that it was the only way to get back to the sound principle of equality and "out of the quagmire of privilege."

Derides "Red" Menace.

Mr. Davis again presented as a fallacy the Republican argument that it was necessary to elect President Coolidge to defeat Senator La Follette and save the country from the "Reds."

"So long as America remains the land of equal opportunity and equal rights, so long as every American feels that he has an honest, just and impartial Government, all the 'Reds' in Christendom cannot shake it," he said.

"Fall, Denby and Daugherty and all their kind have by their unfaithfulness in public office done more to shake the confidence of the American people in their institutions than all the preachings of the 'Reds' since the Constitution of the United States was adopted.

"If we want to put down radicalism, if we want to preserve our institutions, if we want to remain a government of limited powers, where the great guarantees of human life and liberty are secure from any Congress, Legislature or court or even a popular majority, if we want this to remain the land where free speech and freedom of the press, freedom of assembly and trial by jury and freedom in matters of religious faith and practice are supreme, then the way to keep it so is to install a Government that has the public confidence. And you will not do away with discontent if you simply return to power the men who abused it when you gave it to them."

Takes Issue with Hughes.

Mr. Davis said that Secretary of State Hughes had been going around the country painting a "gloomy picture of the great disaster the Republicans inherited when they came to power in March, 1921.

"He even goes so far as to say that the Democrats planted a mine and blew it up and all the Republicans have done since is to gather up the debris.

"Well, they have had rather a large job of gathering, and the curious thing is that there has been far more debris since 1921 than there was in the three years before 1921 arrived. When he talks of unemployment let him go to his own Department, and then he can ask the President, too—and have them tell him that in July, 1914, before the war, which is the fairest month to take for comparison, there were 14 per cent. more men at work in the United States than there were in July, 1924. And let him remember this as well, that in 1916 there were more men at work than there have been in any year since that time, save the single year 1923.

"Now, figures are stubborn things. It is one thing to let your imagination caper and fill your palette with black paint and smear a picture all over the side of the room, with crepe hung on every corner, but it is not so easy to get away from the stubborn facts that are recorded in official records.

Wants Reasonable Prosperity.

"And I say to you tonight, my friends, that if we want in this country, as we are rightfully entitled to expect, a continued flow of reasonable prosperity, there is but one way to secure it, and that is by placing yourselves in charge of an equal, an impartial and an honest Government. We have our lesson on the other side of the water of what political instability means and how closely the welfare of the people is connected with their confidence in their governmental institutions.

"Unless you have a Government in which you can confide, commerce does halt and enterprise is stifled; and that Government must, I repeat, be honest and fair and impartial, and the laws it passes must be laws not for any particular or peculiar class or section, but laws for the benefit of the people all alike. Equal and exact justice to all men and special privilege to none is the only motto for any Government, and the only avenue to prosperity in these United States. That is the sort of Government we Democrats are prepared to offer."

Just before speaking at his last meeting, Mr. Davis dropped in for a moment or two at Turn Verein Hall, where a meeting and dance was in progress. The nominee did not make a speech, but delivered a few words of greeting.

Mr. Davis will speak tonight at the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, his big meeting for that borough.

14 GERMAN PARTIES NOW IN THE FIELD

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 28.—Seven men who recently left the ranks of the Democratic Party announce today that they have founded the "Liberal Union." They explain that they have not united to form a new political party, "as there are quite enough parties in Germany." [So far fourteen parties are competing in the present elections—ten fewer than in May.]

These seven want it understood they have only founded the Liberal Union because there was no room for them and liberal principles in the Democratic Party. The fact is they were rejected for nomination on the Democratic ticket. The seven are former Federal Ministers Schiffer and Siemens and former members of the Reichstag Hans Cremer, Bruno Eisen, Fuehr Geron-Simon, Prentyel and Zoepfel.

BERLIN, Oct. 28 (Associated Press).—The German Clerical Party today concluded a three days' convention by unanimously adopting a resolution approving Chancellor Marx's governmental policies and the support given them by the party's delegates in the Reichstag. Virtually all the party's present leaders, including Marx, Wirth and Fehrenbach, will be renominated for the Reichstag.

A Coalition of all the Republican forces is urged today by the Republican Party, which failed to win any seats in the last election. Defeat of reaction is declared to be the fundamental issue of the campaign. The party refrains from placing a ticket in the field and hopes that the other parties, which are loyal to the Republic and committed to fulfillment of its politics, will agree to put up a joint ticket.

The Nationalists will hold a significant pre-election convention next week, when the party's platform will be drafted. It is now believed that Admiral von Tirpitz will be elected to the party's leadership, succeeding Dr. Hoetzl, who was forced to retire recently.

As von Tirpitz voted for the Dawes plan it is believed that the party will refrain from making an open attack on it during the campaign. It is expected the Nationalists will confine their strictures regarding the plan to a noncommittal demand that the London agreement on reparations be subjected to a gradual modification.

670 AUTOISTS FINED.

Thirty Who Had Left Cars Standing a Short Time Are Discharged.

Thirty of 709 motorists who were arraigned in the Traffic Court yesterday for violating the parking ordinance were discharged when it was revealed that they had left their cars standing in thoroughfares for only fifteen or twenty minutes. They said that they had temporarily left their cars for various purposes, including shopping in a store, a visit to the home of a friend and a stay in a restaurant long enough to drink a cup of coffee. Chief Magistrate William McAdoo and Magistrates Earl A. Smith, H. Stanley Renaud and W. Bruce Cobb decreed that to leave a car for such a short period in the street was not in violation of the ordinance. The other offenders, who had left their cars in streets from two to three hours, were fined from $2 to $5.

HIGH SCHOOL DEDICATED.

Several Thousand Children Parade to Thomas Jefferson Building.

The new Thomas Jefferson High School at Pennsylvania and Dumont Avenues, Brooklyn, was dedicated yesterday. Mayor Hylan, Murray Hulbert, President of the Board of Aldermen, and Dr. John A. Ferguson, Chairman of the Building and Sites Committee of the Board of Education, were the principal speakers.

The exercises were preceded by a parade of students and of elementary school children, who marched through decorated streets in the Brownsville and East New York sections. Several thousand were in line, and the music was furnished by the bands of the Street Cleaning Department, Fire Department and the Hebrew Orphan Asylum.

VIEWS ON ELECTION BY JEWISH CITIZENS

Louis Marshall, Supporting Coolidge, Assails La Follette For Attack.

H. H. LEHMAN FOR DAVIS

Criticizes President's Silence on Klan—Hillquit Speaks for the Third Party.

Statements by Jewish citizens, giving their views on the election, were made public yesterday by the Jewish Telegraph Agency. Louis Marshall, Herbert H. Lehman, Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver, Morris Hillquit, S. C. Lamport and Nathan Straus Jr. were quoted. All three of the leading parties were represented in their views.

Louis Marshall, who is supporting President Coolidge, charged that there seemed to be "a concerted purpose in some quarters to depict Senator La Follette as a champion of the Jews," whereas, according to Mr. Marshall, this was not the case. He cited a petition called "Justice for Hungary"—Senate document No. 346 of the Sixty-seventh Congress—which he said was presented by Senator La Follette on March 3, 1923, and widely circulated by La Follette and his agents.

"This petition," said Mr. Marshall, "seeks to cast responsibility for the world conflict not upon Austria-Hungary, which, as everybody knows, declared war against Serbia, but upon what the writers of the document are pleased to call the international bankers, a phrase which is constantly in the mouth of Henry Ford. That there may be no mistake as to who is intended by this expression, it is stated that, 'above them all, is the famous international family of the Rothschilds, who are Jews by religion and Barons of England, Germany, France and Austria by business.'

"The document also lays at the door of the Jews the action of the Bolsheviki in Hungary, and asserts that President Wilson, Lloyd George, Clemenceau and Señor Orlando were surrounded by Jewish advisers, thereby implying that the provisions of the treaty relating to Hungary of which complaint is made were dictated by Jews.

"It is impossible in a summary to give an adequate conception of the bitterness and the manifest untruthfulness of this production. Yet Senator La Follette made it a part of the records of Congress and thereby published to the world and gave currency to this infamous libel."

Rabbi Silver said that he had long looked forward to the organization of a third party on liberal lines, and that he believed the La Follette movement to be the nucleus of such a party. He said that the conservative elements within both the Republican and Democratic Parties should merge into one conservative party.

"I do not approach political problems from the Jewish point of view," said Mr. Hillquit. "If, however, the Jewish voter is to consider the menace of an incipient anti-Semitic movement in the United States, such a movement would undoubtedly be more effectively checked by an outspoken Progressive Government than by a Government of either of the old parties."

After giving several reasons for supporting John W. Davis and Governor Smith, Mr. Lehman said:

"The President, representing not alone his party but all the people of the country, should allow no questions of political expedience to affect him, and in my opinion he merits criticism for his failure to declare himself in this matter in unmistakable terms."

Supporting President Coolidge, Mr. Lamport said:

"I challenge most emphatically the important suggestion that there is such a thing as a Jewish vote in America. Nothing could be more ridiculous. I think it is deplorable indeed that unscrupulous political manipulators should be permitted to capitalize the fact that President Coolidge has refused to be goaded into mentioning the Klan by name specifically. It is my clear and conscientious conclusion that he refuses to dignify the Klan by even mentioning it in a political campaign."

Mr. Straus, who is supporting Mr. Davis, said that the main issue was honesty in Government, and attacked President Coolidge for passivity in the face of the oil scandal and his silence on the Klan.

FILL QUOTAS FOR CHARITY.

Progress Reported in $1,250,000 Drive for Jewish Philanthropy.

Arthur Lehman announced at the Hotel Pennsylvania yesterday that twenty groups of the Business Men's Council had raised more than half of their quotas in the $1,250,000 drive which the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies opened on Sunday with a $100 dinner. The physicians, and men in three trade groups classified as the Waste Industries, Umbrellas and Canes and Yellings, have filled their quotas and are on their way toward doubling them.

The groups that have passed the halfway mark include the following:

Real estate; metals and mining; retired business men; cigars, cigarettes and pipes; clothing group; art galleries; paints and oils; notions and novelties; silks and ribbons; corsets and brassieres, hardware and cutlery group; hats and caps group; children's and infants' wear; beverages and syrups; belts, suspenders and garters and art goods and mirrors.

MELLON DENOUNCES 'QUACKS' IN POLITICS

He Declares America Can Cure Its Ills Only by "Well-Tried Economic Principles."

PICTURES GOOD BUSINESS

And Asserts That the Republicans Have Restored Mercantile and Farm Prosperity.

EXAMPLE IS SEEN IN ITALY

There a Strong Hand Has Restored a Government Wrecked by Socialists, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Secretary Mellon, in a campaign address broadcast by Station WRC tonight, asserted that ills arising from time to time could not be cured by the "incantation of a witch-doctor," but only by the application of "well-tried economic principles" and the intelligence and initiative of the American people.

America has avoided "false gods" in the past, Mr. Mellon declared, and "escaped trial of that principal plank of a former Democratic platform which maintained that the unlimited coinage of silver in the ratio of 16 to 1 was the sole means by which we might be saved," but new theories were being continually presented and it behooved the nation to closely analyze the political promises of today before "we burn down the house we now all live in."

The Secretary of the Treasury referred to Italy as a nation whose people had to pay for the "unwise experiment" tried when the Socialists became powerful immediately after the war. A strong hand has since come in in Italy, Mr. Mellon said, and has re-established the Italian Government upon sound principles and "Government by party, not by bargain."

Secretary Mellon, after asserting that "I have little sympathy with quacks," declared that the position of the country today, at home and abroad, is unsurpassed, with good wages, ample employment, better agriculture and strong credit, calling for "no change in administration, but for common sense to hold and fully enjoy these advantages."

Text of the Secretary's Speech.

Secretary Mellon's speech was as follows:

The prosperity of the country and the happiness of its people depend primarily upon the soundness of its own government. It is true that we may from time to time be drawn into world conflicts and suffer from world illnesses, but if we keep our own body politic strong, if we do not dissipate our reserves, we can avoid much of the consequences and soon return to sound conditions. Such, indeed, has been our experience succeeding the dislocations caused by the World War.

Whatever may be said about the necessity of inflation to finance the war, a continuation of this policy by the Administration then in power after the war had ended was inexcusable and disastrous. You will recall the enormous increase in prices and the unhealthy overexpansion and overproduction which was then encouraged. Our house was not put in order and we suffered accordingly.

Over four years ago it became apparent that we would have to pay the penalty for this unsoundness, and the country experienced one of the most precipitant declines in prices, production and trade in its history. The movement began early in 1920, when prices turned downward, and continued for somewhat over a year. Indeed, while its course had nearly run by March of 1921, the momentum was so great that deflation was not completely checked until three or four months later, or about the middle of that year.

When this Administration took office wholesale prices generally had dropped nearly one-half, and the index of prices of farm products showed an even greater decline. This meant that farm products showed an even greater decline. This meant that farm products worth a dollar in January, 1920, were worth only fifty cents in March, 1921.

Says Republicans Turned the Tide.

The consequence was disorganization of industry and agriculture. Business profits then turned into losses; factories began to close; unemployment increased at a rapid rate; land values were cut in half in many of the agricultural districts: the farmer who had bought land and the laborer who had bought a home were unable to meet their obligations: the banks were loaded with frozen loans; mortgages were foreclosed; and the whole economic structure had to be readjusted to met new conditions.

The incoming Administration took hold and sought a way out. While economic conditions cannot be changed overnight, still a Government moving with intelligence can give economic forces freedom and help the country to cure itself.

This has been done in the past three years. A budget control of Federal Government expenditures was introduced and expenditures cut from six and one-half billion dollars in 1920 to three and one-half billion dollars in the year just closed, a saving of nearly one-half. Taxes were reduced, and when the present law is in full effect the total yearly Federal tax collection will probably aggregate a billion and a half dollars less than would have been collected from the taxpayers if the rate of 1920 had remained in effect. In 1920 Federal taxes collected amounted to $54 for every man, woman and child in the United States; next year they should be but $27, a cut of exactly one-half in the per capita tax burden—no mean accomplishment.

The War Finance Corporation of the Government loaned nearly $300,000,000 for agriculture and livestock purposes. The Federal and Joint Stock Land Banks increased their loans from $450,000,000 to $1,450,000,000, or over three-fold. The Federal Intermediate Credit Banks were created and have advanced $50,000,000. At the President's request, the Agricultural Finance Corporation, with entirely private capital, has assisted in restoring the country banking situation in the Northwest and is now turning its attention to aiding the farmer to diversify.

During the past two years or more prices have been comparatively stable, thus removing the demoralizing influence of rapid price changes on business generally. Farm prices have nearly completely recovered, if we apply the true test of their purchasing power in other commodities, that is, how much in other commodities a bushel of wheat will buy. The relative purchasing power of the four crops, corn, wheat, oats and barley which in 1921 was less than two-thirds of its real value, is now higher than in the last pre-war year.

The maladjustment between agricultural prices and other prices is being removed and the farmer restored to his proper status in the economic system.

Says Our Credit Structure Is Stronger.

With respect to credit, the combined total of the country's bank deposits is greater than ever before in our history. At the same time reserves are unusually high, frozen loans have been almost completely liquidated, and our banking and credit structure was never in a stronger position and more able to support continued business and industrial expansion. With the Federal Reserve System and the new credit instrumentalities set up during this Administration, every legitimate credit need of both agriculture and industry can be readily supplied at a more reasonable rate of interest.

There is not, and need not be at any time, a shortage of either credit or currency to support expanding business and trade. The Government, and through it the taxpayer, have benefited also from this government. Three years ago the Treasury floated loans at 5½ per cent., whereas the last two borrowings in June and September of this year bore interest rates of but 2¾ per cent., or just one-half, making a vast saving on the interest burden of the Government.

It has taken time to effect the necessary adjustments in prices and production, for the old obligations had to be met, losses written off and a new beginning made. Without spectacular innovations in government, without confusion or disturbance, but through common sense, sound administration and hard work, these adjustments have now been made. Both banking and business conditions are in a thoroughly strong position, and the country has been put back on a basis where it is now ready to enter upon a renewal of such a period of healthy agriculture and industry as followed the defeat of Bryan and his theories nearly thirty years ago.

Praises the Dawes Plan.

Not only have we improved our own condition, but we have materially assisted those countries with whom we must associate and whose prosperity is linked up with ours. Two years ago Mr. Hughes, Secretary of State, made the suggestion which finally developed into the commission of experts under the leadership of General Dawes. The plan worked out by this commission has been adopted by the interested nations. The Dawes plan is not a proposal but now an accomplished fact; not talk but action.

This, in my opinion, is one of the most important forward steps ever taken in international cooperation, and the service to the world is inestimable. One of its effects has been the growth of a new mental attitude and outlook on the part of Europe. Upon the German people themselves the actual burden of reparations is not so great or so disheartening as the uncertainty under which they have labored. Already a certain sense of relief and something of the old-time industrial vigor and thrift are pervading that country, and there exists a wholesome air of confidence that their obligations can be met and the country restored to its former industrial progress.

The result of the inauguration of the plan should be a growing market for American products and a stimulus to our own industry. With the full recovery of Germany and other European countries, it is possible that keener competition may be felt in certain lines which may necessitate some gradual readjustments here, but the general effect of a prosperous world can only mean the broadening of our markets and opportunities and a quickening of our own economic development.

True progress comes from construction, not destruction. It is easy to tear down, but it is difficult to build up. A nation is but the aggregate of its inhabitants and if its policies are unsound, if its expenditures are extravagant, if its institutions are weak, it is the people who have to pay.

Compares Mussolini and Russia.

As an illustration—take the case of Italy, when the Socialists became powerful immediately after the war. Responsible party government ceased, control rested in combinations of blocks, each working under cover for its own selfish motive. Her industry was disrupted by strikes, her prosperity disappeared and her credit ceased to exist. Accompanying the unwise experiment came the usual unemployment and suffering of the common people. A strong hand has since come in and re-established the Italian Government upon sound principles and government by party, not by bargain. Steps have been taken to abandon Government operation of railroads and to cut taxes, and the budget this year will be practically balanced.

Italy has been an excellent illustration that economic fallacies must be paid for and the cost be met by the whole people. It cannot be shunted to some one else or to only a part of the nation. When common sense was restored all the people benefited, and we see that land again under happy conditions.

In Russia, the experiment brought destruction final and complete. No trade, no industry, no agriculture, no religion—a return to barbarism. The millennium was promised to the Russian peasant; he has received tyranny, starvation and death.

In our country we have avoided false gods in the past. You will recall that we escaped trial of that principal plank of a former Democratic platform which maintained that the unlimited coinage of silver in the ratio of 16 to 1 was the sole means by which we might be saved.

But new theories are being continually presented, and we should, therefore, analyze the political promises of today. So when a candidate proposes to cut the revenue from tariff and taxes, which are the two usual sources of Government receipts, he should explain where he will find $3,000,000,000 to run the Government.

When another candidate proposes to embark the Government in railroad and water-power ownership, to increase wages, to decrease freight rates, to increase prices, to decrease cost of living, and to indulge generally in an orgy of spending, let him submit the details of his budget. I am sure no Secretary of the Treasury could make it balance. It is the people who must pay for this spending, since the Government has only what it gets from them.

Therefore, before we burn down the house we now all live in we should at least be permitted to see the plans of the promised dwelling.

I have little sympathy with quacks. Our ills as they arise from time to time should be cured not by the incantation of a witch doctor, but by the application of well-tried economic principles and the intelligence and initiative of the American people. Our position today, at home and abroad, is unsurpassed. Our good wages, ample employment, better agriculture and strong credit call for no change in Administration, but for common sense to hold and finally to enjoy these advantages.

GOLD AND OIL RULE, LA FOLLETTE SAYS

Declares "Financial Imperialism," Unless Checked, Will Lead to War.

GETS BROOKLYN OVATION

Senator in Tears as He Checks Demonstration After Four Minutes.

Senator Robert M. La Follette, Progressive candidate for President, at Clermont Avenue Rink, Brooklyn, last night attacked "the reckless course of financial imperialism" on which he asserted the country has embarked, and prophesied that unless checked it would some day lead the United States into another war.

"Gold and oil rule the world today," he declared, maintaining that the gold was exemplified by J. P. Morgan & Co. and oil by the Standard Oil Company. "Europe bows to American gold. Our State Department is administered in the interests of oil. Unless checked, these two groups and the things they represent will rule the world."

An audience of 4,000 greeted him warmly and cheered him as "our next President." The other speakers were Alfred J. Boulton, former District Attorney Robert H. Elder, former Assemblyman Charles H. Solomon and Arthur Garfield Hayes, State Progressive Chairman. The audience booed Hayes' criticism of President Coolidge for accepting $250 to make a patriotic speech in Bridgeport when he was Vice President.

The demonstration for Senator La Follette lasted four minutes and ceased only when the Third Party candidate held up his watch to indicate that he wished to begin his speech. Before Senator La Follette's speech, Commander Warren Shaw Fisher of the United War Veterans presented the Senator with a gold medal "in recognition of his services to his country, his people and the war veterans."

Senator in Tears.

There were tears in Senator La Follette's eyes when he thanked the audience for its greeting. He uttered his thanks haltingly and nearly broke down several times before concluding the brief remarks that prefaced his prepared address. One of the interested spectators on the platform was Edgar Speyer, formerly a British knight, and until recently prominent in British banking circles.

After reviewing the results of American intervention in Haiti and Santo Domingo, which countries, he maintained, were forced to accept American loans "after American marines had gained possession of their Government by force of arms," Senator La Follette said:

"Haiti and Santo Domingo are but the beginning. American gold holds mortgages on Central America; it holds mortgages over South American republics. It has taken a mortgage on France and on Germany. Some day, unless our present mad course is checked, unless the power of these international bankers over government is broken, American boys in khaki may be sent to the Continent of Europe to collect their debts, and this nation of ours may be involved in another war to satisfy the same greed that has rendered this free nation all but prostrate under its power.

"The Standard Oil Company is using the State Department to secure the right to exploit oil in Turkey, in Mesopotamia, in the Far East. Some accident may occur, an American citizen may be killed, revolutions may be fomented, as they are fomented in Latin American countries. The American Navy will be called upon to suppress the disorder. American marines will fire upon defenseless peoples.

"The honor of the nation will be involved. Then America, like England, like France, like Russia, may be embroiled in another war. Then men will appeal to you to make the world safe for democracy, but the real appeal will be to make American gold and American oil safe for the American bankers.

"Orgy of Corruption."

"That is the inevitable end of the reckless course of financial imperialism on which we are embarked. Today this predatory group controls a majority of both parties in the Senate and in the House of Representatives. For four years, to use the words of one of its own agents, it has had 'quick and easy access to the White House.' We have had an orgy of corruption such as can only be paralleled in ancient and medieval Rome.

"Today you are asked by both the old parties to continue this system. And had it not been for this progressive movement you would have been offered no choice but to accept it on its own terms.

"The Republican Party asked no questions. It was calloused to shame. The Cleveland Convention might as well have been a convention of wooden images. They accepted the hand-picked candidates almost without protest. So completely were the ideals of Abraham Lincoln absent from the Republican Convention, except for the delegations from Wisconsin and North Dakota, that it registered without dissent the orders from Wall Street.

"The progressive elements in the Democratic Party also protested against this control. But in the New York Convention Wall Street wore out the Democratic delegates. It permitted them to exhaust one candidate after another. Then, when the delegates were exhausted, the word went round, 'You must take our choice or remain here all Summer. We have deadlocked the convention. You shall accept our choice, the choice of the House of Morgan, or you shall have no candidate at all.'

"The Progressive movement challenges this power. The Progressive movement is the voice of Thomas Jefferson appealing to real Democrats; it is the voice of Abraham Lincoln appealing to real Republicans to save the traditions of their parties and the ideals of a nation of free-born men."

Says Oil Rules State Department.

Senator La Follette charged that the State Department "is administered in the interests of oil." He attacked "the private monopoly system," and in this connection asserted that the anthracite coal lands were monopolized by a small group, which fixed a monopoly price.

"That is why the improvements in transportation, the inventions of men and the discoveries of science have not improved the living conditions of men," he continued.

"Here is the explanation of the continued poverty of the people in a country the most richly endowed in all the world. Here is one of the menacing things which the progressive movement is pledged to destroy. For we are pledged to the destruction of monopoly, not to its regulation. For private monopoly is not only a statutory crime—it is a moral crime.

"I realize that it is difficult for men to see how the private monopoly system controls our daily lives. It is much easier to visualize a personal king, a kaiser or a czar, as a tyrannical power. But no monarch ever enjoyed greater power than is exercised by credit, and no monarch ever used that power in a more devastating way than have these two banking groups that control the credit resources of America and of the world as well.

"For its power penetrates into every State and every city in the land. It has agents there, lawyers there—most important of all, it has banks. It has the United States Chamber of Commerce and all of its subsidiary agencies. It has newspapers. It owns the telephone and the telegraph. It controls the radio and the means of transmitting intelligence. No one can measure the unseen power of those who control the gold and credit of America.

Power of Wall Street.

"But Wall Street has a more direct power. It controls your right to work. It determines the actual wages you receive. We had an exhibition of this power in 1920. The firm of J. P. Morgan and the Standard Oil banks in New York control a great part of the railway mileage of America. They control the great industrial trusts. They decided that railroad labor should be stripped of its power of resistance and of all the small gains in wages and working conditions that had been secured during the war. They determined to crush the rapidly growing power of the trade unions in every branch of industry. They declared an 'open-shop' war. Organized labor accepted the challenge. Labor knew by experience how defenseless it was when the individual worker bargained for his wage. Men knew that only through organization could they save themselves and their families from the merest poverty wage. This industrial war lasted for two long years. On some railroads it continues to this day.

"Four million men were out of employment. The wage losses alone amounted to $6,000,000,000. Every merchant lost, every manufacturer lost. The American people lost. Freight piled high in the warehouses. Wheat and the products of the farm rotted at terminals. The industrial life of America stood still as a result of this war. For it was war—war almost as devastating as though it were being fought in the trenches.

"American gold in the hands of J. P. Morgan and the Standard Oil banks makes war on the peoples of other lands as ruthlessly as it does upon the people of America. For American gold is now reaching out into distant parts of the world.

"Upward of eight billions of American credit has been loaned outside of our country. And just as the house of Morgan uses the Department of Justice at home, with its Palmer and Daugherty injunctions; just as it seeks to use the Federal troops as strike-breaking agencies, so American gold makes use of American marines to make war on defenseless peoples."

Senator La Follette said that during the last three weeks he had spoken in eighteen cities and twelve States and everywhere he found people flocking to the Progressive standard. "The Progressive tide is rising from the Atlantic to the Pacific," he declared. "It cannot be restrained. It is sweeping over the country. Today the Democratic and Republican candidates are defeated. They cannot win. We can.

"We are not going to throw this election into the House of Representatives. It will never reach the Senate. This election will be settled, like every other Presidential election in the last hundred years. It will be settled by the people of the United States at the polls on the fourth day of November. On that day, they will, I am confident, elect the Progressive ticket by a substantial majority."

On arriving in Jersey City yesterday from Baltimore Senator La Follette issued a statement saying that the most encouraging feature of his campaign was the fact that the fight for the Independent-Progressive ticket "had been financed by the masses of the people." He said that his campaign had proved that millions of dollars were not necessary to conduct an honest campaign, but that the people themselves would contribute to a cause in which they believed.

When Mr. La Follette concluded his speech he was instantly caught in a maelstrom of enthusiastic supporters who crowded and crushed one another to reach him. It required the combined efforts of two policemen, his son Robert and his son-in-law, George Middleton, to escort the Presidential candidate out of the crush.

WANT TO QUIZ COOLIDGE.

Tammany Bureau Pledges $1,495 to Get Him to Speak Here.

A "round robin," calling on President Coolidge to come to New York City before the end of the campaign and discuss national issues, was started yesterday at the Tammany Hall Speakers' Bureau, and the first twenty persons to sign it subscribed a total of $1,495 to pay the President for his services. The payment of this amount was made conditional on the President's consent to answer ten questions to be put to him by the Tammanyites, "such as we are asked daily by inquiring, red-blooded Americans." By the terms of the "round robin," the President would be permitted to select any place in the city from Madison Square Garden or the Yankee Stadium to the Ferry Plaza on Staten Island for his address.

In addition to the fee the subscribers expressed willingness to pay all the expenses of the meeting and the rent of a hall, if the President should accept. It was said at Tammany that the "round robin" would be telegraphed to the President.

"The round robin is a genuine thing," said Emery C. Weller, Secretary of the Speakers' Bureau. "You will notice that it contains the names of responsible people who stand ready to make good their offer to Mr. Coolidge if he will accept the invitation. It has been suggested that the amount should be sufficient to obtain Mr. Coolidge, as it has been published that his fee on one occasion was only $250."

Among the signers of the "round robin" were Assistant District Attorneys Thomas F. Kane, Charles J. Garrison and Eugene McAuliffe, Mrs. Louis Reed Welsmiller, Deputy Commissioner of Public Markets; Miss Frances Brandon, Raymond Thompson, John M. Lewis, William C. Chanler, Robert C. Hand, Samuel Goodman and Arthur Kahn.

SMOOT ANSWERS LA FOLLETTE STORY

He Denies Coercion on Sugar Tariff—Offers Him His Sugar Stock Cheap.

CALLED CULBERTSON IN

But Says the Tariff Commissioner Left Meeting Quickly—Culbertson Refuses to Comment.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Reed Smoot, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, denied today the charges made by Senator La Follette in Baltimore last night that sugar interests had attempted to coerce members of the Tariff Commission to delay making the sugar report to President Coolidge.

Senator La Follette asserted that Vice Chairman Culbertson of the Tariff Commission had been invited to the office of Senator Smoot and there found representatives of sugar interests who sought to influence him to delay making recommendations for a reduction in the duty. He also charged that members of Congress had made efforts to influence the action of this official.

The meeting in his office, Senator Smoot said, was altogether above board and was arranged to present pertinent facts in connection with the sugar situation. He made this statement:

"The meeting referred to by Mr. La Follette in his speech last evening in Baltimore was arranged in the following manner:

"The representatives of the American producers of sugar complained to me that the Tariff Commission in arriving at the cost of producing sugar in Cuba, as compared with the cost in the United States, did not confine itself to obtaining the latest available figures of cost, but based the same on the average cost over a period from 1917 to 1923, which embraced a period of most violent fluctuations in wages, land values and prices, and also carried years before the provision of law granting the President the power to increase or decrease the tariff rates. Again it was plain that the commission ignored the agricultural costs in producing cane, except in the case of Hawaii.

"The commission secured the costs of producing beets in the United States, but refused to use that cost in determining the cost of production of beet sugar and substituted therefor a price based upon their return on the sale of the sugar. The commission arrived at the cost of the production of sugar in Cuba by taking factory costs based upon the New York price of sugar and included therein profits made by the Cuban cane producers, 80 per cent. of the production in Cuba being owned and controlled by the sugar refiners and financial interests in the East.

"This appears to me to be unfair and I doubted that it was a fact. I then asked Mr. Culbertson to come to my office and meet a few representatives of the beet sugar industry in the United States and listen to their complaints, because I thought he might have an explanation that would at least be satisfactory to me.

Offers His Stock at $3 a Share.

"Mr. Culbertson came to my committee room and met the above-mentioned producers, some eight or nine of them. It is stated that Mr. Hodges (Treasurer of the Republican National Committee) was at the meeting. There were two men present that I did not know. It may be that Mr. Hodges was one of them. The meeting was held but a short time, during which Mr. Mead (the representative of the sugar producers of Hawaii) presented the case to Mr. Culbertson along the above lines. Mr. Culbertson made a very brief statement and left the committee room. He stated he wanted to be fair with the industry and that was about all he said. No request was made of him by myself or any one else at that meeting.

"The result of the meeting so far as I was concerned, proved to me that the complaint made by the sugar producers was a just one and that before this thing is finally settled the American people will come to that conclusion. This is a fight between the sugar refiners of America, known generally as the sugar trust, and the producers of sugar in America. Every civilized country in the world raises a good share of its revenue from duties upon sugar. America is about the lowest. Destroy the American sugar industry and the sugar trust will tell the American people what price they shall pay for sugar, as they did in 1920.

"It is true that I am a stockholder in the Utah-Idaho Sugar Company, holding 440 shares. I have never owned more than this amount in my life in the said company. If Mr. La Follette wants to buy said amount, I will sell it to him at $3 a share."

William Burgess, a member of the Tariff Commission, said that Senator La Follette's references were merely parts of a campaign yarn. He declared that there had been no attempt on the part of sugar interests or any one else to bring pressure or otherwise influence any action of the Tariff Commission in its sugar report.

Culbertson Answers Burgess.

Mr. Burgess declared that he knew of the Culbertson incident referred to by Senator La Follette, but denied that it was as depicted by the Wisconsin Senator.

Vice Chairman Culbertson tonight declared that a statement made by Burgess purporting to give the facts as to the conference did not reflect his views.

"While the sugar case, in which I have acted as a Tariff Commissioner in a judicial capacity, remains undisposed of, I prefer to withhold comment concerning the conference to which I was summoned by Senator Smoot," Mr. Culbertson said. "If any public authority to which I am bound in law to respond requests a statement of the facts I shall furnish it.

"In the meantime interpretations of my conduct, such as that reported in this evening's papers from an interview with Tariff Commissioner Burgess, are not to be taken in explanation of the incident. He was not a participant in the conferences; he did not obtain his information from me. So far as I am aware, the only others present at the conference were those having a special interest in the domestic sugar industry."

Chairman Thomas O. Marvin of the commission and Commissioners Lewis and Glassie refused to comment on Senator La Follette's speech.

QUITS TO BE AN ELECTOR.

Major A. V. Brower of Utica Leaves the Army Reserve Corps.

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 28.—In order to guard against the possibility of being disqualified as a Presidential Elector for the Thirty-third Congressional District, A. Vedder Brower of this city has resigned his commission as Major in the Twelfth Army Corps of the Reserves. Major Brower submitted his resignation to take effect Nov. 3, but said he would apply for reinstatement in January, 1925, when his duties as an Elector will have been concluded.

Major Brower said his action was based on that clause in the law which says a Presidential Elector must not at the time of his appointment hold an office of trust or profit under the Government.

How to protect your family

1. If you die without a will, your property will be liquidated and distributed according to the laws of the State; your family will be involved in the intricacies of court procedure at the very time when such details are most distressing; and their inheritance may become the prey of inexperienced or unscrupulous persons.
2. Only by a will can you designate to whom your property shall go, preserve any part of it, such as real estate or a business interest, in existing form, and yourself appoint a capable executor to settle your estate.
3. But if your estate is distributed outright, who will guide your wife or other beneficiaries in the investment of principal so that it will be conserved and a steady income be assured? Records show that the average estate lasts only seven years.
4. By your will, you may not only insure safety of principal and income for your beneficiaries, but also may relieve them of the trouble and worry involved in the management of investments or real estate.
5. This can be accomplished by the creation of a trust fund by which you turn property over to a trustee to hold and manage for a beneficiary to whom the trustee makes fixed income payments.
6. This form of protection more and more is being employed by far-sighted business men to protect a widow against designing adventurers or her own inexperience; to assure separate income to a married daughter; to preserve a son's inheritance until he has arrived at the years of discretion; or to insure capable management for a business.
7. The Equitable is in the business of settling estates and conserving inheritances. We have been entrusted with some of the largest estates in New York; we welcome the duty of conserving modest estates. We can settle your estate and protect your family faithfully, wisely and economically.

Our booklet, "How to Protect your Estate and your Family," will be mailed upon request. But you are invited to come directly to any of our offices and talk with a trust officer—without obligation and in entire confidence.

COOLIDGE BELIEVES ELECTION ASSURED

He Is Making All His Plans on Basis of Remaining in White House.

WILL ANSWER NO CRITICS

President Holds That His Record Makes Replies to the Accusations Unnecessary.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—President Coolidge is confident of his election, according to a White House spokesman, who asserted today that the President was making all his plans on that basis.

With this statement from the White House came the information that the President had concluded his campaign and would not enter into any further discussion of the issues before election. Mr. Coolidge holds that he has set forth adequately his attitude on all the public questions of the day in the speeches he has delivered, and has nothing to add to what he already has said. The trend of events, the deluge of final week campaign attacks, it was said, would not induce the President to modify his views or reply to his detractors.

It also was said at the White House that the latest reports coming by wire from Chairman Butler and others were that the tide for the Republican Party was increasing as election day drew nearer. The President had been informed by Chairman Butler, it was said, that there was no doubt of his election and that indications were that his electoral vote might exceed 300, if the reports on doubtful States are verified in the election.

Chairman Butler informed the President that the weak spots in the West had disappeared and States favorable to La Follette weeks ago now were veering toward the Republican ticket, with Minnesota, Missouri and Maryland showing favorable Republican tendencies.

Will Not Reply to Criticisms.

In the last few days criticisms against the President and his Administration have been increasing. One of the last was the assertion that he had exacted a fee of $250 to make a memorial speech in Bridgeport, Conn., on May 27 last. Today Senator La Follette accused Senators of attempting to coerce the Tariff Commission from submitting its report to him on the reduction of the duty on sugar before election.

The attitude of President Coolidge on these two charges and others was seen in a declaration by a spokesman of the Administration that the President did not think it necessary to reply to the charges made against him and his Administration in the closing days of the campaign. He holds that his record and that of his Administration are such as to make it unnecessary to aid the opposition by answering petty charges and accusations, many of which, it is asserted, are baseless and made only for political effect.

Election returns will be received by the President over the White House wires, but he is hopeful that the radio in his study will bring him the news in advance of the telegraph.

The new Secretary of Agriculture will not be named until after election and there is a possibility, if Mr. Coolidge is elected, the place will not be filled until the new Cabinet is named. Those in the confidence of the Administration assert that there will be several changes in the next Coolidge Cabinet, if there is one. Three men expected to be asked to remain are Secretaries Hughes, Mellon and Hoover. The Cabinet members appointed by President Coolidge, Attorney General Stone and Secretary Wilbur, it is said, may reasonably expect to be invited to enter the new Cabinet. However, there is much opposition to them from powerful Republican advisers.

Callers on the President.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Seligman, Colonel and Mrs. Arthur O'Brien, Mrs. Henri F. Von Henkelon and Miss Katherine Von Henkelon of New York were among the President's callers today. The women in the party were presented with roses and signed photographs by the President.

Arrangements were made at the White House today for the visit on Friday afternoon of General Plutarco Elias Calles, President-elect of Mexico.

Half a hundred advertising men who are supporting the candidacy of Coolidge and Dawes will be guests at breakfast in the White House tomorrow morning.

SAYS DAVIS BENEFITS BY REPUBLICAN FUND

Mrs. Blair Banister Declares Housewives Realize They Are Footing the Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Mrs. Blair Banister, Vice Chairman of the Committee on Publicity of the Democratic National Committee, expressed the opinion today that John W. Davis would reap great benefits from "an abnormally large Republican campaign fund, without having to assume any of its obligations." The immediate effect of the slush fund disclosures, she said, had been to arouse American housewives to a realization that they rather than "the interests," are footing the bill.

"The Republicans may raise three millions, or ten millions, or fifty millions," said Mrs. Banister, "and yet it would represent but a fractional part of what that party has cost the people in inflated living costs due solely to the Fordney-McCumber tariff law, written into the statute books by the present Administration. Why, then, should not 'big business,' the beneficiary of this nefarious act, contribute until it hurts, if necessary, so long as there is a chance of keeping it there?

"The sugar trust alone could well afford to underwrite the entire campaign fund in repayment for what President Coolidge has done for it during the past few months.

"The Aluminum Company of America, owned largely by the Mellon brothers, one of whom is in President Coolidge's Cabinet, could likewise finance the Republican campaign out of excessive profits which it as enjoyed under the 'protection' of the Fordney-McCumber act, without feeling it.

"These are but two of a great many sources from which the Republican Campaign Committee may draw funds in unlimited amounts. So long as a party has privileges for sale there will never be a dearth of buyers in the market. This, more than anything else, explains why the Republican National Committee may exhibit a surplus while the Democratic National Committee faces a deficit. A Democratic Party has no privileges for sale.

"Women have not been studying the tariff and its relation to economic management of the home for the mere pleasure of having something to read. Nor are they unmindful of the fact that 'big business' does not make huge campaign contributions for the mere love of party. Their votes will undoubtedly be influenced by such contributions, but in a direction not contemplated either by Republican managers or contributors.

"If anything were needed to clinch the women's vote for John W. Davis, it would be the reports of $100,000 a day being raised in the interest of the Republican ticket."

AUTHORS SAY DAVIS IS HOPE OF WORLD

Committee of Prominent Writers State Reasons for Supporting Him.

DEPLORE OUR ISOLATION

Back Democratic Candidate Also as Opposed to Privilege and Paternalism.

An address to the electorate by a committee of American authors, giving their reasons for supporting John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for President, was made public yesterday by the Chairman, Melville Davisson Post. The address, which was signed by Meredith Nicholson, Henry van Dyke, Charles Dana Gibson, Irvin S. Cobb, Augustus Thomas, Robert Underwood Johnson and Brand Whitlock, in addition to Mr. Post, follows:

"We have determined to support John W. Davis for President of the United States and to give our reasons for this decision. We have faith in the basic conception of democracy. We believe it to be the most pliable form of government at present available to the universal need; a common working together of mankind. But it must be preserved in its simplicity and it must be administered with clean hands. If the purity of our form of democracy can be maintained the result should be an ideal State.

"We feel that this conception of government, fine and noble, ought not to be abandoned to either of the two destructive philosophies now urged on the electorate; that of privilege with its attendant moral degeneracy, and that of paternalism with its annihilation of individual initiative. For this reason we urge the election of John W. Davis as Chief Executive of the United States.

"But not for this reason only. No longer can any form of government be administered for the exclusive uses of a single State. Its policies must be considered in their relation to the whole world of living men. Its service to its own people must contain also an ultimate service to all. Every device, every ingenuity of invention and every disaster to men and human institutions serve to bring this profound truth the more clearly before us. The American Republic stands conspicuously out of the wreck of the world. The obligation on it cannot be rejected by any selfish disclaimer. Ours are the duties of the one who survives. Very nearly the whole of the human race must be withdrawn from confusion, encouraged to high endeavor and faced forward. The provincial policy of the Republican Party will not accomplish it. The vague devices of the lesser political parties will not accomplish it. For this immense endeavor the Democratic Party only under the leadership of John W. Davis is, we believe, the hope of the world."

In commenting on the address Mr. Post said that a very large number of men and women prominent in literature and the arts were members of the committee, although only the members of the directing committee signed the statement. Among these members are Katherine Fullerton Jerome, Ernest Poole, Samuel Hopkins Adams, Cora Harris, Ida Tarbell, Harrison Smith, Blanche Colton Williams, Harrison Smith Morris and Ray Stannard Baker.

UNION THREATENS COOLIDGE WORKER

Conductors' Order Asks Its Legislative Chairman to Resign His Office.

LATTER IGNORES LETTER

Official Objects to Partisan Efforts in View of Organization's Pledge to La Follette.

L. E. Sheppard, President of the Order of Railway Conductors of America, was revealed in a letter made public yesterday as having asked for the resignation of H. T. Drew of Boston as Chairman of the Massachusetts Legislative Committee of that organization because Mr. Drew is acting as a paid worker for President Coolidge for election, whereas Mr. Sheppard and the General Legislative Committee of the order have endorsed Senator La Follette.

At Republican national headquarters Mr. Sheppard's letter was characterized as "an act of intimidation worthy of the days of the feudal barons," and it was asserted that Mr. Drew had a perfect right to advocate the election of any candidate he chose.

Mr. Sheppard's letter follows:

ORDER OF RAILWAY CONDUCTORS OF AMERICA.
Cedar Rapids, Iowa.
Chicago, Ill., Sept. 26, 1924.

Mr. H. T. Drew, Chairman Legislative Committee, Massachusetts, 10 Abbott Street, Lawrence, Mass.

Dear Sir and Brother:

I am in receipt of information which appears to be authentic that you are not only on the stump and working in behalf of the Coolidge-Dawes ticket, but that you are on the payroll of the Republican committee. If that be true, you are going in opposition and in contradiction with the action of the General Legislative Committee and who by legal action and by the laws of the order endorsed La Follette.

The order does not say or attempt to dictate to any man how he shall vote, but it is manifestly unbecoming for a man occupying the position of State Legislative Chairman of the order to oppose the work being done by the General Legislative Committee and the President of the order.

Kindly advise me by return mail as to the correctness of the allegations regarding yourself; and if they are true I suggest that to be consistent you should resign your office as Legislative Chairman.

Yours fraternally,
L. E. SHEPPARD, President.

Copy to W. S. Stone, D. B. Robertson.

Joseph P. Macardle, Chairman of the Labor Bureau of the Republican National Committee, at 2 West Forty-sixth Street, said:

"Mr. Drew is a passenger conductor on the Boston & Maine Railroad, running out of Boston. For nineteen years he has served as Chairman of the Legislative Committee of his organization in Massachusetts. About Sept. 1 he was appointed as a field agent in support of President Coolidge under the Labor Bureau. He is on the payroll, of course. He does not assume to represent any organization except the Republican National Committee. Mr. Drew has been an admirer and personal friend of President Coolidge for many years, ever since the days when Mr. Coolidge was a member of the lower house of the State Legislature. Mr. Drew has not resigned as Legislative Chairman, nor has he replied to Mr. Sheppard's letter, as far as I know. He has taken the attitude that he is far too busy working for President Coolidge's election to pay any attention to this matter at present. He respects Mr. Sheppard's position as President of the order, and is willing to follow his instructions in the question of wages, collective bargaining, &c., but believes that as a free-born American citizen he is not obliged to follow Mr. Sheppard's instructions as to whom he shall support for President."

TO HASTEN MAIL BALLOTS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Postmasters were instructed today to exercise every care for prompt forwarding of election ballots where voting by mail is permitted.

Assistant Postmaster General Bartlett suggested in a circular letter that some voters might assume no postage was required, or might attach insufficient postage, and that in such cases postmasters should communicate with local election officials with a view to providing a means of prompt payments.

"It is needless to suggest," he added, "that all ballots by mail should be treated with the greatest care and expedition and absolutely no discrimination attempted."

SAY VETERANS LOSE VOTE.

California La Follette Men Wire Coolidge on Soldiers' Home.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—La Follette-Wheeler headquarters today made public a telegram to President Coolidge from John J. Hamilton and Harvey B. Garman, two of its California campaign officials, charging that Republican managers in that State were attempting to disfranchise soldiers in veterans' homes.

Asking the President to check the alleged tactics of his supporters, the telegram stated that veterans had been shifted from precinct to precinct in such a way that they would be prevented from voting in places where they had registered after fulfilling residence requirements.

"Speakers for La Follette have had difficulty getting a chance to address soldiers," it was added, "but Coolidge campaigners have had free access to them at all times."

Authors Join Coolidge League.

Booth Tarkington and Robert W. Chambers joined the Coolidge Non-Partisan League yesterday. Mr. Tarkington wrote to Colonel Rhinelander Waldo, President of the league, from Kennebunkport, Me., that he intended to leave soon for his home in Indiana so that he could vote the Republican ticket. Writing from Broadalbin, N. Y., Mr. Chambers said he was a non-partisan and would vote for Coolidge as "best qualified regardless of party affiliation."

Mellon Is Questioned by Walsh.

Practically no one was associated with him in his capacity as head of the Collections Committee in the Pittsburgh district, except Colonel Eric Fisher Wood, Mr. Mellon declared in beginning his testimony. He was busy on the details, which were handled by Mr. Wood, but he believed $26,000 of the $270,000 collected had gone to the County Committee, $150,000 to the National Committee and $70,000 to the State Committee. About 12,000 persons were solicited, he said.

"In 1923 the Gulf Oil Company, of which you are President, received large refunds," suggested Senator Shipstead.

"What we were entitled to," was the reply.

Mr. Walsh asked Mr. Mellon details of the capital stock and earnings of the various companies in which he was interested. These were: Gulf Oil Company, capital $106,000,000, earnings $160,000,000; Mellon National Bank, capital $6,000,000, deposits $125,000,000; Union Trust Company, capital $48,000,000, deposits $100,000,000; Standard Steel, capital $20,000,000, business $80,000,000; Union Savings Bank, capital $1,500,000, deposits $27,000,000.

Mr. Walsh endeavored to have Mr. Mellon designate on the contributors' list those who were allied with various corporations, but Mr. Mellon left this to Mr. Wood. The witness said he did not write letters in his campaign for money.

"Where was all this money to be used?" asked Mr. Walsh.

"I don't know; I never asked."

"Was it to be used in Western States?"

"I don't know, but I hoped it would be used in the best place."

"You are a great money raiser; you raise hundreds of thousands without letters?"

"You can gather more money by word of mouth," replied Mr. Mellon.

"It depends on who uses the words," countered Mr. Walsh.

Asked if he was "going to keep right on until election day" in raising money, Mr. Mellon said he was.

"Do you as a citizen think it is right to raise money without limit?"

Would Raise All Needed.

"I think there is a limit, but they may well raise all they need if they use it in the right way."

"Do you think $8,100,000 was too much in the Harding campaign?"

"I do not believe that amount was raised."

Under questions by Mr. Walsh, Mr. Mellon insisted that only what was "legally right" should be raised. He said he had confidence in Chairman Butler as to the use of the money.

"Are you aware that $3,451,000 has already been spent by the Republicans?"

"I don't know anything about it."

Asked by Mr. Kirkland if Democrats were not sometimes elected in Pennsylvania Mr. Mellon said:

"That's one of the troubles of our time."

"Do you know of a slush fund?"

"I positively do not, and I feel sure it's not true."

Senator Caraway wanted an explanation of what Mr. Mellon meant by "enough money to finance a campaign." Mr. Mellon replied: "I mean to win. I hope to get enough to operate a campaign in a lawful way."

"If would put a limit on a 'slush fund,'" he added, "that is, using money in the wrong direction or money gotten surreptitiously. I would consider a 'slush fund' was money without names attached and used surreptitiously."

Colonel Wood, who followed Mr. Mellon, said that about 600 or 1,000 names of possible contributors had been laid for personal solicitation, but only about 10 per cent. of these had responded. He never thought of the contributors as allied with any industries or interests, he stated. He spoke of a contribution of 10 cents.

"Does the 10-cent man appear on the lists?" asked Senator Caraway. "I'd like to see a Republican who considered his party was worth a dime."

"I got it from a little boy who said he was 6 years old, but not too young to help Coolidge," replied the witness.

"I think he's about the right age," commented the chairman.

Colonel Wood declared the Republican National Committee had been "meticulously careful," and had sent back checks from corporations, and had refused cash unless its donor was authenticated.

"I am convinced there is no 'slush fund' and I am an American before I am a Republican," said the witness. "I have not always been a Republican and I may not always be one."

A page of advertising in The Saturday Evening Post cost $7,000; a page in The Country Gentleman $2,800 to $3,000, Mr. Curtis testified when he took the stand. In reply to Mr. Walsh, he said $10,451 had been paid out for advertising in other papers, an article in The Country Gentleman entitled "Government Railroads versus Farm Taxes."

"This was spent out of corporate funds?"

"Yes," assented Mr. Curtis, adding that he did not know who actually wrote the article.

Mr. Walsh read from this article a quotation purporting to be from the Progressive platform and stating that that party declared for public ownership of railroads as "the only solution." Mr. Walsh then read the actual platform and challenged Mr. Curtis with the statement that the main part of the plank was omitted from the article and that the concluding words should have been "the only final solution."

"Do you justify the editor in leaving that out?" he asked, glaring at Mr. Curtis.

"I do."

"Would you not say the article was misleading?"

"Not misleading as a whole. I stand for it."

"You are a strong advocate of President Coolidge?"

"I am."

"You knew that much of the campaign money is being spent for advertising?"

"I have not seen much of it; I think there should be more."

Mr. Curtis agreed that what he had paid for advertising political stories in his magazines was his "contribution" in addition to $3,000 he had given to the Republicans. He said that $10,451 was spent in advertising the article alluded to; $3,575 for advertising another story and $17,000 for another, these all being in The Country Gentleman. Advertising an article by Samuel G. Blythe in The Saturday Evening Post cost $40,221.

"Do you know the Blythe article contains false and misleading statements?"

"I do not."

Published La Follette Article.

"Mr. La Follette wrote an article himself for which we paid him $1,000," stated Mr. Curtis during the examination.

Details of Mr. Harkness's testimony were that $3,390 was paid for broadcasting the Coolidge notification speech in addition to $325 paid by a Massachusetts station and $285 by a Chicago station. For the speech of Oct. 3 the charge was $8,550, this like the other speech being paid for by the National Committee. Secretary Hoover's speech of Sept. 29 was sent free, being regarded as non-political. Mr. Harkness understood the Heins pickle people paid $900 for broadcasting the Coolidge speech to their employees, which was paid to the Westinghouse Company and by them to the telephone lines.

For the Davis notification speech at Clarksburg the Democratic committee paid $1,000 and eight stations another $1,000. The speech of Sept. 1 cost $4,500; the speech of Sept. 6 at Davenport, Iowa, $900, and the Topeka speech of Sept. 13, $550. The sum of $9,000 was paid for loud speakers on the Davis train and $1,500 thus far to men to operate them. The Bryan notification speech cost $550.

La Follette's party paid $3,500 for his Washington notification speech, $1,295 for his New York speech and $400 for his Peoria speech. The Socialist Party, without funds, got a ten-minute service free.

J. Paul Warburg of the International Trust Company of New York said he had raised $25 as a member of the Bankers' Collection Committee. His father would contribute to the Democrats, he said. William T. Galliher of the Federal-American Bank of Washington said he had collected $36,636 out of a hoped-for $50,000 and would keep on trying.

Thomas W. White of Newton, Mass., and George F. Eliot, former members of a collection committee in that State, were examined by Mr. Walsh on a statement in a circular letter saying: "Large contributions will be so divided as to give full observance to the requirements of the statutes." Both disclaimed any intention of suggesting circumvention of the Massachusetts law which limits contributions to $1,000.

Donald Durant and John I. Mitchell of New York occupied the stand for a few minutes in testifying on collections. Irenee du Pont of Wilmington appeared but was excused until Samuel Untermyer returns from Chicago.

DRY LEAGUE OPPOSED TWO.

Error Is Corrected in Anti-Saloon Congress Campaign Report.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The report of the Anti-Saloon League to the Clerk of the House of Representatives covering expenditures in the Congressional campaign shows that $100 was spent in opposition to Representative Patrick B. O'Sullivan of Connecticut, and $...0 was spent in opposition to Representative J. Scott Wolff of Missouri.

It was erroneously reported yesterday that the Anti-Saloon League had spent sums in support of the candidacies of these two men. This error was due to the fact that the expenditures against Mr. O'Sullivan and Mr. Wolff were recorded in the body of a report showing expenditures in favor of the candidacies of twelve other candidates.

In the cases of Mr. O'Sullivan and Mr. Wolff the expenditures were reported as having been made for postage, literature and organization work. In the cases of candidates supported by the Anti-Saloon League, no contributions of money were reported. Expenditures were reported, however, for postage, printing and organization work and in some cases for the pay and traveling expenses of personal workers sent into the districts.

The report is described as an account of expenditures "to aid in the election of Congressmen opposed to, and to defeat candidates favorable to, the beer and wine nullification amendment to the National Prohibition Act."

Campaign contributions totaling $2,515 to the League were recorded in the same report, of which $2,442 was in sums of $100 or more.

LA FOLLETTE PLANK A PERIL, SAYS DAWES

UPHOLDS SUPREME COURT

Predicts Disaster if Judicial Power Is Subordinated to Congress.

By WILLIAM H. CRAWFORD.

"In this campaign the electorate of the United States, disregarding the dictates of the politicians, has selected the issue on which the outcome is to be decided: Shall our present form of government be preserved?" said General Charles G. Dawes in answer to the question, "What is the paramount issue of the campaign?"

"The major political parties in this campaign," he continued, "following custom, drafted platforms and the politicians prepared to electioneer on the issues presented by them—Government economy, the World Court, the League of Nations, tariff, taxation, &c. But these issues, each important and of far-reaching effect, have been subordinated in public attention because Robert M. La Follette, in an attempt to amalgamate all the organized forces in our citizenry opposed to the present order of things in our country, has launched an assault on our constitutional form of government with a proposal to strip the Supreme Court of its power to nullify the enactments of Congress, if contrary to the Constitution, and is striving by one blow to disrupt our present balanced form of government and to make Congress supreme.

"If so serious a menace to our system of government is involved, why have the politicians been so slow in combating LaFollettism?" he was asked. "You know that this stand is no new issue with Senator La Follette. He has been preaching it in the Senate for several years."

General Dawes was very emphatic as he replied: "For a long time political leaders and political platforms have been dodging fundamental issues which in his conscience the American citizen knows are now at stake."

"You have been making speeches all over the country on this subject. Do you find the people are with you?"

Calls Government Lax.

The General paused long enough to take his well-known pipe out of his mouth with his left hand and hit the table with a resounding whack before he answered:

"Faced with an abnormal condition in this country, which exists because of lax government, resulting in part from widespread demagoguery in legislative bodies and among those who are charged with the enforcement of law, patriotic Americans have now framed in their hearts and consciousness the great issues upon which they propose to fight, and fight if need be in defiance of the politicians. A people, like an individual, may for a time tolerate wrongful practices, but of nothing can we be more certain than that the American people have a conscience and will do right. This very attack upon the Constitution of the United States led by La Follette and the Socialists has caused a great reaction in public sentiment in support of a more rigid enforcement of law and order and behind the constitutional foundation of our great representative Government."

"General, just what are your charges against La Follette? What has he done and what has he proposed to which you so seriously object?"

"In Mr. La Follette's platform," replied the General, "he advocates 'abolition of the tyranny and usurpation of the courts, including the practice of nullifying legislation in conflict with the political, social or economic theories of the Judges.'" In his platform promulgated to the voters of Wisconsin he said: "We favor submitting to the people for their considerate judgment a constitutional amendment providing that Congress may, by enacting a statute, make it effective over a judicial veto." His proposition is, in effect, that no inferior Federal court be allowed to set aside an act of Congress on the ground that it is unconstitutional and that Congress may set aside the verdicts of the Supreme Court itself if it declares unconstitutional a law which Congress may have passed.

Would Upset Present System.

This proposition is to abrogate the principle of threefold division of power, executive, legislative and judicial, which is the basis of our Constitution, and make the executive and judicial power subordinate to the legislative power. It means that for our present form of government we are to adopt another in which Congress will predominate.

I asked the General what the results would be if the La Follette principles should triumph.

"The success of such a doctrine, which would mean that the Constitution would be stripped of authority, would be disastrous. Government would become the plaything of changing political parties, with demagogues in the saddle. Its effects likewise would be disastrous to the rights of the States, to which are reserved such rights of government as are not specifically delegated to the Federal Government by the Constitution. It would bring disaster to the happiness, prosperity and peace of the American people. If, in place of our stable constitutional government, under which we have lived for 135 years, we should establish a government by Congress, this would be practically equivalent to a government of free democracy, which history has proved is most futile and disastrous for the proper protection of the people.

"The bill of inalienable individual rights, the general recognition of which is the foundation of civilization, would under the La Follette proposition be at the mercy of Congress. It wickedly challenges the proposed purpose of every civilized Government to remove from the realm of public conflict those individual rights the reasonableness and the necessity of which have been demonstrated by warfare as old as the world, and to establish which the blood of untold millions has been shed.

Courts Guardians of Rights.

"The courts of the United States are the guardians of the inalienable rights of individuals, including the freedom of the press, the rights of property and religious tolerance. They interpret laws passed by Congress in relation to those rights upheld by the Constitution.

"What kind of a Government would this be if Congress had a right to pass a law taking property from one man and handing it to another, directing a man where he should go to church and undertaking to encroach upon other individual rights recognized by all civilization?"

"So you think the intelligent citizen is opposed to La Follettism?"

"As the enemies of the existing order of things group themselves for battle the average good citizen knows that the elemental principles for which his forefathers fought are at stake. He demands a strong leadership, standing on the Constitution and moving forward with law and order; common sense and high purpose to combat strong leadership tending toward disintegration. Our nation is asked to leave important constitutional moorings to embark again upon those contests which it has fought up to the establishment of good government. Through the War of the Revolution, through the Civil War and through the World War our people have struggled to establish and maintain our constitutional principles. They are asked to follow into an attack upon them, which, if successful, means confusion and conflict of ideas and ideals and the reopening of war upon those fundamental principles of human liberty which are giving in this country safety and opportunity to the humblest. This is the predominant issue of this campaign.

FIFTY REPUBLICANS TO SUPPORT DAVIS

Educators, Authors and Lawyers Among Those Swayed by League Issue.

ASSAIL ISOLATION POLICY

Everett Colby Gives Out Proclamation Condemning the "31" for Not Keeping Pledge.

Everett Colby, formerly a member of the Republican National Committee, made public yesterday a proclamation signed by fifty men and women who have usually supported the Republican ticket announcing their support of John W. Davis on the League of Nations issue. The statement called for all Republicans "who put world welfare above party politics" to vote the Democratic ticket this year. It denounced the Republican Administration for having repudiated Republican traditions of close relations with the rest of the world, and condemned the failure of Secretary of State Hughes, Secretary of Commerce Hoover and other members of "the Committee of 31" to live up to their pledge during the 1920 campaign. The statement follows:

We, the undersigned, who have usually supported the Republican ticket, have been trained in political tradition emphasizing the international responsibilities of America. From Lincoln to Roosevelt and Taft each successive Republican Administration has labored for a closer understanding among the nations of the world.

The present Republican Administration, first under Mr. Harding and now under Mr. Coolidge, has repudiated these traditions.

With Mr. Harding's knowledge, Mr. Hughes, Mr. Hoover and other preeminent Republican leaders (the so-called "Thirty-one") pledged the party unequivocally and specifically to the League of Nations with reservations. "Every consideration of good faith" bound the party, they declared, "to pursue such a course until the desired object was attained."

No sooner had Mr. Harding been elected, however, than he abandoned the "Thirty-one" and those who voted for him on their advice, and cast his lot with the bitter enders and isolationists of his party. He even refused to make the first step toward the establishment of that "Association of Nations" (terms never specified) which he assured the country was to take the place of the League.

Regret Isolation Policy.

Mr. Coolidge, who has succeeded him, says the question of American membership in the League is a "closed incident," and is running for reelection on a platform which declares the Republican victory four years ago was a repudiation of the League by the American people, although on Nov. 23, 1920, before he became President, he is on record as saying that the election did not register a vote against the League. In the meantime Messrs. Hughes and Hoover, the "best minds" in the Cabinet, have submitted without the slightest protest so far as the public is aware to the abandonment of the League by the Republican Party and the ignominious humiliation resulting from this repudiation.

War is the worst evil that exists on earth. The last war was the worst that has ever happened. The next, if permitted, will be immeasurably more horrible. During the late war every one agreed that it was imperative to adopt some measures to prevent its recurrence. The League of Nations resulted. Fifty-five nations have already joined the association, and now Germany announces she will be the fifty-sixth. That leaves outside only Ecuador, Mexico, Hedjaz, Tibet, Iceland, Afghanistan, Egypt, Turkey, Russia and, to her eternal shame, the United States of America.

National isolation has never till now been a Republican watchword. We regret this issue. But we cannot avoid it.

The question confronting us, therefore, is whether we shall accept this League or not, for the proposal to ask fifty-six nations to "scrap" the existing League, enter another peace conference and create a new "Association of Nations" under Republican auspices can no longer be taken seriously by even the bitterest bitterender.

Cites League Achievement.

In the five years of its existence the League of Nations has already demonstrated its usefulness.

It has prevented perhaps six wars.
It has created the World Court.
It has saved from bankruptcy Austria and Hungary, if not Europe, and will save Germany to world usefulness.
It has published over seven hundred treaties—some of them secret.
It has administered territories in the interest of their inhabitants and not exploited them.
It has inaugurated the movement to suppress opium.
It has prevented the spread of disease.
It has aided the spread of medical knowledge.
It has organized a campaign against white slavery and obscene publications.
It has succored Russian and Greek and Armenian refugees.
It has repatriated nearly half a million prisoners of war.
It has improved the condition of both those who labor with the hand and those who labor with the brain.

And now, to crown all, the Fifth Assembly for the first time in the annals of history is undertaking the problem of disarmament and the outlawry of war on a thoroughgoing basis.

All this and much more the League of Nations has done, in the four and one-half years of its existence. With American participation the League will become even more effective.

We want our country to stand first in the Councils of the Nations. We want our country to share fully in the great decisions now being made that are shaping the future of the world.

The Republican Party has had four years of trial. Its internationally-minded leaders cannot or will not lead. Not again shall we heed any "Thirty-one," assuring us that the Republican Administration, if reelected to office will restore to America her lost international prestige.

We urge, therefore, all Republicans who put world welfare above party politics to unite with us in voting for John W. Davis and for those Senatorial candidates who stand honestly and frankly for joining the existing League of Nations on such terms as shall comport with the duty, dignity and moral responsibility of the United States.

McADOO APPEALS FOR DAVIS.

In Talk at Albuquerque He Says Democrats Only Can Defeat Coolidge

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Oct. 28.—W. G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, talked for fifteen minutes to a large crowd at the railway station here today on his way to Los Angeles from Baltimore.

He declared that the campaign was a "three-ring circus," and that "privilege is chuckling in its sleeve" because it has divided the forces of Progressivism. He urged all Progressives to unite on one candidate—John W. Davis—"who is the only man who has a chance to defeat Calvin Coolidge."

"The fight, as we see it," said Mr. McAdoo, "is between the privileged and reactionary forces on the one side and the forces of progress on the other. The desire to control Government by the privileged classes is becoming stronger all the time. This desire has been more marked during the last four years than ever before. Whenever privilege tries to control Government it has a disintegrating influence upon the Government.

"We have had an example of corruption and privilege and if you want this privilege to continue vote for Coolidge."

TOMPKINS FOR ROOSEVELT.

New York University Professor a Lifelong Democrat.

Leslie J. Tompkins, Professor of Law at New York University, a life-long Democrat and formerly Vice President of the National Democratic Club, announced yesterday his intention of working and voting for Colonel Theodore Roosevelt for Governor. He had already come out for Coolidge and Dawes and resigned from the National Democratic Club.

Professor Tompkins said that it would break a life-long record for him to vote for a Republican Governor. His reasons for doing so, he said, were Governor Smith's failure to keep his promise of economy in Government; the Democratic Administration's attempt "to cure all the mental and physical ills of humanity, as well as all the economic ills" in welfare legislation; the increased taxes on land and other property, and Governor Smith's position on prohibition.

MILLS AND MORRIS DEBATE THE LEAGUE

Representative Defends Republicans' Refusal to Make 'Prior Commitments.'

OUR POLICY IS ATTACKED

Ex-Ambassador Declares It Is Evasive and Colored With Self-Centred Nationalism.

The American foreign policy was praised by Representative Ogden L. Mills and condemned by former Ambassador Roland S. Morris at a dinner of the Council on Foreign Relations in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel last night.

The dinner was attended by about seventy-five persons, and Hamilton Fish Armstrong, general manager of the council, presided. He called upon Mr. Mills to present "a Republican view" of the American policy.

"We Republicans," Representative Mills asserted, "are just as anxious to cooperate with the rest of the world in the solution of world problems as the Democrats—indeed, the whole record of this Administration in the foreign field is one of cooperation—but we are firm in our belief that effective cooperation does not necessarily imply prior commitments. We believe that the United States can better serve by maintaining her independence of action than by pooling her influence in advance.

Says Our Great Need Is Unity.

"These considerations have led us definitely to reject all idea of joining the League of Nations. Joining the League means a commitment to use our power and influence in unknown contingencies. It means involving the United States in political controversies in which it has no direct, and sometimes not even a remote, interest. It means the division of our own people on issues entirely foreign to our own welfare at a time when our greatest national need is unity. It would mean the adoption of a policy by the Government which could not command public support and which must therefore fail.

"We not only favor participation in international conferences, but it is quite apparent that we have no difficulty in participating where our interests are involved and where we can reasonably expect to join in agreements that may rise from such conferences. The Washington Conference for Limitation of Armament, the Pan-American Conference and the Central American Conference are good illustrations."

Mr. Morris, presenting "A Democratic View," asserted that the outstanding need in international relations today was some permanent organization for conference and accord to regulate the new international interests which result from the growing interdependence of the members of the society of nations.

Calls Our Policy Evasive.

The American foreign policy during the last three years, he said, had been an evasive policy, tending toward a self-centred and intensive nationalism, and it appeared now to be rapidly developing into a policy of direct antagonism to the aims and purposes of the League by supplying another and what seemed to him a discarded and discredited method of international cooperation.

"The greatest features of the Dawes plan," Mr. Davis asserted, "were worked out from the plan the League had set up for Hungary so, to say that private citizens did this is completely aside from the mark, for they didn't. They did it in conjunction with others in Europe and it was the Prime Minister of England after all and the Prime Minister of France who put it over."

Machinists' Head for Roosevelt.

Republican State headquarters yesterday received an endorsement of Colonel Roosevelt from E. C. Davison, General Secretary of the International Association of Machinists. Mr. Davison said that he had always found the Republican candidate for Governor, as Assistant Secretary of the Navy, "sympathetic to the best interests of labor."

ACCUSES DR. WORK OF DESPOILING INDIANS

Former Judge Charges Sale of Property at One-tenth Its Value, Says Democratic Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—In a statement authorized today by the Democratic National Committee it is said that Dr. Hubert Work, Secretary of the Interior, is charged by Hugh Murphy, former County Judge of Okmulgee County, Okla., with complicity in a transaction alleged to have deprived two Oklahoma Indian wards of the Government of their estates, valued at several hundred thousand dollars. Judge Murphy, the Democratic Committee says, is a Republican.

In addition it is said that W. W. Prior, an attorney of Holdenville, Okla., has written a letter asserting that "Secretary Fall is all his infamy, Daugherty in his disgrace and Denby in his incompetence never perpetrated a fraud more damnable, more daring or more cold-blooded than was perpetrated on Martha and Saber Jackson," the two Indians whose estates were involved in the transaction under discussion. The Democratic Committee statement in part reads:

"Judge Murphy charges that the Bureau of Indian Affairs, after refusing to accept an offer of $300,000 for the property of Saber Jackson, later allowed settlement of the estate to be made on payment of only $50,000, or one-sixth the sum it had refused, and the adjustment of the estate of Martha Jackson for $70,000, paid to her attorneys and a guardian, who, Judge Murphy alleges, was illegally appointed.

"Judge Murphy's signed statement about the settlement of the property of these two wards of the Government follows:

"'The estates of these two incompetent Indians, by reason of accumulation of oil royalties, have amounted to hundreds of thousands of dollars in value. After years of litigation, involving numerous lawsuits in State and Federal courts, the final settlement of the amounts finally due these Indians was presented squarely to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Charles H. Burke.

"'In the case of Saber Jackson an offer was made of $300,000. Commissioner Burke, at the time the offer was made, declined to accept it on the ground that it was insufficient. Later, to our astonishment, we find Commissioner Burke authorizing his friend W. L. Mott to settle the same Saber Jackson case for the sum of $50,000, a sum out of all proportion to its true value—a transaction which is appalling to one who is acquainted with values in Oklahoma.

"'That such a thing was done was actually admitted by Commissioner Burke at a public hearing before the Secretary of the Interior, Hubert Work, on March 24, 1924.

"'A consideration of the full import of this act amounts to this: Saber Jackson was just simply robbed of $250,000. And what about Martha Jackson? We find at the same hearing and on the same date the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Mr. Burke, admitting that he authorized the payment of approximately $70,000 to to attorneys and to a guardian whom the courts have declared illegally appointed. And in a feverish effort to lend a semblance of respectability to this illegal payment the Commissioner is now seeking to have the Supreme Court of Oklahoma withdraw its mandate, already spread on the record, declaring this guardian illegal.

"'What a pitiful spectacle by a representative of an arm of the Government devoted to the "protection" of its Indian wards! He adds that this is but one of many similar cases of which there have been many in Oklahoma.

"Judge Murphy explains that under the law the estates of full-blood incompetent Indians in Oklahoma are administered by the County Courts of that State (and he has served as County Judge of Okmulgee County), cooperating with the Department of the Interior, the latter being in nearly all cases the custodian of the funds belonging to the Indian wards, whether arising from oil royalties, as have made so many Indians in Oklahoma wealthy, or from other sources. The Department of the Interior thus exerts a stewardship over the Indian wards, and if they are wrongfully deprived of their rights the responsibility is with the Department of the Interior, just as it would be with any guardian of a ward appointed by a State court.

"Mr. Pryor, commenting on the statement of Judge Murphy, writes that it is 'the truth' and that he detailed the same facts to the Secretary of the Interior."

REGISTRATION FRAUD BY 85 IS CHARGED

Honest Ballot Association Is Investigating Complaints and Will Press Cases.

PLANNING FOR ELECTION

Organization Will Have Staff of Lawyers and Watchers Ready to Aid Voters.

Nathaniel J. Palser, Acting Secretary of the Honest Ballot Association, said yesterday that the association had received complaints of eight-five cases of alleged illegal and fraudulent registration. He said that an investigation was being carried on at that by Friday he may be able to lay evidence before the District Attorney.

"Seven Assembly districts are involved," he said. "There are six in Manhattan and one in Brooklyn. We have received complaints of an alleged wholesale act of fraud involving fifty alleged illegal registrations in the Eighth Assembly District. The other complaints are scattering, dealing with thirty-five cases in the First, Second, Fourth, Fifth and Tenth Assembly Districts, Manhattan, and the Sixth Assembly District, Brooklyn. The First, Second and Fourth Assembly Districts, Manhattan, are districts in which there has been trouble over registration in previous election years.

"We will present all clear-cut cases of fraud to the District Attorney for Grand Jury action. In cases where there is a question whether the person registering had a right to register in the district or not, we will not prosecute, but will simply challenge the voter on election day.

"The complaints come from various sources, including rival political leaders in a district where one side is accused of fraud; public-spirited citizens who, for example, notify that a person does not live in the house from which he has registered, and so on. One of the complaints states that an address given by registrant is a building used wholly for factory purposes."

Mr. Palser also told the plans of the Honest Ballot Association to insure an honest vote and an honest count on election day.

"On election day," he said, "we will have fifty or sixty lawyers at our headquarters, 27 West Forty-third Street. We have already been instructing voters, through a large Committee on Education, whose members have been addressing groups of voters on how to prevent fraud and how to detect signs of irregularities on the part of the district captains or the election officials. We have supplied these voters with our telephone number and have instructed them to telephone us immediately they see anything wrong. Our regular watchers will also be on guard at the polls for the same purpose."

BACKS COL. ROOSEVELT.

Anti-Saloon League Praises His Stand on Enforcement.

The Board of Directors of the Anti-Saloon League of New York at a meeting yesterday adopted resolutions approving Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's stand on prohibition enforcement and charging Governor Smith with responsibility for failure to enforce the law. The resolutions said, in part:

"As a result of conferences between the Republican State leaders and representatives of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, Theodore Roosevelt, Republican candidate for Governor, has clarified the whole situation by giving positive assurance that he favors a State enforcement law extending full power to the officials of the State, whether these officers be State, county or municipal, to discharge their responsibility to enforce prohibition. The alternative is perfectly clear. The believers in law should have no difficulty in arriving at a choice."

BRITISH VOTE TODAY IN GENERAL ELECTION

we can make a 'red letter day.' The Red plot may be dead, but the red letter day is in front of us."

Speaking later, the Prime Minister again referred to the Zinoviev letter, and said:

"I have today had some further information about it. I am informed, on authority that is good certainly, an authority which is serious and reliable—that four days before the Foreign Office knew of the existence of the Zinoviev letter it was discussed in a certain club in London, and that those who discussed it were in a state of great jubilation 'that the thing would come off.'

"As I said, I have come to no conclusion at all. I am entertaining suspicions."

Asked definitely whether the Red plot letter was a forgery, Mr. MacDonald replied:

"As I have said, I have come to no conclusion, but I have a suspicion."

Thomas Calls Red Letter a Forgery.

The Colonial Secretary, J. H. Thomas, speaking in Derby tonight, made it clear that the Government has no intention of resigning before the reassembling of Parliament. He said:

"Whatever the result of the election may be, we are going to face Parliament as a Labor Government; we are going to prepare our King's speech, and then you will find a very interesting situation.

"The Liberal Party, which is supposed to stand for progress and free trade, has already intimated that it is going to put the Labor Government out of office."

If Mr. Thomas is correct, this procedure will be similar to that which marked the end of the Conservative Government at the beginning of the year. Mr. MacDonald will meet the House of Commons as Prime Minister on Nov. 18, and the rest of the week will be occupied with the election of a Speaker and swearing in of members. On the following Monday, Nov. 24, the Labor Government will present the King's speech, in which its policy will be set out. This follows the Baldwin procedure, and it is generally assumed that the analogy will be carried one step further and that a vote of "no confidence" in the Government will be carried by the other two parties, upon which Mr. MacDonald will tender his resignation.

Mr. Thomas also referred to the Zinoviev letter, which he accepted as a forgery. He said "a mean and contemptible fraud had been perpetrated, for no other reason than to attempt to ruin the first Labor Government." He said it was known now that the so-called Russian plot document was a forgery.

"I am one of those," proceeded Mr. Thomas, "who have always defended the civil service. I have never hesitated to say that loyal devotion and good service have been rendered to us, but I shall want to know immediately I get back to London, and the Cabinet will also want to know, how it comes about that a document is in the hands of the newspapers and not even in the hands of Cabinet Ministers."

Mr. MacDonald's reference yesterday to the conduct of the Foreign Office in the matter of the reply to the Zinoviev letter was followed today by rumors of the resignation of high officials of that Government department. No resignations, however, have taken place. The Foreign Office staff is stated to be satisfied that their conduct throughout has been above suspicion, and they await with confidence the inquiry which is regarded as certain if the Conservatives form the next Government.

Curzon Defends Foreign Office.

Former Foreign Secretary the Marquis Curzon of Kedleston in a speech today declared Mr. MacDonald was guilty of a shabby trick in throwing the blame for the disclosure of the Zinoviev letter on the Foreign Office officials.

From his own experience at the Foreign Office Lord Curzon said he knew that no minor official there would dare to issue a letter of importance on any subject unless it was first approved by the Foreign Secretary. He also knew that when the Foreign Secretary had approved a document and sent it back that was an instruction to the officials to publish, and therefore the official at the Foreign Office did only what he was told to do, what he was bound to do.

To attempt to turn around now and pretent, as Mr. MacDonald was doing, that the letter may be a hoax, a forgery, a political plot, was not only inconsistent with his own action but was a "dirty trick" to play upon his own subordinates, Lord Curzon said.

The following statement was issued from Liberal headquarters in London today:

"In his speech at Port Cawl yesterday Mr. Ramsay MacDonald said, 'The whole of that manganese field in the Caucasus has gone to an American firm, the other day they got one of the richest manganese fields in the whole world.'

"This is an extraordinary argument to use on behalf of a Russian treaty, for the Government decided some years ago that they would not recognize the Soviet Government of Moscow, and they have firmly adhered to that decision. There is no need for an agreement between two Governments and a guarantee loan to enable the Nationals of any country to make an agreement with Moscow in respect of concessions, for manganese or anything else.

"It is believed that Mr. Harriman, an American citizen who is reported to have obtained a concession from Moscow for the exploitation of manganese ore fields in the Caucasus, has had to pay an enormous sum of money on signing the contract, and in return obtains a monopoly. Presumably there was no British capitalist who thought the risk good enough. It is interesting that the Ferman interests, who had invested large sums of money in manganese mines in the Caucasus, are urging their Government to take diplomatic action to prevent confiscation by Moscow of their property. If the facts are as stated by the Prime Minister, there is no argument in them in favor of a Russian treaty."

Third Parliament in Two Years.

LONDON, Oct. 28 (Associated Press).—The people of Great Britain will provide themselves tomorrow with their third Parliament within two years. What kind of a Parliament it will be after the votes of the nation are counted no prominent politician or political observer has been audacious enough to predict publicly. That the Labor Government will go the way of all Governments seems, however, to be the opinion held almost everywhere; but some of the Laborites still appear confident that their party will obtain a mandate to remain in office.

Whether the Conservatives can recoup their losses of a year ago and return to the House of Commons with a majority over all other parties, and thereby put themselves into office without the assistance of the others, is a question no one has any means of determining or even reasonably forecasting until the returns come in.

The whole pre-election political situation has been made utterly uncertain by the eleventh-hour bursting of the "Russian bombshell," with an effect on the electorate that cannot be gauged at all. Until this "Red letter" gave the campaign orators a real live wire topic to talk about the electorate were an apathetic air, and it was rather the general expectation that the three parties would return to Westminster in the same relative positions they held numerically when the last Parliament's life ended—the Conservatives first, Labor second and the Liberals third—with the Conservatives lacking a clear majority.

That the Liberal strength in Parliament is on the wane seems to be the opinion of both Tory and Socialist chieftains.

"The Liberals are perishing," said Lord Birkenhead to one of his audiences this afternoon. Lord Birkenhead is a Unionist.

Say Red Plot Is Exploded.

Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, almost at the same hour told his hearers that there would never be a Liberal Government, and tonight the Prime Minister, Ramsay MacDonald, said the only alternative to a Labor Government was a Conservative Government.

On the other hand, former Premiers Asquith and Lloyd George, as leaders of the Liberals, have given no sign of lack of confidence in their speeches in their constituencies.

Most of the newspapers are seeing "red" since the Russian issue has changed from a plain, commonplace question about a treaty to a fiery squabble over a revolutionary letter. Some of them appear unable to handle it dispassionately or impartially, even in the news columns, while so far as headlines and editorials go the majority appear to be intended to stir up righteous indignation in the voter's breast.

The Secretary for War, Stephen Walsh, declared to his election audience that the Russian bombshell was a fraud from beginning to end, adding:

"As will be admitted within a day or two."

As the hour approaches for polling, the last vestiges of any domestic issue in the campaign steadily diminish. There is little talk of housing, little about protection and free trade, almost none about unemployment, although nearly a million and a quarter men are registered as without work. This time there is no irate Irish issue, but there is a red-hot Russian one.

George Bernard Shaw, in a speech at Luton last night asked the crowd if they had ever noticed how extraordinarily clever the old governing classes in this country were in always preventing an English election from being fought on an English question.

The Socialist oracle expressed the opinion that the real policy of the old ruling classes was to leave things exactly as they were, and he explained:

"If you want to leave things as they are you must get people excited about something else."

Tomorrow night it is likely that more people than ever before will show vast excitement over the election returns. There is, of course, a larger electorate than ever, due to woman suffrage, and there will be some excitement, too, in the little village hamlets, out of reach from telephone and telegraph communication, but not out of from the radio. The returns will be broadcast until 1 o'clock the following morning.

Fifty-two members of the Soviet mission left London suddenly for the Continent on Sunday, according to The Daily Telegraph. The reason for the migration is unknown, the paper adds, but the party is believed to have included a number of Bolshevist agitators.

Geddes Assails Labor.

Sir Auckland Geddes, former Ambassador at Washington, delivered a speech in the South Side, London, tonight. He confined himself largely to foreign affairs and declared that the Labor Government had built up a bad record. While carrying out their part to help Germany, he said, they had failed to play a part which would help the British workingman.

He attacked the Russian loan, which, he said, the British would "have the pleasure of paying back later on."

He declared that the Labor Government had Russia on the brain, and added:

"I am altogether in favor of trade with Russia, but I do not want to go to Russia to learn what freedom is. We require a Government which will, first and foremost, look after peace, as it is only in peace that British trade can proceed.

LADY ASTOR TALKS IN RAIN.

Great Crowds Stand in Downpour to Hear Her on Election Eve.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PLYMOUTH, Oct. 28.—The eve of the polling in the Sutton division here was marked by great activity despite a drenching rain. Everywhere crowds stood in the downpour to give Lady Astor a welcome, for the rooms in which her meetings were held were not large enough to hold all who wished to hear her final message. She said:

"England is looking at Plymouth, as she always has and always will look, if I have my way."

A little later, when she stood in the rain and addressed several thousands of people outside the Conservative Club, Lady Astor asked her audience to show that the West Country wanted a policy of progress and not just a vote of personality.

Lord and Lady Astor are confident as to the result of the poll, but Lady Astor says she wants to give the Socialists such a thrashing that they will never come in again. Late last night a large crowd escorted her car to her residence on the Hoe.

AUSTRALIA WANTS A VOICE.

Premier Bruce Demands Share in Empire's Foreign Policy.

BRISBANE, Australia, Oct. 28.—Australia desires to exercise the right of consultation in regard to the foreign policy of the British Empire, according to a speech delivered here today by Prime Minister Bruce. Australia, moreover, desires to steer that policy toward insuring world peace, Mr. Bruce said.

"There are at present two main Empire questions," the Prime Minister declared: "the status of the self-governing Dominions within the Empire, and defense of the Empire as a whole. Each Dominion incurs obligations, but reaps the greater benefits. The sentiment of the Australian people would never allow them to accept any proposal to cut the painter, seeing that 60,000 of her sons paid the supreme sacrifice in the great war, because they believe in their own country and in the Empire.

"From a practical standpoint it is impossible for Australia to become independent, as with its present population and limited resources financially it could not maintain itself except as part of the Empire.

"The Australian people are determined to maintain the 'white Australia' policy at all costs. Such policy is not based on any racial prejudice, but on fundamental economic principles."

WADSWORTH SEES ROOSEVELT VICTORY

Says Up-State Vote Will Overcome Expected Smith Majority in This City.

MAKES ATTACK ON 'ISMS

Declares Country Is Suffering From the Actions of Selfish Minorities.

Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr., who had much to do with Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's nomination for Governor, predicted at a Republican rally in the home of Oscar S. Straus, 5 West Seventy-sixth Street, yesterday afternoon, that Colonel Roosevelt would come down to the Bronx with a record majority, which should surpass the expected Smith majority in New York City.

"I have never seen the Republican Party in better shape in New York State than it is today," he said. "We have never had such campaign meetings as in the last four weeks."

After citing Colonel Roosevelt's war record as an example of "qualities of leadership in time of military stress which fit him for leadership in time of political stress," Senator Wadsworth went on:

"And as to his administrative and executive qualities, seldom has a political party had a candidate for Governor in this State who has had greater administrative experience. As Assistant Secretary of the Navy for three years Colonel Roosevelt had charge of the navy yards and stations in which battleships and all cruisers, submarines, &c., are built, equipped and rebuilt. In addition to skilled officers, electricians and 30,000 mechanics there are many others whom he was called upon to supervise. If the Assistant Secretary of the Navy fails down, the fleet cannot keep the high seas. It is a matter of common knowledge that not in a generation has this job been so well done as in the last three years."

Senator Wadsworth attacked bloc control at Washington and Albany.

"This country," he said, "is suffering from blocs, minorities and groups made up of persons seeking personal advantage. The only way to have satisfactory government is to have a responsible majority to centre authority."

Sarah Schuyler Butler, Vice Chairman of the Republican State Committee, and daughter of Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, said that the biggest issue in the State campaign was to free the State Government from Tammany control.

In Poughkeepsie Speech He Predicts End of 'Coolidge and Chaos' —Charges Evasion on Issues.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Lieut. Governor George R. Lunn spoke here tonight on the purpose of the fund being raised by the Republicans. He denounced the silence and evasion of the President and asserted that Theodore Roosevelt was the "pliable messenger boy of the Old Guard oligarchy" and too servile and incompetent to be Governor of New York.

"When voters who are entitled to know ask Calvin Coolidge how he stands on Mellon's aluminum tariff, the World Court or reducing the cost on sugar," Mr. Lunn said, "all we get in reply is that he favors parking privileges in Washington, that he hardly favors violin-making in this country and, as regards reducing the cost on sugar, he insists that we see Mr. Hodges, Treasurer of the National Republican Committee, who is the chief counsel for the beet sugar interests in the West.

"When the voters of New York State, who are entitled to know, ask Mr. Roosevelt how he would save the State's money or preserve Governor Smith's welfare measures, including the eight-hour bill for women in industry, he comes out for the Plattsburg Training Camp or the song 'Over There.'"

Ascribing the Third Party to the open revolt of forward-looking Republicans of the West against "an old and corrupt machine owned and controlled, body and soul, by the privileged tariff profiteers," Mr. Lunn continued:

"Alarm and despair have struck the precious tariff interests who run the Republican machine. Butler and Hughes and Dawes are out beating up the bushes all over the country trying to frighten the voters. They shout about a revolution, a reign of anarchy and of hunger and famine as an impending doom unless the voters rush to the polls next Tuesday and cast their votes for Coolidge.

"The way to have chaos, corruption and consternation in Washington is to vote for Coolidge. The way to end it all with a safe and sane leader, a calm and broadminded executive, the admitted best man for President, is to vote for John W. Davis. You can never make progress and restore sanity, honesty and capacity by voting for Coolidge. He had his chance. He failed. He is hopeless.

"The sun is setting on the worst Administration in the nation's history.

"If you want a final picture of Coolidge and chaos read today's papers. The whole Coolidge Administration is in uproar on the income tax reports. Somebody bungled again. Nobody knows what to do. The President is silent. No leadership, no direction, no balance. Can government endure under such uncertainty? The bulwark of government is public confidence. How can any man have confidence in such a record?"

LABOR ENDORSES STRAUS.

Central Council Reports Senator's Record as 100 Per Cent.

State Senator Nathan Straus Jr., candidate for re-election on the Democratic ticket in the Fifteenth Senatorial District, has received the endorsement of the Central Trades and Labor Council of Greater New York and vicinity, it was announced yesterday. This action followed a similar endorsement by the New York State Federation of Labor. In commenting upon the action of the Council, Joseph P. Ryan, Chairman of its Non-Partisan Committee, said:

"Our endorsement of Senator Straus was based on analysis of his record, which was 100 per cent. favorable on labor legislation at the last session of the Legislature."

Another endorsement of Senator Straus was from Miss Mabel Choate, daughter of the late Joseph H. Choate, former Ambassador to Great Britain. "I am delighted to know that you are a candidate for re-election to the State Senate," Miss Choate wrote, "and I hope very much that you will be successful, for I am sure you deserve to be after your great usefulness."

Photograph New Heavenly Body.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—A new heavenly body, believed to be an asteroid—a small planet—has been photographed by the Yerkes Observatory of the University of Chicago at Williams Bay, Wis., according to Professor E. B. Frost, director. It is invisible to the naked eye. The photographs have disclosed the body is not a comet, as though by Dr. Baade, a German astronomer, who first sensed it, Professor Frost said. He estimated its diameter at less than fifty miles.

HUGHES IN CHICAGO PROMISES PROSPERITY

Asserts That La Follette Aims to Destroy the Government by His Court Program.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28 (Associated Press).—Secretary Hughes, in a campaign speech here tonight, told a large audience that "the best assurance of prosperity in this country is to secure on Nov. 4 the election of Calvin Coolidge."

Devoting a large part of his address to a consideration of the La Follette-Wheeler platform the Secretary of State placed emphasis upon what he described as "the most dangerous aim of the Independent Party—its attempt to destroy our system of government by its assault upon the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court in the interpretation of the Constitution."

"The question, then," he said, in summing up this point, "is whether we desire to maintain our system of government; whether we wish to have any constitutional limitations."

Secretary Hughes lauded the course of the present Administration in fiscal affairs and in foreign relationships, and for its "determined attack upon the cost of government."

"The most important of all undertakings of the Republican Administration," he said, "has been its determined attack on the cost of government."

Touching upon economic proposals contained in the campaign declarations of the Third Party nominees Secretary Hughes said:

"You cannot have progress without the security and expansion of enterprise. The extreme radicals have never been able to understand why they could not have the golden eggs after the goose was killed. The dictatorship of the proletariat is the effort to distribute eggs that are no more."

In his reference to foreign affairs the Secretary declared:

"Senator La Follette says that our diplomacy is secret and imperialistic. It is neither. We have no secret diplomacy in this country in the ordinary sense of the term, as treaties must be submitted to the Senate. * * * The Department of State is always ready to give information to any Senator who will take the trouble to come to the Department to get it.

"It is charged that this Government is engaged in negotiating concessions for our citizens. This is untrue. We maintain the principle of the open door, or equality of commercial opportunity, to the end that our citizens shall not suffer unjust discriminations but shall have the fair opportunity to which they are entitled. With this opportunity they make their own contracts on their own terms.

"The principle of the open door is a historic American principle. It is not to benefit any particular interests, whether in oil or anything else. The principle of the open door is essential to American interests, and we propose to maintain it, as we have maintained it, by honorable and impartial application.

"Senator La Follette has said two or three times lately that he would take our troops out of Santo Domingo. Our troops have been taken out of Santo Domingo. This has been publicly announced, although the fact does not seem to have reached Senator La Follette."

Taking cognizance of John W. Davis's attacks upon Republican foreign policy, Secretary Hughes asked what the Democratic Party proposes in regard to the League of Nations.

"It is constantly apparent that the centre of attack by our opponents of the Democratic Party with respect to foreign relations is that this Government has not joined the League of Nations," he said. "This is the head and front of our offending. What does the Democratic Party propose? When the question arose at the Democratic Convention the Democratic Party ran to cover."

ASKS PARTY WORKERS TO GET OUT BIG VOTE

Butler Tells Republicans Victory Depends on Having Voters Go to the Polls.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—William M. Butler, Republican National Chairman, called upon Republican workers throughout the country today to make a house-to-house canvass of voters in order to get out a big vote.

"We have arrived at the most crucial point in the Presidential campaign," said Mr. Butler. The last six days before the national election are the most important. It is then that the great work of seeing that a full vote is cast must be done.

"Citizens of the country have made up their minds. We believe, of course, they intend to elect Calvin Coolidge as President. Issues have been discussed. They have been clear-cut.

"But all of the campaigning, all of the activity of the last three months will be of little avail if a large vote is not cast.

"State Chairmen, County and Precinct Committeemen, all the men and women who have been working so ardently for Republican success are urged to redouble their efforts. The time is now short. But there are the days when house-to-house canvasses must be made. Everyone interested in electing Calvin Coolidge as President on next Tuesday should make it his chief business to help swell the vote.

"We fully believe a big vote will be cast. We count upon it. But we cannot relax our efforts. So the one message we have for Republican workers throughout the country is to keep up the fight. Victory will then be ours."

TO EXTEND SPAN OF LIFE.

Commissioner Monaghan Sets Aside Health Mobilization Day.

Frank J. Monaghan, Commissioner of the Department of Health, issued a call yesterday to fifty of the leading social and health agencies engaged in health work in the Bellevue-Yorkville district in Manhattan, in which it was announced that Nov. 14 has been set aside for a "health mobilization day" in that district.

With the aid of funds made available by the Milbank Memorial Fund, an attempt is to be made to test the assertion that twenty years can be added to the present average span of life, to which thesis the American Public Health Association recently has dedicated itself.

"Leading public health authorities," said the Commissioner, "agree that in the next fifty years at least twenty years can be added to the average length of human life.

"In New York City fifteen years have been added to the life span in the past fifty. Moreover, the gains in the length of life have been greater in the last twenty years than in any previous fifty."

Grand Jury Investigates Registration—Hears C. L. Apfel.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Oct. 28.—Charles L. Apfel, who brought some of the charges resulting in the trial and conviction of former Mayor William H. Reynolds of Long Beach, was a witness today before the regular Nassau County Grand Jury. The Grand Jury in investigating reports of illegal registration in Long Beach.

Special Deputy Attorney General Spence, who has been conducting the Extraordinary Grand Jury inquiry into governmental affairs in Nassau County, said today he had been served with a motion returnable tomorrow before Supreme Court Justice Hagarty in Brooklyn. Counsel for Will F. Phillips, recently indicted Nassau County police chief, seeks to inspect the minutes of the Grand Jury which returned the indictments.

WHEELER ASKS AID OF MICHIGAN VOTERS

He Tells Them the Republicans Cannot Buy the State for Coolidge and Dawes.

CHARGES PARTY COERCION

But Insists "Big Interests" Will Not Keep Progressives From the Polls This Year.

Special to The New York Times.

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 28.—Senator Wheeler began a fighting campaign in Michigan today by telling the voters of Jackson and Lansing that he was confident the Republicans would be unable to buy the State for Coolidge and Dawes as they once bought it for Newberry.

"You people of Michigan," he said, "not so many years ago, allowed Michigan money to vote itself into the United States Senate. You allowed yourselves to sleep through a political campaign unmindful of the issues at stake. You received a rude awakening, and I am not the one to say you did not deserve it.

"But you did awaken and, from every report that comes to us now, you have remained awake. There is every reason to feel certain that Michigan folk are voting this year with their eyes open, and, that being true, friends of honest government have nothing to fear as to the result in this State.

"President Coolidge, hiding in the White House, and Banker Dawes, screaming from the housetops, are doing more this year to make the Progressive movement successful than all the Progressive orators that have taken the stump. They illustrate the issue that confronts the American people. They reveal the only defense that can be ofefred of the system of Government which they represent. One defense is clammy silence, the other is a noisy attempt to distract the people's attention from the real questions at stake to fake issues concerning the United States Constitution, a document which, I am firmly convinced, my tub-thumping opponent never has read."

Wheeler Draws Big Audiences.

Most of the territory Senator Wheeler covered today is counted safely in the Republican column, but the Senator drew big audiences and his attacks upon the Administration were applauded loudly.

Progressive leaders told Senator Wheeler there were large numbers of business men and workers who were with the La Follette movement, but who admitted that they did not dare come out in the open because they were afraid big business interests would frown upon them or they would lose their jobs.

Many stories are heard in this part of Michigan about methods employed by some of the big business interests to intimidate employes and business men who wanted to get out and work for La Follette. Senator Wheeler was asked to emphasize this phase of the campaign and did so, alleging that the same tactics were being employed in many parts of the country where he had campaigned. He predicted that on election day the masses of the workers would give their answer to such tactics by overthrowing the Republican ticket and electing La Follette.

"I say this in complete confidence as to the decision at the polls next Tuesday," the Senator declared. "This is the period occurring in every national campaign when campaign managers endeavor to win by announcing they already have won. If one were to accept the statements and predictions to be found this week in all the reactionary newspapers there would be no need whatsoever to go through the form of voting.

"A month ago, or six weeks ago, these newspapers solemnly assert, Senator La Follette really needed to obtain a tremendous vote and to carry a number of States, but now they say that since that time La Follette's strength has waned and the people are going to vote their old party tickets. They proceed further to deduce from this that, since there are more old party Republicans than old party Democrats, Mr. Coolidge will be retained in the office he has so signally failed to fill."

Tells of Progressive Gains.

Political figuring of this kind, Mr. Wheeler said, was not applicable to the conditions faced today, as the Progressive movement had been growing until it had reached the point where the people were prepared to express themselves against a Government that had exploited them.

"The strength of the Progressive movement this year," said Senator Wheeler, "does not result from the campaign that Senator La Follette has made. It goes much deeper. It is the accumulation of all the years in which the voice of the people in national affairs has been smothered by the voice of selfish business interests."

In Jackson and in Lansing, as in so many other communities of the Middle West and Far West, much talk is heard of the apathy of the Democratic campaign and the efforts of Democratic nominees for minor offices to work with the Progressive Party. Political observers here generally concede Michigan to the Republican cause. The speculation is about which party will run second.

Senator Wheeler will continue his campaign at Flint, Mich., tomorrow and then go on to Ohio.

J. B. BREEN KILLS HIMSELF.

Son of Long Island Railroad Official Lost Health in War.

John Bailey Breen, son of John E. Breen, Assistant Chief Engineer of the Long Island Railroad, killed himself early yesterday morning in the family apartment in Kew Terrace, Kew Gardens, Queens. The young man chatted with his brother Edward and his sister Mary until shortly after midnight. He left them, went to the bathroom and shot himself with a new automatic pistol which he apparently had bought for the purpose. An ambulance surgeon found Breen dead when he arrived.

Breen was an automobile salesman and had been about to take a job in a bank in Jamaica. Dr. William H. Nammack of the Medical Examiner's office learned from his family that Breen had brooded over slow advancement in business, having been inclined to melancholy because his health suffered severely during eighteen months' service in France in the World War. Breen was unmarried. He was born in Cincinnati.

To Help Visiting Nurse Service.

Between Nov. 24 and Dec. 8 a drive will be made in aid of the Visiting Nurse Service of New York, of which Lillian D. Wald is founder. During the last year 50,300 patients, of whom 15,727 were children less than 5 years old, were cared for. The organization plans to raise enough money to support 200 nurses for 1925 and 1926, and for this the help of the charitable public is solicited. Paul D. Cravath is Chairman of the General Committee, and William J. Tully is Chairman of the Executive Committee.

LUTHERANS SEE NEED OF LAW ENFORCEMENT

Church Convention Is Told That Prohibition Has 'Broken Down All Along the Line.'

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Law enforcement "has broken down all along the line," it was asserted in the report of the Committee of Moral and Social Welfare of the United Lutheran Church in America to the Church in its biennial convention today.

"The foremost of our domestic problems right now is that of law enforcement," said the committee, of which Dr. E. F. Pfatteicher of Reading, Pa., is Chairman. "Prohibition enforcement is simply a phase of a complicated and nasty situation—complicated because law enforcement has broken down all along the line, nasty because disclosures have implicated government officials and have shaken the confidence of the people in their government.

"The drastic measures adopted by the Government have had a beneficial effect, but it is nevertheless true that we are not enforcing the law in our nation as it ought to be enforced. And it is equally true that much lawlessness that has nothing to do with prohibition is being made to masquerade behind a bugaboo which has been created by the friends of liquor. The need for more drastic enforcement of the law is a crying need of the hour.

"It is also true, as suggested by one of our judges quoted in a news item, that we have carried the thought of pardon too far and given the low-browed politicians a leverage which they are using with a vengeance.

"What we need is a higher regard for law by Congress themselves, a more rapid and more heroic functioning by many of our courts and a willingness on the part of Christian citizens to cease being deliberate lawbreakers in business, in clubs and in their homes.

"The home is unquestionably directly responsible in the majority of instances for the startling lack of morality enforcement. Mothers must be held sponsible, not Parisian modistes, for the kind of dresses their daughters wear. Mothers must be held responsible for painted and powdered faces and the unearthly hours their daughters are allowed to keep. Fathers must be held responsible for their sons."

Richmond, Va., was chosen as the city in which the 1926 convention of the Church will be held.

SEIZED LIQUOR SHIP WILL CHARGE PIRACY

Master of British Schooner Alleges Coast Guard Prize Crew Sold Captured Liquor.

BOSTON, Oct. 28.—Counsel for Captain Harry Richey of the British schooner Marjorie E. Bachman, seized by the Coast Guard cutter Tampa off Cape Cod last Friday as a liquor runner, declared today in Federal Court that they would ask for the extradition to Canada on charges of piracy of a prize crew placed on board the schooner by the Tampa unless 300 cases of liquor taken from the Bachman are returned, together with money and personal effects alleged to have been taken from the schooner's crew.

According to statements of counsel, the prize crew sold overside from the Bachman 150 cases of champagne, sent another 150 cases to the cutter and took nearly $1,000 in money from members of the crew of the schooner. In a statement today Lieut. Commander S. S. Yeandle, aid to the Chief of the Coast Guard Service, admitted that the prize crew had sold two cases of champagne in the manner described, but did so for the purpose of obtaining evidence against the purchasers.

Indictments charging conspiracy to violate provisions of the tariff act of 1922 relating to transportation and importation of liquor were reported by the Federal Grand Jury today against Captain Richey and Supercargo Harold Young of the Bachman, both of Lunenburg, N. S.; Philip S. Keating and David R. Keating of Gloucester, Mass., and Joseph Tarry and Peter Kostan of Salem, Mass.

The four Americans were captured in motor boats said by Coast Guardsmen to have been plying between the rum row and the shore when the Tampa bore down on the liquor fleet Friday. The Bachman and five motor boats were captured and brought to Boston. Wheelden Bowman, mate of the Bachman, also was arrested, but no indictment was found against him.

In a consultation of counsel with Judge Morton today the Judge ordered the return of $300 taken by the Coast Guardsmen from the pockets of two members of the Bachman's crew who were not placed under arrest. A further amount of $650, also taken from members of the crew, also was sought by counsel for the defendants. Judge Morton said that this should be returned unless the United States Attorney could prove it was a part of the ship's money.

In his statement Lieut. Commander Yeandle declared that the liquor running interests, failing in attempts to place spies in the Coast Guard Service, were attacking the character of Coast Guard officers in order to undermine public confidence in the service.

"They are endeavoring to place spies in the service on sea and land," the statement said. "Only last week four men tried to enlist in the Coast Guard Service, but when the time came to take their fingerprints they departed, leaving their clothing behind. When spies succeed they are getting in they try to corrupt members of the organization."

Lieut. Commander Yeandle said that Ensign Connor, who was in command of the prize crew on board the Bachman, was an officer of the highest character and record.

LIFTS SODA POP BAN.

Wilbur Will Allow Soft Drinks on Navy Vessels.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Secretary Daniels's pre-prohibition "bone-dry navy" order is to be modified by Secretary Wilbur, but only to an extent which will permit thirsty gobs to partake of soda pop aboard ship.

Mr. Daniels included bottled soda waters in his order against drinks on navy vessels, taking the view that ship storekeepers had not sufficient storage space at their disposal to make the carrying of soft drinks practicable.

Bottling concerns have been exerting pressure for a revision of the Daniels order, and, after receiving assurances from Government experts that the health of the navy will not be jeopardized by the change, Mr. Wilbur has decided to lift the soda-water ban.

transacted in our lines it seems to me certain that a majority of people believe the election will show that business men do not propose to take any chances on the maintenance of our governmental policies, our constitutional privileges and safeguards, or our observance of the laws of the land.

"Our bookings up to Oct. 24 are larger than they were the same date the preceding month. Our selling prices are not quite as high as they were in the same period of that month, and that is the reason why our earnings for the last quarter were somewhat less than those for the preceding quarter.

"The conditions as shown, to my mind, demonstrate that the purchasing power and disposition of the purchasing public are strong and vigorous and will in the near future materially increase.

"If I may be allowed to say so, the conditions today in the United States so far as the iron and steel industry is concerned, are equal to what was predicted last April. I think the outlook is fully as good as any of us at that time could have expected."

Returning more directly to the political situation, teh United States Steel Chairman said he thought the American public had been disappointed "with respect to some of the accusations which have been made by certain politicians against gentlemen belonging to other parties." He continued: "Statements have been made which were fully unjustified. Attempts have been made to connect some candidates of the opposite party with transactions over which they had no control, with which they were nowise connected, and for which they were not in any respect responsible.

"Americans generally love fair play. They like to see so-called statesmen as fair in their treatment of opponents as the ordinary high-class business man or as the first-class sportsman. I have nothing to say against any individual, but if I were to be absolutely frank I would say considerably against the methods and the language of some of the political campaigners at the present time.

"What the business man desires is fair play, fair treatment to every one, including capital and labor and the general public. He wants officials in Washington, in the executive and legislative departments both, whose sole ambition is to advance the interests of the whole country on the basis that we must all thrive or fail at the same time and under the same circumstances."

Judge Gary went on to say that he believed the majority of the people in America "are on the right track, that they are well posted, fair-minded and intelligent to see clearly the difference between sham and hypocrisy on one side and honesty and good intentions on the other side."

If the election went wrong, he asserted, "of course we shall all suffer, and it will take some time, perhaps a long time, to recover." Then he added: "There would be suffering and unhappiness. Everything I see of predictions as to the results, or intention, or action, concerning next Tuesday, indicates that we are not going to have hard times, but, on the contrary, will have a wise Administration in Washington, a competent and fair-minded Congress, a satisfactory volume of business and prosperity."

HAVANA, Oct. 28.—General Enoch H. Crowder, the American Ambassador to Cuba, was forced to take to bed today in consequence of a severe cold, which has caused congestion of the bronchial tubes. The Ambassador's condition, according to his physician, is not serious at present, but the patient must remain in bed for a few days in order to avoid possible complications.

General Crowder has been suffering from a cold since the middle of last week, but nevertheless he continued daily to visit his office and also had two interviews with President Zayas.

His last interview with the Chief Executive took place Monday evening, when the Ambassador is understood to have discussed the general situation in Cuba, including the approaching elections and the strike of the sugar mill and railway workers.

REED OF MISSOURI SPEAKS FOR DAVIS

Declares La Follette, "a Republican Red," Has Divided Administration Party Only.

SCORES COOLIDGE SILENCE

President Seeks Klan Vote, Says Senator in First Address Since His Illness.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 29 (Associated Press).—Senator Reed of Missouri, who for several months has been out of the political arena because of illness, tonight spoke at Convention Hall here in his first public address since before the Democratic National Convention. He pledged allegiance to the national and State Democratic tickets.

Still showing the effects of his illness, but with much of his old-time fighting spirit, the Senator fired political broadsides at both Senator La Follette and President Coolidge, and denounced the Republican Administration for what he termed its "reactionary policies."

Characterizing Mr. Coolidge as the "Napoleon of about twenty legislative Waterloos," he declared that the President "has hearkened to the reactionary element of the Republican Party, which has represented the standpatism of capitalism."

Senator Reed said he had no desire to say harsh things about President Coolidge, whose committee "has adopted the campaign slogan, 'Calvin Coolidge—cool as a cucumber.'

"Nevertheless I am content that his friends, if they please, compare him with that criminal of the garden which, being composed entirely of seeds and water, and completely devoid of all sustenance, produces only starvation in animals and colic in humans," the Senator continued.

He criticized the President for his silence and asserted that "a candidate for the Presidency should possess the intelligence to comprehend and the coldness and frankness to speak upon all public questions."

Senator La Follette was alluded to as a "Republican Red."

"It is pretty generally conceded," Senator Reed continued, "that La Follette will carry from five to nine States. Every one of these can ordinarily be counted upon to give their electoral votes to a Republican candidate for President. Upon the other hand, La Follette will not carry a single Democratic State. The Democratic forces are standing solid. The break in the old political forces is in the Republican ranks."

Raising the question of the Ku Klux Klan, the Senator said that John W. Davis, Senator La Follette and even General Dawes has spoken, but "Coolidge is silent because he wants the votes of the Ku Klux Klan." He charged that President Coolidge is silent on the Klan "because he places his own election over the vindication of the constitutional rights of the American people."

"After all," he said, "the great questions involved in this election are economic. They are questions of prices and taxation. The Republican Party stands for high taxes for the benefit of trusts, for low taxes upon the trusts and combinations. * * * A vote for Coolidge is a vote for low taxes upon great incomes. It is a vote for the taxation of all the poeple for the benefit of the trusts and combinations of America."

HUNTER LOST IN WOODS AS CHILD IS BURNED

Troopers Join in Search of Adirondacks for Man Missing Since Saturday.

OLD FORGE, N. Y., Oct. 28.—State troopers and scores of sportsmen and friends have instituted a search for Thomas Lewis of Endicott, whose whereabouts in the woods, which he entered Saturday as a member of a hunting party, have not been learned.

The searchers carry a message of death. Lewis's little daughter, Irene, died yesterday in Endicott-Johnson Hospital from burns suffered when her dress caught fire as she was playing around a bonfire.

The only clue the men have to work on is the fact that Lewis told his family when he left that he was going to McKeever hunting. With him were Ralph Sickler and Ray Cossan, also of Endicott. Two of the men had never been in this section before, but Lewis had made two or three other trips in this section while hunting.

A car loaded with friends of the missing man reached this section late last night, and since then they have been working through the territory the men were supposed to be in, trying to find some one who could give them some trace of the hunters. This morning State troopers in Old Forge were notified, and they also have taken to the field.

TANGIER, Oct. 28.—General de Rivera has sent two strong columns into the Anjera Country, north of Tetuan, to prevent, if possible, a rising of that tribe against the Spaniards. Active political negotiations for the same purpose also are taking place, important sums of money being offered to the Anjera chiefs to restrain the tribesmen from rebellion. The situation is still obscure.

Fighting is proceeding today on the Tangier Laraiche Road, just outside the international zone. All traffic has ceased and the road has been cut.

MADRID, Oct. 28.—The condition of Colonel Millan-Astray, Commander of the Spanish Foreign Legion in Morocco, is serious. He was hit by an enemy bullet during an ambuscade and gangrene developed, necessitating the amputation of his left arm.

King Alfonso and Admiral Magaz, who is acting chief of the Spanish Military Government, have sent messages of sympathy and of hope for the recovery of Colonel Millan-Astray.

Society Brand Overcoats at $40 have appealed to New York as the greatest clothing value in years

It's not the price of these overcoats that's so remarkable. There are plenty of overcoats of a sort to be had for $40. These, however, are by Society Brand; their cut, their rich, warm fabrics leave nothing to be desired; and that's why well dressed New Yorkers have bought them steadily since the first day they were offered. They're the greatest clothing value in years.

FIELD CHARGES WIFE GOT ALL HIS MONEY

'STRIPPED OF POSSESSIONS'

Suit Alleges Undue Influence in Obtaining Stocks, Bonds, Autos and Cash.

Hickson W. Field, now 75 years old, who was employed as a clerk in the United States subtreasury for forty-three years, filed suit in the Supreme Court yesterday against his wife, Mary Hickson Matthews Field, formerly a trained nurse, alleging that she obtained more than $200,000 worth of property from him by undue influence and by taking advantage of his weakened physical condition. Mrs. Field is now living at Cazenovia, N. Y.

In his complaint Mr. Field states:

"The defendant by her cruel, aggravating and annoying conduct used the plaintiff to leave the home of the parties at Cazenovia and to return to New York, where he is now living alone, stripped of his possessions as a result of the inequitable conduct of the defendant."

The complaint, filed by Charles F. Brown and Arthur S. Hogue, alleges that Mr. Field had a physical breakdown nine years ago and was sent from the subtreasury to the Volunteer Hospital in Broad Street, after which he was removed to the Presbyterian Hospital. After leaving the latter institution he took a room at the Nurses' Home, 320 West 116th Street, and there met the defendant, who became his nurse. He states that while he was in a weak physical condition he married her.

The plaintiff states that he owned bonds worth $122,000 from which he had an income of $6,150, including $50,000 of the Rocky Mountain Fuel Company and $37,000 of the Gas Light, Heat and Fuel Company. He also owned stocks from which he had an income of $4,440, including 110 shares of the Central Union Trust Company, valued at $69,190, which paid $2,640 a year, and had $8,000 in cash. He alleges that shortly after his marriage he caused all the securities to be put in the name of his wife for convenience, but intended to retain ownership. She drew checks on his bank account with a power of attorney given by him. The complaint continues:

"Thereafter the defendant presumed upon the physical condition of the plaintiff and his lack of resisting power, and gradually entered upon a course of conduct to improperly and unlawfully possess herself of all his property, so that she, by undue influence and improper persuasions, gradually and continuously attempted to draw under her dominion and control the aforesaid stocks, bonds and cash, and unlawfully attempted to appropriate them to her own use."

The complaint asks a decree declaring that Field is the owner of all the property mentioned, that the defendant be directed to deliver the items mentioned, including two automobiles and property in Washington, D. C., and asks the appointment of a receiver of the property pending the suit.

Mr. Field is said to be one of the two men now living who were in Ford's Theatre the night President Lincoln was shot. He has stated that he cut open the President's waistcoat upon reaching his side soon after Lincoln was shot.

FOREST FIRE FLARES UP; MORE FIGHTERS CALLED

Blaze at Green Pond Mountain Shifts and Threatens the Ringling Estate.

Special to The New York Times.

DOVER, N. J., Oct. 28.—The forest fire at the northern end of Green Pond Mountain, which was believed this morning to have been effectually checked, again became threatening this afternoon and tonight the main crew of from 150 to 200 fire-fighters was transferred from the southern end of the mountain to the north. The flames are sweeping toward the 150-acre estate owned by the Ringling brothers. So exhausted are the men under Division Supervisor L. F. Fales of the New Jersey Forest Fire Commission that fifty section hands of the Lackawanna Railroad were called out tonight to aid them.

The fire on Green Pond Mountain started Saturday afternoon. Saturday night and Sunday it threatened the ammunition depots at the Picatinny Arsenal. Yesterday back fires were set and its course was deflected from the arsenal. All last night relays of 150 men fought the flames as they ate their way toward the Longwood Valley on the western side of the mountain to within a mile of Berkshire Valley.

This morning it was thought the fire at this point was under control and most of the force was transferred two miles to the southern end. After their departure north again tonight, army officers from the arsenal established posts 100 feet apart at the unguarded southern extremity. The sentinels are to make reports every hour and additional forces of fire-fighters will be rushed to any point which suddenly threatens danger.

ELEVATOR FALLS 3 STORIES.

Fourteen Women Imprisoned Nearly an Hour—Suffer From Shock.

In the course of a reception of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Second Ward Democratic Club of Hoboken in Palace Garden, Hoboken, last evening, an elevator carrying fourteen women fell three stories to the basement. It took firemen nearly an hour to free the imprisoned women. None were seriously hurt, but about a dozen were treated for hysteria and shock.

The elevator was operated by William J. Jones. He was bringing a full car from the upper floor to the reception hall. The safety brake failed to hold and the car struck the bottom of the shaft with a crash that alarmed the 400 or more in the hall. The Fire Department was summoned because the doors at the bottom of the shaft were locked on the outside and were protected by iron doors. Among those treated were Mrs. Catherine Clark, Miss Tillie Schark, Miss Marian Thompson, Mrs. Mary Ryan, Mrs. Mary McTavey, Mrs. Johanna Kerrigan, Mrs. Johanna O'Donnell, Mrs. Anna Donovan, Miss Florence Donovan, Miss Edna Snyder.

SCHOONER BLOWS UP.

Explosion Injures Captain and Mate at Woods Hole, Mass.

WOODS HOLE, Mass., Oct. 28.—The coastal freighting schooner Fanny Bitters caught fire and blew up while at anchor in Tarpaulin Cove early today, and Captain W. F. Nickerson and the mate, Jarvis Robbins, were blown from their bunks to the deck.

The skipper, severely burned, rescued Robbins from the flames, and they escaped in the schooner's tender. They were picked up by Frank Davis, who put out from the Tarpaulin Cove lighthouse when he heard the explosion, and after giving first aid there brought a doctor out from the shore. The men will recover.

The schooner, which was bound from Falmouth for Newport, R. I., with cord wood, is a total loss. The cause of the fire and explosion was not determined.

SAYS HE IS 'SNIPING' AGAINST DR. FOSDICK

Pastor Accuses Editor of a Church Paper, and Defends Actions of Special Preacher.

ATTACKS ARE DEPLORED

National Federation of Religious Liberals Hears Critic Rebuked at Convention.

An attack on the theological sincerity of the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, special preacher at the First Presbyterian Church, and an address by Leo Wise, editor of The American Israelite, who is a son of the late Rev. Dr. Isaac M. Wise, founder of the Hebrew Union College, Cincinnati, on "Religion and the Press," were the principal events yesterday at the session of the National Federation of Religious Liberals. Morning and afternoon meetings were held in the Community Church, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, and a mass meeting was held in the evening in the West Side Unitarian Church, 110th Street, near Broadway.

The convention will close this evening with a public session in Temple Beth-El, Fifth Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street. About two hundred persons, representing Unitarians, Universalists, Jews, Ethical Culturists and Hicksite Quakers, are attending the meeting.

The Rev. Dr. Alfred C. Dieffenbach, editor of The Christian Register, a Unitarian weekly published in Boston, led the attack on Dr. Fosdick. "I have profound respect for the gifts and subtleties of Dr. Fosdick," he said. "The reason he is in an equivocal position is because he does not decisively and distinctly state what he really believes. When he goes to Cambridge he speaks in terms of liberalism and when he comes to New York he says 'I am an evangelical Christian.' Dr. Fosdick utters all the words and phrases that are consistent with an evangelical Christian as we commonly understand them, and certainly as they satisfy those who hear him in the evangelical name.

"I have the profoundest respect for a man who is consistently a Fundamentalist, or for a man who is consistently a Roman Catholic, but I have no respect for the attitude of Dr. Fosdick."

The Rev. Dr. Harold E. B. Speight, minister of King's Unitarian Chapel, Boston, accused Dr. Dieffenbach of being "a sniper" after Dr. Fosdick. "It happen to have evidence which I cannot question, that Dr. Fosdick has aided a great many people in their quest for pure religion," he said. "And I hardly expected to find when Dr. Dieffenbach spoke here that he would carry on his sniping campaign against Dr. Fosdick which he does in the columns of The Christian Register.

"I thought that at a meeting of the National Federation of Religious Liberals we should concern ourselves more particularly with trying to make bridges over which men can walk to meet one another in this quest of pure religion. The fact that Dr. Fosdick has determined that he does not wish to become a Unitarian is not my concern. He knows best where he can put in his licks most effectively. So far as I can see he does far more effective work in the quest of pure religion than if he had come over into the Unitarian pulpit. He has influenced hundreds of thousands of young men and women in this land, and I cannot see in the church to which I belong anything which could have offered him such a grand opportunity."

The Rev. Dr. John H. Lathrop, pastor of the Unitarian Church of Our Saviour, Brooklyn, also took exception to Dr. Dieffenbach's criticism of Dr. Fosdick. Dr. Lathrop said he regarded Dr. Fosdick as "a very effective liberal."

Later Dr. Dieffenbach replied to Dr. Speight. "It is not quite dignified or not quite true to say that I have been 'sniping' after Dr. Fosdick," he said. "Sniping means sneaking. I am not a sneak. I must object to that in this company."

In his address Mr. Wise said that in the United States all the newspapers which are worth while are independent and are not controlled by their advertisers.

"What I wish to emphasize," he said, "is that upon the press, more especially the religious press, there lies a duty to make contribution toward making religion effective in the life of the world, in the life of every man and woman, and more especially in the life of the so-called civilized nations."

When the attack on him by Dr. Dieffenbach was read to Dr. Fosdick last night, he made the following statement:

"I never yet preached a sermon or made an address at Harvard which I had not already made in my own pulpit."

LEAVES ESTATE TO HARVARD

Mrs. Gordon Dexter's Will Also Bequeaths Valuable Paintings.

BOSTON, Oct. 28.—The residue of the estate of Mrs. Gordon Dexter, estimated to amount to several hundred thousand dollars, is left to Harvard University for research in bacteriology and for the purchase of books for the library by a will which was filed for probate today.

Mrs. Dexter, who was a contemporary of Mrs. "Jack" Gardner in the collection of art objects, left to the Museum of Fine Arts some paintings by Copley, van Dyke and others of high value, together with articles owned by the Kings of France from Louis XIII. to Louis XVI. Works of art are given also to many individuals.

William R. Castle Jr., former Dean at Harvard, receives $50,000; Morris Carter, who was stipulated by Mrs. Gardner as life director of her Italian palace museum, gets $10,000, and $10,000 is given also to the Massachusetts General Hospital.

In leaving the residue to Harvard Mrs. Dexter's will explains that her son, Gordon Dexter, already has an ample fortune and comes into property from which a large part of his mother's income was derived.

TO DECIDE ON POLAR FLIGHT

Coolidge Expects Study of Shenandoah's Trip West to Furnish Data.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—A study of the flight of the Shenandoah to the west coast and return is expected by President Coolidge to furnish information upon which may be based a final decision as to a flight by the air cruiser to the North Pole.

The President has been told that the Shenandoah's flight was in every way comparable with that of the ZR-3 across the Atlantic. It is recalled that one of the important considerations which led to abandonment of the North Pole Project last year was a hesitancy to risk the only ship of the Zeppelin type possessed by the American Government.

With two such craft now in operation, that consideration, at least, has been removed.

General Howze stated that his visit was purely personal and for pleasure.

NORMAN H. DAVIS REPLIES TO HUGHES

Former Under-Secretary of State Says Secretary Changed Attitude Toward League.

EXPLAINS WILSON COURSE

Did Not Wish to Embarrass Successor by Sending Representative to League Parley.

Norman H. Davis, former Under-Secretary of State, issued the following statement last night, in reply to Secretary of State Hughes's speech answering an article by Raymond B. Fosdick in THE TIMES regarding the Administration's attitude toward the League of Nations:

"I have been surprised at some of the statements by Mr. Hughes, the Secretary of State, with reference to our foreign relations. In one breath he defends the Administration for not cooperating with the League of Nations, boasts of refusing to attend certain conferences held under the auspices of the League. Then he congratulates himself for having cooperated so much with the League.

"In defense of the failure to attend the League conference on transportation, he cites from the files of the Department of State a dispatch sent by me, as Acting Secretary of State, to Mr. John W. Davis, who was then Ambassador to England, instructing him to acknowledge to the Secretary General of the League of Nations receipt of a telegram on Dec. 21, 1920, inviting the President to send a representative or an observer to a general conference on liberty of communications and transit called by the League of Nations, to be held in February, 1921, at Barcelona, and to state that in view of the fact that the United States was not a member of the League of Nations, this Government did not deem it practicable to appoint a representative to attend the conference.

"Mr. Hughes knows perfectly well that this action was taken because of special circumstances which then prevailed, and which did not prevail in those instances for which he is criticised. The outgoing Wilson Administration did not deem it proper to bind or embarrass an incoming Administration by accepting an invitation to a conference which was to be held just when the new Administration was to assume office. In the same sense the outgoing Administration held for the consideration of the incoming Administration all communications received from foreign Governments or from the League of Nations, which involved matters that had to be dealt with by the new Administration.

Assurance From Hughes.

"While I then assumed that the Government of the United States would accept membership in the League of Nations, I did not wish to do anything that would in any way obstruct any negotiations which the incoming Administration might wish to conduct. For such an assumption I had no less an authority than Mr. Hughes himself and thirty other Republicans, who assured the voters that the election of Mr. Harding would insure the entrance of the United States into the League of Nations. Further, we had been told that one of the first acts of Mr. Harding would be to summon the best minds to determine upon what terms and conditions we would cooperate with the other nations through an association or League of Nations.

"I am somewhat surprised, therefore, that Mr. Hughes should not defend the failure of the Administration on the ground that the American people in the election of 1920 decided against concerted international cooperation. Since the Republican Party and its candidate had declared for such a course, and the Democratic Party declared specifically in favor of entrance into the League of Nations, the American people were not given a chance to vote against the policy of effective international cooperation. To declare now that they voted against any such policy is to condemn the good faith of the Republican Party and its leaders. It is to assert that the thirty-one, including Mr. Hughes, who signed the famous manifesto, meant just the opposite of what they said.

"In justification of his attitude toward the League of Nations, Mr. Hughes cites a quotation from H. Wilson Harris, a well-known British student of international cooperation, in which he pays a full tribute to America's earnestness in efforts to control the traffic in opium. Referring to this, Mr. Harris states, 'the driving force behind the whole project so far has been largely American.' What a great source of pride it would be if Mr. Harris could apply the same remark to our activities in disarmament and world peace.

Calls His Position Weak.

"The Secretary of State, indeed, is in a weak position when his defense for the failure of this Administration to cooperate effectively with other nations to outlaw war, establish peace and reduce armaments, is to imply that such cooperation would give to other nations a voice in the determination of American domestic policies.

"It is an affront to the fifty-five nations who are cooperating through the League of Nations to maintain peace, for the Secretary of State to imply that the United States Government is the only one that is concerned about keeping control over its purely domestic questions. I do not know of any sovereign nation that is willing to allow other nations to interfere in its domestic affairs, and I challenge the Secretary of State to tell the American people specifically what sovereign nation has, by becoming a member of the League of Nations, given the League any jurisdiction over its domestic affairs.

"Mr. Hughes points with much pride to the fact that our Government is now cooperating with the League of Nations in humanitarian matters, and particularly the control of traffic in opium. I cannot conceive of any undertaking that would be more humane than to cooperate in efforts to save mankind from the strains and losses and sufferings which inevitably result from war. President Coolidge has expressed a desire for peace and disarmament, and yet he failed to send a representative to the recent conference in Geneva in which forty-seven nations accomplished more than has ever been done before toward reducing armaments and actually outlawing war. It is a lame excuse to claim that we did not send a representative because we were not members of the League of Nations. If we can cooperate, and are cooperating, with the League in humanitarian affairs, why can we not likewise cooperate in efforts to outlaw war, bring about disarmament and establish peace. The people ask for protection against war and Mr. Hughes gives them a prescription against anthrax.

Should Be "Concerned."

"The Secretary of State gets very indignant at those who criticise him for breaking faith with the American people, for having repudiated the stand he took in the manifesto of the thirty-one, and states that 'those who desire that we should enter the League are never satisfied so long as we are not inside.' Assuming this to be a fact, Mr. Hughes, because of his past professions and pledges, should be more concerned than almost any other living man over our failure to be inside the League of Nations.

"Mr. Hughes, in trying to make a sharp distinction between humanitarian and economic problems on the one hand and political questions on the other, goes directly contrary to the President. In his acceptance speech Mr. Coolidge attributed the success of the disarmament conference to the fact that they dealt first with the political questions, which held the seeds of war, and that only after successful agreement on these political questions was an atmosphere created which made it possible to reduce the instruments of war.

"There is no logical difference between the Pacific and Atlantic Oceans. It was necessary to remove political obstacles in the Far East before settlements could be reached which permitted the limitation of armaments in that quarter. Is it not obvious that it is equally necessary to deal with political questions in Europe if we are to bring about disarmament in that part of the world?

"It is inexcusable to attempt to deceive the American people by implying that we are doing our full duty or adequately protecting our own interests by cooperating in the humanitarian work of the League. Mr. Hughes knows that it was not the lack of humanitarian cooperation which brought the World War in 1914 or involved us in it in 1917. No foreign policy will be satisfactory to our people which contents itself with kind acts and which does not lend every effort to prevent the recurrence of such a catastrophe."

HAGEN IS CLEARED OF CADDY'S CHARGE

Chicago Youth Admits That He Was Not 'Kidnapped' and Warrant Is Quashed.

Publication on Sunday of a story that Walter Hagen, noted golfer, was to be apprehended on a warrant issued in Chicago charging him with kidnapping was followed by an announcement here yesterday from William G. Marvin, Mr. Hagen's lawyer, that the charge had proved to be "a big joke."

Mr. Marvin said he had just learned by long distance telephone that Robert Burns Boughan, the Chicago boy who had accused Hagen, had recanted. According to Mr. Marvin, the boy ran away from home, reached Kansas City, saw in the papers that Mr. Hagen was playing an exhibition match there and concocted the story that Hagen had taken him from Chicago as his caddy to assuage the wrath of his parents.

Mr. Marvin added that while it was understood a marshal was on the way here from Chicago with the warrant, efforts were being made by associate counsel in Chicago to have the case quashed, as it had proved to be groundless. It was further explained that Jimmy Ahearn, former caddy at the Westchester-Biltmore course, who is older than Hagen himself, caddied for Hagen on the exhibition tour, and that in the party were Mrs. Hagen, Joe Kirkwood, another professional, and Robert E. Harlow, business manager of the tour.

Hagen yesterday made affidavit that he did not know the Boughan boy and that the lad never had caddied for him. He also announced through his lawyer that he would sue the boy's parents for defamation.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—There is no warrant outstanding for Walter Hagen; it was dismissed upon application of the boy's mother. It appears the boy, Robert Burns Boughan, aged 13, is a golf enthusiast and followed Hagen to Wichita, Kan. Last Friday the boy's sister, without consulting her mother, swore out the warrant. The boy returned to Chicago Sunday and his mother at once asked that the charge against Hagen be withdrawn, he being innocent of any charge of kidnapping. This was done and there is no marshal on his way to New York to arrest Mr. Hagen.

FALL ACTED ALONE, FINNEY TESTIFIES

Assistant Secretary Says He Took No Part in Leasing Teapot Dome Reserve.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 28.—That Albert B. Fall, as Secretary of the Interior, acted alone and without the customary advice of Edward C. Finney, First Assistant Secretary of the Interior Department, in the making of the Teapot Dome-Sinclair naval oil lease and the Elk Hills-Pan American naval oil lease, which the Government charges were issued in a conspiracy to defraud, was testified today by Mr. Finney.

Resumption today of the trial of the Government suit to cancel the $100,000,000 leases and contracts to the Edward L. Doheny concern, in negotiations for which Doheny is accused by the Government of giving $100,000 to Fall, led to testimony as to the work in the Interior Department concerning the leases.

Owen J. Roberts, Government counsel, questioned Mr. Finney in an effort to show that Fall acted unusually, independently and alone in negotiation of these leases. He asked Mr. Finney whether he knew generally of, and participated in, preparation of contracts previous to Dec. 11, 1922, when the Pan-American supplemental contract on Elk Hills and Pearl Harbor development work was let.

"The only lease I know of which I did not participate in was the Sinclair lease in Wyoming," Mr. Finney testified, referring to the Teapot Dome lease, which is the subject of another Government suit for cancellation.

"Did you have anything to do with the lease of Dec. 11, 1922?" Mr. Roberts questioned, referring to the Pan-American lease.

"None whatever," the witness replied.

Mr. Finney then underwent a stiff cross-examination by Frank J. Hogan of the defense, the questioning apparently being directed at an attempt to show that Mr. Finney, and not Secretary Fall, was the active figure in the lease negotiations.

COOLIDGE TO GIVE ADDRESS.

Is Expected to Speak to Grange at Atlantic City.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 28.—President Coolidge has accepted an invitation to address the National Grange, composed of more than a million farmers, during the annual convention here Nov. 12-22, it was announced here today. It is expected that 10,000 delegates will attend.

Plans are now being made to broadcast the President's address over the new municipal radio station which is being rushed to completion.

Loses Suit Against Doctor.

A jury in the Brooklyn Supreme Court returned a verdict in favor of Dr. Alexander A. La Vigne of 471 Park Avenue, Manhattan, yesterday in the $50,000 damage suit brought against him by Ella V. Read of 74 South Elliott Place, Brooklyn. The plaintiff, who is 11 years old, alleged her sense of taste was destroyed by Dr. La Vigne as a result of the removal of her tonsils and adenoids. Mrs. Marion G. Read, mother of the girl, said she would appeal.

GROWTH IS FASTER BY ELECTRIC LIGHT

Professor Tiedjens Tells of Experiments With Artificial Illumination on Plants.

TEMPERATURE A FACTOR

Engineers See Examples That Had Developed 50 Per Cent. More Than Normally.

Experiments in exposing growing plants to artificial light have demonstrated that the length of the growing period, from seedling to head formation and seed production, can be shortened by two to four weeks, according to Professor Victor A. Tiedjens of the Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment Station at Amherst, Mass., who spoke yesterday before the convention of the Illuminating Engineering Society which is being held at Briarcliff Manor.

Several hundred of the engineers went to Yonkers where a symposium on the effect of light on plant growths was held at the Boyce Thompson Institute. The visitors inspected the plants which are growing there under electric light, some of which have developed from 25 to 50 per cent. more rapidly than normally.

"In general," said Professor Tiedjens, "it was found that there was a direct positive correlation between intensity of electric illumination and rate of growth. The length of the growing period was shortened by two and four weeks, respectively, for the higher intensities, but the growth was not always beneficial to good head formation. The seed stalk was started before a good marketable head was formed in the varities commonly grown by market gardeners. Temperature, which was found to be a controlling factor in the effect produced by artificial light, was of sufficient importance to warrant serious consideration. As yet, the relationship between the two has not been definitely established."

Colored lights have much influence on the growth of plants, the convention was told by Samuel G. Hibben of the Westinghouse Lamp Company of New York.

"It is pretty well established," Mr. Hibben said, "that the circulation of sap and the procurement of mineral food are influenced by heat and by some species of atimulation from the infrared radiant energy. Evaporation from the leaves undoubtedly plays a part in this feeding, but it has been demonstrated that radiant energy within, or associated with, the visible spectrum likewise influences the sap movement."

At the morning session of the convention at Briarcliff Lodge, H. Logan, an electrical engineer employed by the Holophane Glass Company of New York, described a new device called a chromograph which automatically indicates the results of the operation of the laws of chromatics, particularly with reference to colored lighting effects.

Last evening, at Briarcliff Lodge, there was another demonstration of golf under the rays of a 400,000,000 candle power searchlight and an entertainment in which Marion Koslova of the Metropolitan Opera House ballet and Jocelyn De Villeauf danced. The convention will continue until Friday noon.

THINKS MANY INSECTS MAY GIVE OFF RAYS

Princeton Professor Says Some May Emit Ultra-Violet, as Firefly Sends Out Visible Light.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 28.—The possibility that ultra-violet rays are given off by many insects was discussed here today by Edmund Newton Harvey, Professor of Physiology at Princeton University. Professor Harvey was interested in the recent experiments of Dr. Irvine McQuarrie and Dr. I. Newton Kugelmass of Yale with regard to curing rickets by ultra-violet rays. He said today that it was entirely possible that many insects give off these rays just as the firefly gives off light rays.

"The firefly gives off rays which are in the middle of the spectrum," said Professor Harvey, "but I see no reason why other insects would not give off ultra-violet rays which would be visible to an insect with different eyes than we have."

Professor Harvey has experimented extensively with the firefly light rays and rays from chemical reactions. He said the experiments of the Yale scientists were especially interesting to him because they revealed chemical reaction which gives off ultra-violet rays instead of visible light.

"It takes a photographic plate which is very sensitive to pressure to detect these rays," Professor Harvey explained. "Incidentally this is the property of a photographic plate which accounts for many of the so-called spirit photographs."

ALIMONY PLEA DENIED.

Court Is Not Satisfied as to Mrs. Hardin's Residence.

An application for alimony and counsel fees pending trial of her suit for separation was denied Lillian Hamil Hardin yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Black. Justice Black said that he was not satisfied that Mrs. Hardin, who is the wife of John Dunlap Hardin, President of the Consolidated Furniture Factories, Inc., was a resident of New York State at the time she began her suit. Mrs. Hardin in her complaint charges her husband with non-support and abandonment and asserts that he was cruel to her while they were living at the Vanderbilt Hotel.

Mr. Hardin denies the allegations against him and declares that he was kind to his wife. He sets forth that drinking parties held in his home during his absence were responsible for their estrangement.

up the ladder. In 1916 General Atterbury was elected President of the American Railway Association, and from August, 1917, to May, 1919, he was Director General of Transportation of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, with the rank of Brigadier General.

In announcing the promotion of General Atterbury, Mr. Rea said that, as Vice President, he will aid the President in dealing with the important railroad questions and in the general supervision of the company's affairs and business, and of all the departments in the system, and in the absence of the President will act for him." He also said that the company, having in view the retirement of the President from active service in 1925, found it advisable to "create the position of Vice President and to relieve General Atterbury from his present duties as Vice President in charge of Operation, and make other promotions, all to take effect Nov. 15, 1924."

TEAR BOMBS SEIZED IN RAID ON CHINESE

Waiter in Restaurant on Upper Broadway Arrested for Having Explosives.

LINKED WITH TONG WAR

Captured Grenades Capable of Killing, Says Expert, and Could Make Large Gathering Unconscious.

A Chinese was arrested and two tear-gas bombs were seized in a restaurant at 3,200 Broadway last evening, causing Dr. Carlton Simon, Special Deputy Police Commissioner in charge of the narcotic division, to believe that the police had uncovered a plan to use tear gas bombs in the war between the Hip Sing Tong and the On Leong Tong.

Long Wong Chue, the man accused of having the tear bombs, was alleged to have admitted at Police Headquarters that he was a member of the Hip Sing Tong and had taken the bombs to the restaurant several days ago from a place on the Palisades in New Jersey. Dr. Simon said that the box which contained the bombs had a warning pasted on it and a consignment slip showing that it had been sent by express to New Jersey by a firm in Pittsburgh.

The prisoner, he said, denied that he had intended to use the bombs in the war between the Tongs, which reopened on Oct. 8 last with a pistol battle in Chinatown, after twelve years of peace. Dr. Simon said Long had declared that he had purchased the tear bombs as samples and, if after experimenting with them they proved satisfactory, he intended to buy a carload of them and ship them to China. He would not explain his motive in sending them to his native country. The police scouted the explanation of the Chinese, however, and called attention to the fact that he was merely a waiter in the restaurant.

Long was locked up in Police Headquarters on a charge of unlawfully bringing explosives into the city after the bombs had been examined by Joseph A. Prout, an inspector from the Bureau of Combustibles of the Fire Department, who declared them dangerous. Prout told Dr. Simon that if one of them was surreptitiously placed in a small room and ignited or immersed in water every person in the room would be killed. He also stated that one of them placed in a large hall under similar circumstances would render every person there unconscious.

Long was arrested by Detectives Massam, Higgins and Moog of Dr. Simon's staff in the restaurant shortly after 5 P. M. Dr. Simon said that on Sept. 13 last Long and six other Chinese were arrested in a raid on the place by his detectives, in which four opium smoking layouts and two pistols were seized.

3 DIE FROM GAS IN DAY, WHILE 5 ARE RESCUED

One of the Deaths, That of a Woman, Called Suicide—Three Workmen Overcome.

Three workmen were overcome by gas yesterday afternoon while working for the Consolidated Gas Company in a trench in Houston Street, near Mulberry. The men were taken to the Gouverneur and Beekman Street Hospitals. They were Patrick Whalen, Frank Fitzgerald and James McHenry. According to an official of the gas company, a defective mask was responsible for one of the men being overcome and the other two were knocked out going to his assistance.

Mrs. Rose Rofe was found dead yesterday in her apartment at 340 West Fourteenth Street. All the burners of the gas range were turned on and it was believed by the police that Mrs. Rofe, nervous and despondent, committed suicide. Investigation showed that Mrs. Rofe had placed her pet canaries in a closet before she turned on the gas.

Two Mexican firemen, Jesus Ochoa and Vincent Deret of Franklin, N. J., were found dead in bed yesterday morning in a furnished room house at 604 Washington Street. Their deaths were apparently accidental.

Mrs. Sarah Wilensky, 24 years old, of 851 Fifth Street was saved from suicide by gas yesterday morning. Her one-month-old baby, Edith, also was saved. Mrs. Wilensky was discovered overcome when her 5-year-old daughter, Ida, returned from playing in the street and could not get into the apartment. Her cries attracted the attention of neighbors and the door was forced.

DO YOU KNOW THE RECORD of JOHN W. DAVIS

No other candidate for President has done anything that compares with the achievements of John W. Davis, by the devotion of his marvelous ability to the cause of the workers, the oppressed, the average independent business interests, and honesty in public office.

John W. Davis has come to the top of Public Affairs by his success in promoting and defending laws to benefit labor, to protect women and children, to compel honesty in public life, to regulate transportation corporations, and to liberalize the banking system.

IN THE LEGISLATURE OF WEST VIRGINIA

He was elected to the Legislature of West Virginia from a Republican district by the vote of the miners and other laboring men. He put through the following bills:

To protect the safety and health of workers in coal mines.
To protect the safety and health of workers in factories.
To prevent the employment of children in coal mines and factories.
A child labor bill.
An eight-hour law.

IN CONGRESS

John W. Davis was elected to Congress in 1910 from a Republican district. He immediately lent his great energy and ability to humane legislation:

The Adamson eight-hour day bill.
The Workmen's Compensation Act.
The Parcel Post Act.
Increased pay for railway clerks.
Establishment of the Children's Bureau.
Election of Senators by direct vote of the people.
The provision in the Clayton Anti-Trust law declaring that labor is not a commodity, and that labor and farm organizations are not trusts.
He fought the abuse of Federal injunctions.
He acted as prosecutor of Judge Archbald, of the United States Commerce Court, in impeachment proceedings where Judge Archbald was charged with receiving favors from the railroad companies while he was judge. He sustained the impeachment charges and Judge Archbald was impeached.

AS SOLICITOR-GENERAL

He defended before the Supreme Court of the United States and established the constitutionality of the following Acts:

The Federal Reserve Banking Act.
The Income Tax Amendment.
The Adamson eight-hour law.
The authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission to compel railroads to increase service.
He ably defended before the Supreme Court of the United States the Child Labor Law.

GOVERNOR ALFRED E. SMITH

Governor Smith has given the people of the State of New York an honest, efficient and constructive administration. Crashing the gate of big business

JUST as you step off the elevator, about two feet from the girl at the telephone switchboard is a little swinging gate.

Sometimes it is veneered wood. Sometimes it is just a rod of brass. But men who pushed over the Hindenburg Line and men who smashed through a Varsity football defense stand baffled before that little gate.

Beyond that gate are orders. Men are buying and selling. Behind you is the elevator that goes back to the street.

There is one man who can walk unchallenged through that gate twenty times a day. He will walk through for you for a penny or two a trip, and your message will be taken to exactly the right desk.

Are you using him?

He is Uncle Sam's Mail Carrier.

Print your story. Print it well. Use pictures if pictures help make your goods or services more easily understood. Use good paper to insure that your pictures and words will print as they should. Then mail these printed messages to the Men beyond the Gate.

After you have done this for a while, that gate will swing open for you as easily as it now swings open for some others.

Today the fleet numbers 100 Pierce-Arrows—each one a known money earner in the sternest field of motor truck service. It is one of the greatest "short-haul" fleets in America—the largest standardized fleet in New York City.

THE SCREEN

By MORDAUNT HALL.

Plots and Bullets.

MANHATTAN, with Richard Dix, Jaqueline Logan, Gregory Kelly, George Siegmann, Dumbeat Smith, Oscar Figman, Edna May Oliver, Alice Chapin and others; adapted from Jeffery Farnol's novel, "The Definite Object," directed by R. H. Burnside; Christiana, a Post scenic; "A Peep Into Puzzleland," special prologue; "Felix Brings Back the Bacon," a Pat Sullivan cartoon; Miriam Lax, soprano, in "Hallowe'en Dream." At the Rivoli.

Jeffery Farnol's novel, "The Definite Object," having undergone a drastic operation in a scenario department from which it emerged under the titular disguise of "Manhattan," serves as the first starring vehicle for Richard Dix. It also introduces R. H. Burnside, who was for many years connected with the New York Hippodrome, as a motion-picture director.

Mr. Burnside was therefore called upon to direct Mr. Dix at a rather inopportune time. The former knew every plank in the Hippodrome stage, where he had directed many productions. Mr. Dix, however, was in his element, being a popular player and a comparatively old hand at the motion-picture game. Apparently this has resulted in the actor getting his own way in portraying a super-hero in a melodrama suited to unsophisticated audiences. Possibly Mr. Burnside's ability as a director is to be judged better from the performances of the supporting players, such as George Siegmann, Jaqueline Logan, and especially the clever acting of Gregory Kelly.

Mr. Kelly slips into the story in a minor role and collars the honors. His performance is easily the outstanding one in this production, and singularly enough it is the first time that he has acted before the camera. Mr. Kelly is well known on the stage, having appeared in "Seventeen," "Clarence," "Dulcy" and other comedies.

Spike (Mr. Kelly) is a pathetic character, a sort of undergraduate crook, who like an older Oliver Twist is sent into houses to glean first information for the graduate burglars. One can't help feeling for Spike the instant his form appears on the screen. He is miserable, his eyes seeming always to be on the verge of tears, and his back a trifle bent. Affection blooms every now and again from his sad countenance, but the instant he is faced by Bud McGinnis (George Siegmann), the leader of a band in Hell's Kitchen, he is an object creeping with terror, never resisting and always anticipating blows from stronger and bigger men. His first scene, speaking about Peter Minuit's house, hiding the second he hears a noise and peeping up when all is still. Suddenly he is caught by Minuit (Mr. Dix), who tells the frightened stripling that he is also a crook, none other than "Gentleman George."

The introductory scenes of this picture show the conventional screen butler awakening his master, the wealthy young Minuit, who had gone to sleep in his dinner jacket, his shirt front being covered with postage stamps and his address penciled on it. There is also the familiar dog, and other touches which one feels as if they ought to hurry over. The sequences devoted to showing a ventriloquist's doll don't fit into screen "business," and they become tedious.

Minuit, who is a muscular, energetic but blase person, suddenly becomes interested in crooks. He has Joe Madden (Gunboat Smith) as a boxing trainer, and therefore is able to emulate Conan Doyle's Brigadier Gerard in disposing of his victims. Minuit uses fists where Gerard employed steel. Minuit falls in love with Spike's sister, Mary (Miss Logan), and the path of their love is just what it would be in such a melodrama. Minuit has a chance to shoot McGinnis, but he prefers to thrash the crook with his fists and in doing so he takes desperate chances. A bottle intended for him strikes one of the burglars and a bullet tells another. However it gives Mr. Dix a chance to spring down a flight of stairs on the back of one of the murderous band. It would be difficult to count how many persons Minuit disposes of in one of the scenes, as after they appear to be done for they suddenly regain consciousness.

Mr. Siegmann's impersonation of the head of the gang is thoroughly capable. Miss Logan is pretty and efficient as Mary and Mr. Kelly, with the aid of Mr. Burnside, makes a part live which might hardly have been noticed at all when played by many other actors. Mr. Dix gives his own idea of a wealthy young New Yorker, without meditating whether such a character would have been quite as impetuous in the same circumstances. He is good-looking, athletic, but his characterization is just another motion-picture performance. As for the narrative, it is stretched to the breaking point.

TWO VIOLINISTS HEARD.

Socrate Barozzi, a Rumanian, and Nathan Abas in Debut.

Socrate Barozzi, a Rumanian violinist, emerged from a recent season's crop of fiddlers for a successful report of progress to an audience in Carnegie Hall last night. As an artist, he still avoids summits of musical thought, preferring the sunlit foothills. For his lyric style, Grieg's sonata was fit mate in a "lento doloroso," while its episodes of romantic struggle brought out the player's sturdier grip and alert personality. There followed pleasantries of Paganini, Kreisler, Godowsky, Faure, Grainger's "Molly," some robust Bach and Saint-Saens. Assisting at the piano was Bernard Wagenaar.

Nathan Abas, who made a début as violinist at Aeolian Hall last evening, was not without the frank awkwardness and timidity of a first public trial. Though he clove to the classics in two concertos of Mozart and Tartini, with Raymond Bauman's help as pianist, Mr. Abas added fresh interest in his excerpts of Korngold's cute scenes to "Much Ado" and Rubin Goldmark's "Call of the Plains." A quiet grace and clean technique appeared in the older Sarasate's "Andalusian Romance" and Wieniawski's "Polonaise."

"In the revival of 'The Second Mrs. Tanqueray,' proffered by Arthur Hopkins at the Cort Theatre, Ethel Barrymore gave the kind of performance that justified the real and tumultuous cheers which shook the walls of that playhouse after the end of the second act and after the end of the third. A great actress, Miss Barrymore. And never more so. She is so stirring and so fine in its familiar crises, that, by the force of her indisputable power, 'The Second Mrs. Tanqueray' becomes again what it was in the beginning, is now, and may never be again—a play that you all must see."—Alexander Woollcott in The Sun.

COUNTESS BELONGS TO PEOPLE, SHE SAYS

Assails Aristocrats and Tells of Persecution of Count Karolyi and Herself.

SEEKS REFUGE IN AMERICA

Visitor Is Guest of Honor at Notable Dinner Where She Makes Her First Speech Here.

Countess Catherine Karolyi, wife of Count Michael Karolyi, former President of Hungary, delivered her first speech in America last night at a dinner given in her honor at the Hotel Ambassador, before a distinguished assembly.

Robert J. Caldwell, the dinner host, in introducing the Countess, referred to her as a refugee in this country who was looking forward to freedom from persecution, and announced that her arrival here had caused a great stir in Hungary. He said that the Government there, of which Admiral Horthy is now Regent, had called upon the Hungarian Minister, Laszlo Szechenyi, at Washington, D. C., demanding an explanation why she was allowed to enter this country.

In this connection it was said that the Minister had been endeavoring for several months to prohibit the Countess from entering. It was also learned, in connection with several withdrawals from the Reception Committee already made known, that Mrs. R. T. Wilson, a sister-in-law of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt and related by marriage to the Hungarian Minister, had asked that her name be removed from the committee. Mrs. Frank Vanderlip and Mrs. Irving Bush are others who recently withdrew their names.

Mr. Caldwell said that the Countess came here yearning for sympathy, and expressed his regret that, although England was always a harbor for refugees, this country had departed from its traditional rule in this respect. He called the Countess a messenger of peace.

The most stirring part of the Countess's speech, which was confined to her experiences in Hungary, was when she gave her reasons for leaving the aristocratic class to which she belonged. The turning point, she said, was when, after Hungary became a republic, the ruling classes would not sacrifice their egotism on the altar of their country.

Tells of Intolerance.

"It was then that I got to know the real character of my class, the aristocracy. I do not believe there was such exclusive aristocracy in the world as that of Austria and Hungary. I was forced to share their belief that the aristocracy was better, braver and superior to other classes, the other classes referring to all those who had to work for their existence.

"I had grown up in these circles and breathed in the atmosphere of this kind of thought; I felt, getting older, more and more the intolerance of it, and many violent disputes with my friends took place. This society never came into contact with any other circle, and so they rarely knew that there were thinking and interesting people in existence besides themselves.

"This narrow-mindedness caused people to reproach my grandfather on account of his friendship with the famous painter, Munkacsk, whose best work, 'Christ Before Pilate,' is in the possession of the Wanamaker family in Philadelphia. How much they felt themselves to be favored in God's sight is shown by the following typical question which a little Esterhazy boy of 8 put to his governess. He asked: 'Do the nobility die?'

"I asked Count Esterhazy, the Queen's Chamberlain, his opinion of a book which had recently appeared—I think it was one of Gerhart Hauptmann's plays. His answer was that it might have been interesting, but it was such a pity that the drama was written about doctors, artists and professors, for he could not get up any interest in the fate, love affairs and thoughts of such people.

Sided With the People.

"Nothing was more looked down upon than originality. One had to admire Bismarck and disapprove of Gladstone. One had to distrust Tolstoy. One had to look down upon all other races living in Hungary and to believe that all evil came from the Free Masons and the Jews.

"In every country there is more or less a small class of people who have these same ideas, who live this same kind of a life of luxury, of egotistical pleasure and poor thought. But I believe that there is no other country where these people have such a great political influence through their wealth and position and have such a fatal power on the life of the nation as in Hungary."

The Countess then told of the short Bolshevist régime, the easy victory of the counter-revolution and the establishment of its reactionary rule in Hungary. Also how so long as the interests of the aristocracy coincided with those of their country they were honest patriots, but when the time came for them to choose between the interests of their country or those of their class, they unhesitatingly chose the latter.

"At that time," she continued, "we had to choose which path to follow; whether to remain in the class in which we had been born to safeguard their privileges, or to work for the welfare of the people. The first would have been the easier and more pleasant way. I shall never regret that my husband chose the second course and that I followed him."

The Countess gave a graphic description of the spark that set the world ablaze in 1914. She said the war was never popular with the Hungarian people, but as there was no democracy there, she said, the people were not allowed to decide their own fate. Official propaganda, she said, made the people turn against her husband and his policies, as he was practically the only man of the ruling classes and of the political leaders of Hungary who opposed the war.

"Now our enemies are paying us too great an honor in repeating continually that we are those who made the revolution," she continued. "It was not we but the World War and the defeat of the Central Powers which made the revolution.

"Revolutions occur when old institutions are no more adaptable to the new economic conditions of life, and when in the new strata of the population more suitable for the claims of the time the power increases and becomes strong enough to carry out its purposes."

WEDS HER DAUGHTER'S FATHER-IN-LAW

Mrs. Julita S. Hoyt Marries Thomas Leaman Sr., Retired Architect—Met 3 Months Ago.

NORWALK, Conn., Oct. 28.—Mrs. Julita Stratton Hoyt and Thomas Leaman Sr., father-in-law of Mrs. Hoyt's daughter, were married at the Biltmore Hotel, New York, yesterday, it was announced here today.

The younger Mrs. Leaman and her husband learned of the marriage of their mother and father when they returned home last night and were told that the new Mrs. Leaman had telephoned the news.

The former Mrs. Hoyt and her husband, who is reported to be wealthy, first met about three months ago, shortly after the marriage of sixteen-year-old Julita and young Tommy Leaman, a Harstrom School student. The young couple had met two weeks before at a dance. They announced their marriage at the Saturday night dance at the Norwalk Country Club. At the time the elder Mr. Leaman was cruising on his yacht. When he came back he is said to have congratulated the youthful couple.

Since then he had been a frequent visitor at the home of his son's mother-in-law, and their marriage was the culmination of this acquaintance, it is said. He is a retired naval architect.

Mrs. Leaman Sr. was Miss Julita Stratton of New York before her marriage in 1906 to Ira Mortimer Hoyt, theatrical man, of Norwalk, who died about two years ago.

The younger Mr. Leaman is a grandson of Mrs. John W. Warrinston of the Hotel Chatham.

ACTORS AT DOCKSTADER BIER

Rev. S. De L. Townsend Conducts Services in All Angels' Church.

Funeral services for Lew Dockstader, old-time minstrel, were held yesterday at All Angels' Protestant Episcopal Church, Eighty-first Street and West End Avenue, in the presence of a large number of prominent theatrical people and old friends. The Rev. S. De Lancey Townsend, rector of All Angels', read the sermon, and a number of hymns, including "Lead, Kindly Light," Dockstader's favorite, were sung by the choir. Interment was in the Dockstader family plot at Kensico.

Early in the morning a crowd of about 100 persons gathered in front of Dockstader's late home at 270 Riverside Drive, where he had lived with his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Palmer. When the funeral cortege moved to the church, the crowd followed and stood with bared heads while the coffin was being carried within for the services.

Among those who paid their last respects to Lew Dockstader at the church were George M. Cohan, William Muldoon, Gus Hill, William Jerome, Edwin W. Dunn, Harry Cooper, "Happ" Ward, Will Oakland, Al Lewis, John E. Kellerd, James Blake, who wrote "The Sidewalks of New York"; Magistrate Max S. Levine, George Marion, Samuel Dolliver and Joe Norcross, now in his eighty-first year, who had been a close friend of Dockstader for fifty years.

YIDDISH ACTORS STRIKE.

Close Maurice Swartz's Art Theatre in Madison Square.

A strike of the Yiddish Actors' Union has closed the Yiddish Art Theatre, which Maurice Swartz has been operating for several seasons at the theatre in Madison Square Garden. The strike was called on Monday night, when the curtain was about to rise on Sholem Aleichem's "The Great Fortune." The performance was not given, and the theatre was again dark last night.

In a statement last night Mr. Swartz declared that the Moscow Art Theatre had drawn heavily from the Yiddish playgoing public last season, causing him to lose money. In addition, the recent European trip of his company had resulted in a loss; with the result that salaries have not been fully paid to his company.

Mr. Swartz declared also that the operating conditions imposed by the union are almost impossible to meet, and asks for an arbitration committee, to draft new regulations.

ROSZIKA DOLLY TO MARRY.

Dancer Tells of Her Troth to Edgar Allan Woolf, Playwright.

Roszika Dolly of the Dolly Sisters, dancers, announced her engagement to be married to Edgar Allan Woolf, the playwright, last night at a party given for her by Florence Walton at the Club Ostend, 117 West Forty-eighth Street. Miss Dolly, who has been appearing with her sister Yancsi in Europe for several years, returned to this country to appear in the Greenwich Village Follies. After a disagreement with the management recently they withdrew from the cast.

Mr. Woolf has written the books for several Broadway productions. This is his first marriage. Miss Dolly was divorced in 1921 from Jean Schwartz, the composer. The date for the wedding has not been set.

Gemier's Company Here Friday.

The personnel of Firmin Gemier's Odéon Théâtre company, which will begin an engagement at Jolson's Theatre on Nov. 10, will include the following players: André Varrennes, Chalres Vanel, François Rozet, Raymond Girard, Lucien Dubosq, André Vieville, Georges Tricot, Alfred Pasquali, M. Donnith, Pierre Morin, Marcel Chabrier, Louis Raymond, Germaine Rouer, Viera Korotzky, Charlotte Clasis, Yvonne Mirval, Rennee Degillers, Lucienne Parizet, Solange Clayrol and L. Brechon.

These players will reach New York Friday on the Rochambeau, and, with M. Gemier, will attend the performance of "The Miracle" on that night.

George Morgan, Baritone, Sings.

By putting his Town Hall recital at 4 yesterday afternoon, George Morgan had his audience quietly seated and receptive at the advertised hour. Mr. Morgan, in a cultivated and flexible baritone, sang songs in German, French, Italian and English which elicited warm applause and encores. He was particularly successful in the Brahms group, where, oddly enough, the song which earned a repeat was the "Blinde Kuh," while the favorite in the French group was a "Ballade des gros Dindons." The English group included Lord Berners's "Ned, the Dog-stealer."

RADIO SCHEDULES SHIFTED.

WAHG to Have 316-Meter Wave Length for Political Speeches

A conference was held yesterday in the office of Arthur Batcheller, Radio Supervisor of the New York District, to arrange a time schedule for Station WAHG, A. H. Grebe Co., Richmond Hill, N. Y., and WGBS, Gimbel Brothers, New York. Both stations were licensed by the Department of Commerce to operate on the 316 meter wave length and the stations were to divide the time "on the air."

Last week WAHG placed one of its microphones in the National Republican Committee Headquarters in New York and a schedule of political talks was arranged. WGBS started broadcasting last Sunday night, a few weeks earlier than expected, and its schedule threatened to interfere with the political program of WAHG. It was decided at the meeting yesterday to let the Richmond Hill Station use the 316 meter wave. WGBS, Gimbel Brothers, will operate on the 330 meter wave until after election day. After next Tuesday the stations again will divide the time on the 316 meter wave length. WAHG will then broadcast on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights and WGBS will have Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday nights.

O'RYAN ELUDES CENSOR.

Accepts Brooklyn Eagle's Offer to Broadcast Talk on "Hylanism."

Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan will deliver tomorrow night an uncensored speech from The Brooklyn Eagle broadcasting studio, through Station WAHG, Richmond Hill, on "Hylanism." His remarks will be in reply to Mayor Hylan's attack on him and the Transit Commission over the city radio station, WNYC early this month. The General will have an opportunity to give his full views on the transit situation and Mayor Hylan.

After the Mayor's attack General O'Ryan demanded permission to reply in behalf of the Transit Commission but he was told that his speech would have to be submitted to the censorship of William W. Mills, Commissioner of Plant and Structures. The speech he delivered dealt solely with the problems of the Transit Commission. Now General O'Ryan has accepted an invitation from The Brooklyn Eagle to deliver an uncensored speech. Station WAHG broadcasts on 316 meters. General O'Ryan will speak at 7:30 o'clock in the evening.

NEAR EAST ART SHOWN.

Armenian Artist Exhibits at Anderson Galleries.

Panos Terlemezian, an Armenian artist, is exhibiting paintings of Constantinople and the Near East and other subjects at the Anderson Galleries until Saturday. Yesterday afternoon Armenian coffee was served by Armenian girls in native dress. Mr. Terlemezian entered the Imperial School of Art at Petrograd after he was 30 years old. In 1913 he exhibited three works at the Universal Exposition at Munich, a portrait, a landscape and an interior, and won the gold medal.

There are forty-two examples of his work in the Anderson Galleries, most of them rich and deep in coloring and many with dark or brilliant blue tones, especially "Sevan, Ninth Century Monastery in Armenia," all in blues; "Coast of France on the British Channel," "The Shores of the Bosphorus" and "Mount Ararat," the latter in lighter tones. There are two brilliant still-life examples, one a bowl of flaming yellow and orange nasturtiums and a late of fruit.

SAYS EPISCOPALIANS FAIL TO RAISE FUNDS

Bishop Matthews Declares a Serious Situation Confronts the Church.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 28.—The Episcopal Church throughout the country, as well as in certain districts, faces a serious financial situation because of general failure to raise the annual budget amounts, according to the Right Rev. Paul Matthews, Bishop of New Jersey, who presided here today at the opening of a conference of Atlantic City district leaders in St. James's Church.

"The budget for this district last year," said Bishop Matthews, "was about $138,000, and it was not raised. We have reason to fear that the budget for this year, amounting to $147,130, will not be raised. The situation is a serious one, and it confronts, also, the Church at large.

"Are we spending too much, or are we formulating plans for the future which are too ambitious? At a recent conference, the House of Bishops, replying to this question, decided that there must be no lessening of the program, and that every effort should be made to arouse the members of the Church to a full sense of their duty."

It was announced that, in accordance with the decision of the House of Bishops relative to instilling "new life and energy" into the Church, a comprehensive program of church work throughout not only the United States but the world, had been prepared for the ensuing year. To promote this program, nation-wide conferences in every diocese of the Church have been arranged by the National Council.

TESTIFY FOR 'WHITE CARGO.'

Well-Known Authors Find No Plagiarism in the Play.

Prof. Brander Matthews, an authority on plays, testified yesterday before Federal Judge Knox in the suit of Ida Vera Simonton against Leon Gordon and others whom she accuses of having written the play "White Cargo" from her book "Hell's Playground."

Professor Matthews was called by the defense as an expert on the drama. He said he had seen the play and read the book but had not observed any similarity between them outside of atmosphere.

Louis Evan Shipman, playwright, and Achmed Abdullah, a novelist, also testified for the defense. The trial will be continued today.

RUSSIAN CHOIR SINGS.

Kibalchich Symphonic Singers Effective in Native Songs.

The Kibalchich Russian Symphonic Choir gave a characteristic program at Town Hall last evening. The audience was enthusiastic and insisted on the repetition of several of the numbers, for instance, a credo by Gretchaninoff with Mlle. Ivanova as soloist; "Lord, Have Mercy," by Lvovsky and a tenor solo from Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Sadko," sung by M. Creona.

The choir sang in the manner now made familiar by similar organizations in this country and so long as they remained within the boundaries of that art peculiar to the Slavic people, they did very well indeed, and carried off their hearers on a wave of sympathetic feeling, but the same methods, however, effective in their native songs, left one cold when applied to Schumann or to Gluck.

The last group consisted of numbers from related ethnological groups, Ukrainian, Serbian, Czechoslovak and were highly enjoyed by their hearers. Mme. Theodoreva and M. Danilov were among the soloists.

Many of the songs had been arranged by M. Kibalchich who also conducted.

Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer gave a dinner last night at her home, 9 East Seventy-third Street, as a farewell to Lord and Lady Airlie, sailing today on the Aquitania, who have been visiting her for most of the time since their arrival here last August. After dinner Mrs. Pulitzer took her guests to the Imperial Theatre to see "Rose Marie." Other guests were Major and Lady Moira Lyttelton, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Field, Major the Hon. Francis White, George Ledlie, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Marshall and Mr. and Mrs. John G. Milburn.

DENOUNCES ATTACKS ON COOLIDGE OVER FEE

Head of Bridgeport Patriotic Societies Says They Always Have Paid Speakers.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 28.—Resenting what he characterized as "dirty politics" in bringing out at this time that a $250 fee had been paid to Calvin Coolidge for delivering a memorial address here when he was Vice President, the Rev. J. W. Davis, Chairman of the United Patriotic Societies, stated today that such a fee had been paid but that there was nothing unusual about that fact. The Rev. Mr. Davis is permanent Chairman of the society under whose auspices Coolidge spoke. He is a retired minister and Chaplain of the G. A. R. Department of Connecticut. His statement follows:

"Of course we paid Coolidge. We pay all our speakers. It is dirty politics, however, to draw us into this matter on a political basis.

"The United Patriotic Societies is an organization made up of men of all political and religious faiths and shades. It is not political in any degree. It is purely a patriotic organization. In arranging our memorial services we always seek to procure men of character, men of standing in the world, to speak to us for our Memorial Day address. We specify to speakers there is to be no politics and we haven't had it in any of our meetings. Coolidge's address here was clean. There was no hint of politics in it.

"When the representative of a New York newspaper asked me if we paid Coolidge, I gave him to understand that the books of this organization were not open to public inspection. But of course we paid Coolidge. We paid General Henry Allen of the Army of Occupation, and the Rev. Francis P. Duffy, Chaplain of the Fighting Sixty-ninth Regiment of New York, when they came here last year. We expect to pay for speakers; it is the usual practice. We wanted men of character; we had them and we paid them.

"We tried to get Charles Evans Hughes last year. He could not come. We had two wonderful letters from him. The inference has gone out that we did not get him because we could not meet his price. We don't know what his price was. We didn't get that far, but if he could have come we would have paid him what he asked, the same as all our speakers are paid."

Son in R. L. Davisson's Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Davisson are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son at their home, 23 East Seventy-sixth Street. The child will be christened William Porter Davisson in honor of his grandfather, who is a member of J. P. Morgan & Co.

VOTING IN GREAT BRITAIN.

Non-voting has in different countries given concern, and in the English campaign ending in today's polling unusual efforts have been made by all parties to bring out their maximum strength. At the general election of 1923, 74 per cent. of the vote was cast in the country as a whole. In 1900, 48.7 per cent. of the electorate went to the polls; in 1906, 77.7 per cent., and in 1910 (the election on the Lloyd-George budget), 84.5 per cent. That was England's banner election. The "khaki election" of 1918 brought only 49.8 per cent. to the polls, but then the circumstances were unusual. Demobilization had not been completed and the Representation of the People act had just increased the electorate from 8,357,648 to 21,392,322.

England has certain sections which resemble the Solid South in leaving small doubt what members will be returned. Thus the Conservatives are reasonably sure of a majority of the twelve university seats. They now have nine and the Liberals two, with the University of Wales returning an independent Labor candidate. The Conservatives have at present eleven of the thirteen members allowed Ulster, and in several London boroughs and English counties, while there will be contests, the Conservative primacy will be unquestioned. It is probable also that the bulk of the Conservative members will come from England. Including the Irish, the Conservatives had 258 members of the last House of Commons. Only twenty of them came from Wales and Scotland. In the counties there are solid blocks of territory controlled by the Conservatives, who elect approximately one-half of the total allotted number. Of the Labor membership in the House of Commons, 136 represent trade unions, the rest being divided among a number of professions. But of these 136 no less than 46 are miners. Labor strength is so concentrated in these mining districts that one-fifth of the members of the Trade Union Congress return one-third of the trade union representatives in the House of Commons. Forty-one of these miners are elected for districts where they reside, but if they are excluded, as constituting a special bloc, four-fifths of the House of Commons are elected on grounds of national policy rather than sectional interest; they are, that is to say, unconnected by residence with the constituencies they represent.

The expenses of the British election, as a whole, are much less than ours. The election of 1922 cost the candidates about $5,000,000, a good part of which was paid by the party organizations. The cost to the candidate is severely limited on the basis of the electorate in his constituency. He is permitted to spend 7 pence per vote in the counties and 5 pence in the boroughs. When the constituency is joint—that is, returning two members—the expenses for each are limited to 3¾ pence per vote. This means that, in a constituency with 40,000 in the electorate, the candidate can spend $5,500 in a county, $4,000 in a borough and $3,000 if two members are returned. The English law is highly detailed on the practices which the candidates and their agents must avoid. They cannot bring the voters to the polls in hired vehicles; they must put the printers' names on all posters, and they cannot have bands of music or give away flags or colored ribbons or favors.

Without the university representation there are 603 members of the House. Each member should represent 72,931 inhabitants. England should have 453 instead of 485 as at present; Wales should have one more than her 35, and Scotland 67 instead of 71. Ireland is under-represented by five members. But this apportionment is much better than in most countries. It is far less anomalous than the situation in the United States, where Congress has several times been unable to agree on what should be done with the results of the 1920 census.

THE REPUBLICAN GODDESS.

Secretary HUGHES at Kansas City on Monday night discovered "the paramount issue" of this campaign. It is not the one which General DAWES singled out in his speech of acceptance, and which Mr. HUGHES himself and President COOLIDGE have often given first place. It has nothing to do with defending the Constitution. It is something more "practical." According to Secretary HUGHES, the chief question which the voters are to be called upon to decide is "whether we shall have sound business conditions or uncertainty and confusion; whether we shall have prosperity and progress or unrest, stagnant trade and unemployment." This is fully in line with the appeal of a Republican soliciting campaign funds which Mr. DAVIS read at his meeting in Jersey City, and which said "the prosperity of your own business is the most important thing you can vote for."

Everybody except anarchists wants the country to be prosperous. We must have solid physical foundations on which to build ideals of government. But to talk about bread and butter when honesty and humanity are pressing for a hearing is scarcely worthy of the political party which has boasted that it is a party of moral ideas. Mr. DAVIS was justified in turning with scorn from the sordid utterance which he quoted, to ask if there is, then, "nothing in justice, equity, fair dealing, equality before the law, and the stamping out of privilege and corruption."

Apply a simple test to this final argument of the Republicans at the close of the campaign. How would it have been received by the public if it had been brought forward at the time of the staggering revelations of Republican corruption last Winter? Would Mr. HUGHES have thought of defending Secretary FALL by pointing out that he had always stood firmly for a protective tariff and the American market for American goods? Many pleas in avoidance were made for Attorney General DAUGHERTY, but no one thought it would exculpate him to assert that he was an ardent friend of prosperity and wanted every workingman in Ohio to have his dinner pail full. At that time the universal feeling was that there were more important things for the Government to do than to help people make money. The big question was what was to be done with the money after it was made. If it was used merely to promote extravagance and to foster corruption in office, it would be better for all concerned if it had never been made. No Republican dared lift his voice to preach a high tariff and prosperity when disclosure after disclosure was shaking the confidence of the whole nation in the Government. Then it would have everywhere been taken not only as an evasion but an insult to appeal to the country to keep a smirched Administration in power for the sake of having good times.

Mr. HUGHES would surely not wish to have Americans act in the spirit of the people of Ephesus in the Apostolic Age. No one can be more familiar than he is with the Scripture account. Preachers of righteousness and a spiritual religion were attacked by the makers of silver shrines for a heathen goddess, on the ground that "ye know that by this craft we have our wealth." In the agitation that resulted the people of the city cried out with one voice for about the space of two hours, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians!" When not campaigning for his party, it is certain that Mr. HUGHES would not desire his fellow-countrymen to forget everything else and cry out, "Great is the Fordney-McCumber tariff!"

HERRIOT RECOGNIZES THE SOVIETS.

French recognition of the Soviet Government is on the new model created by MACDONALD last Winter. Recognition of one Government by another used to mean that the recognizing Government had satisfied itself that normal relations with the party of the second part were feasible and desirable. MACDONALD's de jure recognition of Moscow established a form of international trial marriage. You recognized first and then you proceeded to find out if you could live together. One might have thought that the unhappy consequences for MACDONALD would give pause to the Premier at Paris. To have gone ahead argues courage on the part of M. HERRIOT. Either that or necessity.

Such necessity would arise from the pressure of internal politics. When MACDONALD and HERRIOT were both in opposition, recognition of the Soviet Government had become a part of the Radical creed. This does not mean that they were in love with the Soviet theory or practice. MACDONALD has repeatedly paid his respects to the Communist system in Russia in unmistakable terms. HERRIOT has not been so outspoken, but there is no question that he shares in the opinion of the Soviet Government entertained by the great mass of Socialists and Radicals in Western Europe. Nevertheless, recognition of the Soviets had established itself as part of the tactics against "reaction" at home. When MACDONALD and HERRIOT came into power they found themselves bound by their previous record. There were enough wild men in the House of Commons to make trouble for MACDONALD, and there are many more such men in the Chamber of Deputies.

The so-called economic reason for recognizing the Moscow Government is of minor importance. Especially is this true in the case of France, which cannot stress the argument of trade revival that has been emphasized in Great Britain. French trade with Russia before the war stood sixth or seventh among the nations doing business with Russia and amounted to about one-fifth of the British trade with Russia. Foreign commerce is for France not so vital as for Great Britain. The great French interest in Russia is the several billion dollars of French investments in Russian securities and industries. These investments are to be discussed under the formula on which recognition is based. The outcome is foreordained. France will receive the same academic recognition of her claims that has been extended to Great Britain. That the Soviet Government is in no position to pay is a commonplace. The idea is that it is to be put into a position ultimately to pay through the rehabilitation of Russia's industries—with French money. But the prospects for such new investments, representing real money put into Russia, would seem to be at least as unfavorable as the present outlook for the British loan, of which three-fourths was to be spent in Great Britain.

AN ABLE SERVANT ABROAD.

EDWARD BELL, whose sudden death in Peking was announced yesterday, was the type of American professional diplomat of which the country stands in greater need than ever. Chargé d'Affaires in China, he had formerly been Counselor of the embassy and for more than a year Chargé d'Affaires in Tokio. Prior to that he had served as Secretary of our embassy in London. Such was his special knowledge of the problems of the East that at the time of the Washington conference he was called to the Department of State to serve as one of the special advisers. He was instrumental in bringing to a conclusion the negotiations about the evacuation of Shantung, and by his thorough understanding of the Chinese as well as the Japanese points of view was able to make his work unusually effective.

Mr. BELL was fortunate in having been stationed for a long time in the various posts to which he was assigned. He thus escaped the difficulties that so often beset diplomatic secretaries who are rapidly shunted about. Under the new reorganization of the foreign service, whereby the consular and diplomatic forces are united, it will be possible to command the services of a larger number of trained men familiar with the problems of a particular part of the world than was formerly the case. In this special knowledge our diplomatic secretaries in the past have too often been lacking. Under our system, whereby the chiefs of mission are political appointments, it is more than ever essential that the secretaries possess the specialized knowledge which the Ambassador or the Minister cannot be expected to have. They must also be able, as was EDWARD BELL, to take over the work of the Ambassador during his absence, and to conduct it with the acumen and tact of a full-fledged accredited representative of his Government. This he did so well in London, Tokio and Peking that the Government was content to leave him in complete charge longer than is customary.

Although the special abilities of Mr. BELL are not easily duplicated, it is to be hoped that the reorganized foreign service will attract a greater number of men possessing his capacities than did the old service. Under the reorganization the secretaries are assured a living wage. Furthermore, permanency of office is sure for all whose work is up to standard. Finally, they have a better prospect of being named chiefs of mission and of doing the important work which EDWARD BELL did. Each year finds our country more enmeshed in world affairs and thus needing more than ever the best available men in its foreign service. In peace and commerce they constitute the nation's first line of defense.

HAND-PICKED SCARECROWS.

Republican orators have been trying to drown the hue and cry at their heels by shouting about the Constitution and the La Follette peril. Senator CARTER GLASS, however, has just exhibited the shuddering Republican rescuers of the Supreme Court as the patrons and allies of a more dangerous attack on it. Mr. BORAH, whom nothing can drag from the Republican Party, is the author of a plan to require the concurrence of seven members of the Supreme Court in order to declare an act of Congress unconstitutional.

Whether or not this is, as Mr. GLASS believes, "more drastic" than anything advocated by Mr. LA FOLLETTE in this campaign, it is more insidious. The La Follette scheme is certain to go into the large limbo of such amendments. But it is conceivable that, through weakness, a desire to "satisfy the spirit of unrest," as a compromise, the Borah project might be adopted. It would make Congress supreme in certain circumstances, sacrifice the guarantees of the Constitution when less than seven members of the Supreme Court defend them against Congress, and put the Constitution at the mercy of Congress and a small minority of the court. Yet it comes from the Republican whom Mr. COOLIDGE wanted to be the Republican candidate for Vice President. It comes from the Republican for whose re-election to the Senate the Republican Senatorial Committee gave $2,500, of which Mr. BORAH turned over $500 to the Idaho Progressive Committee.

Only a decision of the State Supreme Court prevented Mr. BORAH from running both as a Republican and as a Progressive. He got the Progressive nomination. He will get the Progressive vote. Thus he will be returned to the Senate doubly consecrated as an assailant of "constitutional security" by the Idaho Republicans, approving his own foray against the Constitution, and by the Idaho Progressives who approve Mr. LA FOLLETTE's foray. It was easy for Senator GLASS to demonstrate the rapturous Republican hypocrisy in the case of Senator BORAH. Never has there been a more impudent attempt to mislead public opinion. Moreover, as Mr. GLASS says: "The concealed purpose is to deceive and frighten people, especially timid business men, into voting for Mr. COOLIDGE and against JOHN W. DAVIS, as 'a sure means of averting a disaster' which does not threaten, and which those Republican speakers positively know can in no event occur."

Dr. O'SHEA, the City Superintendent of Schools, has made public a report to the principals and teachers concerning the activities of the Junior Red Cross. Though organized in the days of the war, it has, as Miss MABEL BOARDMAN has said, "illimitable possibilities" in the world today. New York may claim the credit of having made this organization State-wide, and of having led in promoting the national organization which reached at one time a membership of more than 10,000,000 boys and girls. Nor has the movement been confined to the United States. There are 1,000,000 members in Italy, 250,000 in Prague, and hundreds of thousands in Poland and in other countries. In fact, it is its international membership that gives it greatest promise of usefulness. It is a channel of intercommunication for the youth of all nations, and its value is heightened as more and more countries are included.

Primarily and tangibly, it expresses itself in serviceable articles made or gathered by children for those in need either at home or abroad. The variety of its work is seen in such items as these: Supplying eyeglasses and artificial eyes to poor children; making garments; sending toys and candy to children's institutions at Christmas time; and giving funds for the relief of children in Albania, and for the crippled children in Prague, whose remarkable singing is still remembered by those who heard a group of them in concert in this country two years ago. A relief fund of $68,000 was given by the Junior Red Cross at the time of the Japanese earthquake disaster and a large consignment of clothing was sent to Lorain, Ohio, after the tornado, all the articles having been made by children in the New York schools. A great deal has also been done for ex-service men by the children, and a large contribution made toward the national children's fund.

All this cultivates mindfulness of others less fortunate than themselves on the part of children in the schools. It also extends their acquaintance as well as their sympathies and is a means of developing the "international mind." Every possible support should be given its continued activity, for its service will lead in the direction of better understanding among peoples when the present "juniors" become the "seniors" in world affairs.

THE LEAGUE AND MOSUL.

It is not all that is calming the troubled waters in which Great Britain and Turkey are rival fishermen. To the Angora Government the Mosul fields promise revenues indispensable to the re-establishment of national life—and incidentally a means of enlisting the sympathy, perhaps of securing the protection, of the United States. To England, oil is the life-blood of her navy. The disputed lands of the Iraq frontier have been invaded by Turkish troops, above which British airplanes hover. Meanwhile the fate of the Kurds and the Yezidi-Kurds is at stake, as also that of the Assyro-Chaldeans, already reduced from 400,000 to little over 100,000 by Turkish persecution and massacre. According to precedent the result should be conflagration. Yet the present prospect is of a lasting settlement.

The peaceful process began a month ago at Geneva. At a session of the Council of the League of Nations FETHI Bey took his seat among the representatives of the great nations, confronting Lord PARMOOR across the board. In the hearing of over a hundred representatives of the press they read their opposing statements. The referee was a committee of the Council headed by HJALMAR BRANTING of Sweden. Questions of fact proved difficult. FETHI Bey agreed with Lord PARMOOR that they should respect the status quo, the Iraq frontier as fixed by the Treaty of Lausanne. Time was needed to ascertain facts and permit full discussion of them. So we have the present extraordinary session of the Council at Brussels. At the outset the disputants had agreed only to state their claims before the League Council, but now they have pledged themselves to abide by the decision of the Branting committee.

Whatever this is, bad blood is likely to remain. The outlook is especially dark for the native tribes. Under the existing treaty, the British mandate lasts only four years, after which the province of Iraq is to have full independence. Quite possibly the fate of the Armenians awaits the Assyro-Chaldeans. In addition, Mosul is at the crossroads of the routes from the Mediterranean to India, from the Persian Gulf to Asia Minor, from Caucasia to Syria. Yet the path toward a peaceful solution has been blazed and trodden. Facts have been established and rights solemly guaranteed. The machinery of the peace of justice has been assembled and put in working order. And Turkey has given hostages for the future by applying for membership in the League of Nations.

Amid the grandiose effort at Geneva to "outlaw war," this handling of the Mosul question received little public attention. Yet it is one of a dozen similar endeavors which on the whole have been highly successful. And it is not unlikely to prove the more significant, the more lasting contribution to the peace of the world. For no protocol will avail if it is not based upon definite and widespread will toward peace and a habit of frequenting the established paths of justice.

A GREAT FOOTBALL COACH.

The late PERCY D. HAUGHTON was doubtless the most famous figure in American college football. He had played the game himself, but there have been many better players. As a coach, however, he had no superior. All the "systems" founded by others were variants of his. Some of his rivals had original ideas and personalities as strong, if not as supple, as HAUGHTON's. They did wonderful things with raw material, but one always felt that, if he had had the same youngsters to lick into shape and train in the combinations and tactics of the game, he would have accomplished results even more remarkable. When the old game of mass plays, in which brawn, weight and punishing impact counted so much for victory, gave way to the game of open plays, the genius of PERCY HAUGHTON was unhampered. The present director of athletics at Yale, JOHN T. BLOSSOM, pays a merited tribute when he says that HAUGHTON was "pre-eminently the man who brought out the new game" and was "a pioneer in developing it."

A strategist always, HAUGHTON taught his squad exactly what to do not only in a set play but in an emergency. He used the blackboard a great deal, but when his teams were on the field going through his formations he watched with the eye of a hawk every movement of the players. A word of praise was treasured, but when things were going wrong his expletives brought the bungler up with a round turn. He could jump into the fray and show how things ought to be done. It was understood that hard language breaks no bones, and he could smile when he used it. HAUGHTON was a severe but a calculating disciplinarian. During the period of training every man had to live a Spartan life. Football was talked into him in his waking hours. If he did not make touchdowns and kick goals in his dreams, it was no fault of HAUGHTON's. The fighting spirit and the will to win were eternally preached. Yale men admired HAUGHTON even when they feared his many inventions and his robust leadership.

When he came to Columbia he announced that "the football squad is going to be like an army—strict discipline and obedience on the part of every man." There were to be no favorites. Every man who volunteered was "to get a chance." At organization HAUGHTON was adept. "When things begin to move along nicely," said he, "we are going to have some scrimmages and a little fun." But after all it was as a strategist that he excelled. He constantly added to his box of tricks. He could make a football team out of any youngsters of good physique. At Columbia he had a wealth of good material. In his first year he worked a revolution in methods of training and play, laying the foundation of a strong eleven. In this year he was moving steadily toward success when death struck him down. The victory of Columbia over Williams, the conqueror of Cornell, was so decisive that Columbia may well aspire to the first rank before the season ends. The credit belonged to PERCY HAUGHTON, fair fighter, good sportsman and born leader. While his place cannot be filled, his work may be carried on.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A New Law Imposed on Orators.

Already most of the younger campaigners have adjusted themselves to the new demands created by the radio. They are able, without too much loss of vivacity, to keep in mind that they have an audience larger, at least in theory and hope, than the one before them, and that they must speak so as to be heard not only by the people whom they can see but also by others, unseen and yet perhaps even more important.

That every word shall be heard the orator must never forget the microphone before him. He cannot get in front of that exigent machine, or turn away from it, lest for a space and for the listeners scattered over several counties his voice fade into unintelligibility or disappear altogether. The older speakers have more trouble in maintaining this watchfulness, feel more hampered by it and are inclined to be irritable when the radio's guardian sprite nudges their arms or pulls their coattails and whispers warning that they have offended the new law of oratory.

While ELIHU ROOT was delivering his address at the Union League Club Monday evening he showed that he has difficulty in making speeches in a way to which his long experience has not accustomed him. For most of the time he remembered the microphone, and his beautifully constructed sentences reached his remote listeners as well as they did those that were near; but then would come a more emotional moment and Mr. ROOT would step aside or away. Then the radiates, if that name fits them, would miss a point that they were particularly eager to catch. Instead, they would hear a murmured exhortation and an anxious reminder, and then Mr. ROOT's voice would come again loud and clear, revealing that he is a reasonable person and docile on occasion.

That he was a bit fretted by the unfamiliar restriction on his platform movements and manners was disclosed once, when he said, not to, but about, the microphone: "Oh, well, it looks like a Democrat, and I can talk to it!" That, too, however, was broadcast, and the laughter it caused was not confined to the clubhouse.

Audiences of Millions Are Rarities.

In the very nature of things it is impossible to know to just what extent the campaign managers, by putting their orators "on the air," increase the number of hearers reached by their arguments and their pleadings. That the increment is considerable, in the case of speeches that have been well advertised beforehand and when the speaker is of sufficient eminence or notoriety to excite public interest, cannot be questioned; but even then it is absurd to assume that anything like all owners of receiving sets within a radius of a hundred miles or more have "tuned in" on the particular station that does the broadcasting, and nothing is more absurd, except in very exceptional cases, than to talk about an audience of 10,000,000 or even 5,000,000.

Perhaps something like a million heard General PERSHING bid farewell to his old companions in arms on the eve of his retirement from active service; but that was a very notable occasion, and a somewhat pathetic one as well, and to make the conversation of the fine old soldier audible all over the country the telephone company and the broadcasters had cooperated to an extent never before attempted.

What the elaborate preparations then made would have cost if a great army of high and low officials had not worked for nothing, or rather for glory, would have appalled even the Republican National Committee, well supplied with funds as it is supposed to be.

Broadcasting is expensive, and whether or not it pays as a political device nobody yet really knows. It is a fact, however, that just the right kind of speech over the radio does have many attentive listeners, and they are not the selected and friendly audiences of the political meetings. The orator has now a new and real chance to reach his party opponents, and if his arguments are good enough and his presentation of them skilful enough, he may convert some of them to what he regards as the true faith.

Precautions Not Sufficient.

Just what was doing, and with just what, in the Bayway laboratory of the Standard Oil Company is still somewhat uncertain; but it is plain that what killed three of the workers there and drove more or less insane something like a dozen others was the inhaling for a considerable number of days of fumes that contained lead in a finely divided state. They were engaged either in testing or making an ingredient which, added to gasoline, increases its efficiency as a fuel for automobile engines by making its combustion at once slower and more nearly perfect.

The end sought was entirely legitimate, and the company officials assert that they had taken and followed high scientific advice in the conduct of these operations. The precautions that had been devised turned out to have been insufficient, and if better ones cannot be invented it is evident that this particular addition to gasoline will have to be abandoned.

What chiefly concerns the public safety, however, is not what happened in the laboratory, but the possibility, by some experts called the probability, that the use in automobiles of gasoline thus modified may diffuse through streets of heavy traffic the same deadly form of lead that had such terrible results in the laboratory. It may be assumed that the Standard Oil Company does not intend to poison its customers.

His Courage Cost Him His Life.

From the fate of LOUIS K. RITTENHOUSE one can understand why it is that the police everywhere advise submission to armed robbers rather than defiance of them, and declare that for the weaponless man to attack assailants of this sort is unwise.

No doubt they are right; but there are several sorts of wisdom, and while it certainly is the taking of great and unnecessary risk for the honest citizen to assume the offensive, or even the defensive, when the odds against him are so great as when he starts a fight with men prepared and ready to kill, yet that honest citizens do this now and then, and that now and then one of them dies as a result of it, gives a thrill of admiration to all who hear the story, while submission to ruthless exploitation awakens only cold recognition of good sense.

Nobody is under any obligation to be heroic or to defend his rights even at the risk or cost of life; but the men who do it are the glories of the race, and they are, too, its best defense against its enemies. If pistol-bearing thieves never encountered any resistance they would rule every community.

The police, fortunately, do not follow the advice they give to other people. They have another motto than "safety first." At any rate, the safety they consider first is not their own, but that of those whom it is their duty to protect, regardless of personal peril.

CLOSE FOR COOLIDGE IN CALIFORNIA

Situation There Recalls That Existing in 1916 When Hughes Lost the State and Johnson Won It.

BY EDWARD G. LOWRY.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 28.—Here in California a condition exists that strikingly recalls the 1916 situation when Hughes lost the State by a narrow margin and Johnson won it by a large vote. That political phenomenon, when subjected to a close examination, lent itself to a clear and simple explanation. In a general way the same basic factors are operating today. They may cost Mr. Coolidge the State.

As matters stand today one week before the election he has the advantage over La Follette, but not a great one. In this one State, at least, the contest is wholly between the Republican candidates.

To make the distinction sharper, the Coolidge people in all their printed matter call La Follette the Socialist candidate and his supporters the Socialist Party. The designation is grotesquely inaccurate, but it serves a campaign purpose.

Mr. Coolidge is threatened with defeat in this State because he does not conform to the predominant brand of Republicanism, which is progressive. That is what ailed Mr. Hughes. The situation is clearly understood here and but vaguely in the East, where it is the custom to lump California with the normally Republican States. But there are two distinct and sharply defined factions or groups among the Republicans of the State, and they wage constant and increasing warfare.

The schism began in 1910, and crystallized in 1912 in the Progressive Party, under the leadership of Theodore Roosevelt and Hiram Johnson. When the Progressive Party dissolved, the group that made up its membership in California did not lose its identity and its cohesion. It was having a little contest with those who had remained Republicans for the control of the State organization and machinery.

In 1916 when Mr. Hughes came into the State he aligned himself with the old-line regular Republicans and allowed himself to become identified with their quarrel. Chester Rowell said at the time: "Hughes spilled the beans." So he did.

This fight has kept up without ceasing at every State and national election and at every primary. Sometimes the Johnson or Progressive group has been successful. In the May Presidential primaries this year, for example, Johnson was soundly trounced and the regular Republicans carried the State for Coolidge over the Progressives. But at the August primaries to name candidates for the Legislature and set up a State Committee and State organization Johnson's friends the Progressives won and now control the State machine. This State organization is supporting Coolidge, though Johnson is taking no part in the campaign.

The actual management of the Coolidge campaign, however, is in the hands of another group calling itself the Coolidge-Dawes Republican League of California and headed by Hoover's friend, Mark L. Requa. It confines its activities to the national campaign.

Now the present alignment behind Coolidge and La Follette is precisely this old alignment of the progressive and regular Republicans.

The Progressives are behind La Follette and their numbers are augmented by a considerable backing of Democrats, who, realizing that Davis cannot carry the State, are doing what they can to insure that Coolidge does not. They are helping preserve a split among the Republicans of California that has now endured for fourteen years.

As always, the regular Republican, or in this instance the Coolidge, strength lies in the south. Politically and in many other respects California is really two States. Roughly the Progressive strength is north of the Tehachapi Mountains among the Californians. The other group derives its potency from the great influx of Iowans and other Middle Westerners who in recent years have poured in such an increasing flood into Los Angeles and the adjacent territory in the South. This is a broad generalization, but it is basically accurate. Previous election results and the present registration figures confirm it.

The total registration in California this year is 1,822,000. That is much larger than ever before, and this is particularly true in the south. The eight counties south of the Tehachapi Mountains show a total registered vote of 860,000, of which 656,000 are in Los Angeles County alone. The registration north of the mountains is 962,000. The Democratic registration in the eight southern counties is 185,000 and in the north 213,000. Of the total number of registered voters 195,000 declined to say what their political affiliations were this year.

Such, then, is the numerical basis and the background in sketchiest outline that make California such an uncertain State this year. If the big Republican vote in the south went solidly for Coolidge and if he carried a fair share of the vote north of the mountains, and if numbers of Democrats were not known to be for La Follette, then the President would be in an easy posture here. But there is a present likelihood that La Follette will have a big vote in the south and that he will go down to the mountains with an advantage over Coolidge, and that his Democratic support will not be despicable in quantity.

The campaign has not a single aspect of novelty to the Californians. It is the contest between the Progressives and the regulars that they have engaged in at every primary and election since 1910. The Coolidge supporters are men of large interests, the business element and employers and other conservatives. The La Follette people here, as elsewhere, are the employed, labor, railroad people, small business men, small farmers, the less well to do.

Just at this moment the La Follette managers are much concerned and wrought up over a number of form letters that have fallen into their hands prepared at the Coolidge headquarters and designed to be sent out by various types of employers to their employes. One is described as written by a builder to an employe, another by a large company to its superintendent, a third by a local merchant to his employes and a comprehensive form letter "for use in the packing and fruit industry, but also applicable for other allied lines."

Frank R. Havenner, campaign director here for La Follette, says:

"Specific evidence of a widespread conspiracy among corporations and big employers to intimidate and coerce working men and women into voting against La Follette is contained in letters that are being mailed to big business men throughout California by the Coolidge Campaign Committee.

"Copies of these letters have been sent to the La Follette State Campaign Committee by employers who do not believe in coercion and who have protested against the brazen attempts of the Republican organization to involve them.

"These letters request employers to 'educate' the employes that it is to their best interests to vote for the Republican candidates. A frank admission of fear of the widespread sentiment for La Follette is contained in the statement that 'it will not be the policy to mention by name the Socialist candidate.' Employers are asked to 'work through those qualified in your establishment to spread the message and make yourself the directing head of work in your establishment.'

"The letters further state that 'we cannot hope for continued success without the personal and immediate assistance of every employer.'

"Suggestion for type letters to be written by various classes of employers to their employes are contained in the correspondence sent by the Coolidge headquarters to the employers. There are type letters for builders, merchants, railroads, fruit packers and shippers, oil companies and many other kinds of industries. All of these letters are designed to hold up to working men and women the alleged danger of unemployment and poverty if the Republican Party is not successful. The various classes of employers are cautioned, however, to word their letters to employes in such fashion that they cannot be held guilty of coercion and intimidation.

"Direct admission of the apprehension felt by the Republican campaign managers is set forth in a type letter to be written by the executive heads of a large corporation to their superintendent and in turn transmitted by him to the employes.

"'There does not seem to be any doubt of Mr. Coolidge securing a plurality in the coming election,' says this letter, 'but it is not assured that he will obtain a sufficient majority to elect him and avoid the election being thrown into the Senate. Such a condition, as you well understand, could not help but be detrimental to the best interests of every one, and especially to the State of California.'

"I intend to bring these form letters to the attention of the Borah committee and of our national headquarters and see if something cannot be done to stop them. No man should be threatened with unemployment for voting his beliefs."

California quite well may provide the great surprise of this year's election, as she did once before.

Subways and Taxes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the discussion of the proposed new subways but little attention seems to be paid to the fact that the interest charges on the cost of a new subway are very soon equaled by the increase in tax receipts which come from higher appraisals along the route.

I recently investigated, for a group of real estate investors, the probable effects of the Central Park West-Washington Heights line, if built, on west side real estate values above Seventy-second Street. Based upon the results following the construction of other subways in somewhat similar territory, I estimated that the value of real estate directly on the line of this subway should gain very nearly 50 per cent. on present values within two years after the trains were in actual operation. For conservatism, however, I reduced this average to 40 per cent.

The largest gains in dollars would be in the value of existing apartment houses along the route. The largest gains in per cent. would be in vacant lots toward the upper end of the route, or on lots bearing taxpayers used for business purposes. Smaller gains, of course, would be shown by real estate on abutting side streets.

The effect of these increased values on tax collections would be surprising to one who has not studied the subject. For example, the average appraised value on Central Park West from Seventy-second Street to 110th Street now exceeds $1,000,000 to the block. If this were increased as estimated by $400,000 to the block, the total gain would be over $15,000,000. If taxed at 2 per cent., the additional taxes thus collected would pay 4 per cent. interest on $7,500,000, and this does not cover additional taxes obtained on the side streets, which would be large but more difficult to estimate.

It is this fact which has enabled New York City to build its subways without any material increase in tax rates which could be charged to subway building—the higher rates in recent years being mostly chargeable to other expenses. G. O. SELDEN.

A Solution Is Suggested.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Noting the calamity Dr. Syntax is about to foster and realizing what a disastrous effect it might have by taking our thoughts away from the election, I hasten to make the following suggestions and trust they may help to calm the doctor's fear as well as steady the fluttering nerves of his followers:

If a partnership consists of a man and a woman, it will in the majority of cases be perfectly correct to address them Mr. and Mrs.

If a partnership consists of a man and two women, it is in order to acknowledge it as bigamy and the correct term may be obtained from the Judge.

The same ruling may apply to the case of two men and one woman.

CONTINUITY.

Old Eph was eighty, but the thrumming zest
Of twenty stirred the drying sap
Of him that day he reckoned he "had best
Set out them apple trees." Mayhap
He'd wake up dead some springing night—
Best get them planted while he might.

He planted them. You should have seen his eyes,
When from his labor he arose,
Poor trembling hands propped on his aching thighs,
And squinted proudly down the rows
Of slender stalks some day to bear
Red apples he could never share.

Eph had no son to follow him to toil,
And reap where he had proudly sown;
His only daughter had renounced the soil—
He planted apple trees alone.
A passing neighbor laughed, and yet
The whole wide world stands in Eph's debt.

An old man plants an apple tree
That is sentenced Mummidge.

J. B. FORGAN DIES; SANG HYMNS AT END

Dean of Chicago Bankers Succumbs to Heart Disease After a Hemorrhage.

BIDS FAMILY FAREWELL

Sen Gave His Blood in a Vain Transfusion Effort—His Career as Financier.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—James B. Forgan, dean of the Chicago banking fraternity and Chairman of the board of both the First National and the First Trust and Savings Bank, died this evening at the Presbyterian Hospital. He was 72 years old.

Death resulted from heart disease. It came as he lay conscious waiting the end. He knew that his time was not long about two hours before he died, and he summoned the immediate members of his family beside his bed, one by one, for his last messages.

A half hour before his heart, gradually weakening under the load, stopped the aged banker joined his voice with that of his friend, the Rev. John Timothy Stone, in singing a number of hymns.

"I've put up the best fight I could," he told his nurse when he first felt the approach of death. It was then he asked to see his wife, his children, their wives and a grandchild and the Rev. Dr. Stone.

Mr. Forgan's physician, Dr. Ralph Brown, said heart weakness following hemorrhage caused by ulcerations of the stomach was the immediate cause of death.

JAMES BERWICK FORGAN,
Chairman of the Board of Directors of the First National Bank of Chicago, Who Died Yesterday.

Stricken at His Desk.

He was stricken at his desk in the bank last Friday and was found by an associate on the floor of his office suffering a hemorrhage. He was taken to the hospital. Later it was found necessary to resort to a blood transfusion, and the banker's son, James F. Forgan Jr., volunteered and gave more than a pint of his blood.

For a time the patient seemed to rally, and it was thought possible that he would recover. But early this afternoon Mr. Forgan's heart began to fail. The passing was calm and peaceful. Mr. Forgan recognized all the members of his family, including his wife Mary. The others present, besides Dr. Stone, were his sons, James B. Jr. and Robert, and their wives, and Donald Forgan, another son; Davis Forgan, a brother; Miss Jane Murray, a sister of the widowed Mrs. Forgan, and Miss Mary Ott, a granddaughter.

Mr. Forgan's body was removed immediately to his home at 1,415 North Dearborn Street. It is probable that a public funeral will be held at which Mr. Forgan's countless friends and business associates may pay their last respects.

Born in Scotland.

James Berwick Forgan was born at St. Andrews, Scotland, April 11, 1852, one of three sons of Robert Forgan, an expert maker of golf balls and golf clubs. Of his two brothers, David is President of the National City Bank of Chicago, and the third succeeded to their father's business. The Forgan golf clubs are still regarded highly by golf players all over the world.

James Forgan got his education at Madras College, St. Andrews, and at Forres Academy, where his uncle was rector for half a century. At this period he had thoughts of studying for the bar, but an uncle, who was local agent for the Royal Bank of Scotland, turned him into a banking apprentice. After three years' training he entered the employ of the Bank of British North America, first in London and then crossed the sea to Montreal, New York and Halifax.

His appearance—tall, strong, clean cut, character showing in every line of his bearing—caught the attention of the directors of the Bank of Nova Scotia, and they engaged him as paying teller. He studied banking in his spare time, and on the illness of the manager of the Yarmouth branch was able to seize the opportunity. His report on the branch showed such keenness that, when only 30, he was made inspector of branches, other advancements following quickly.

Succeeded Lyman J. Gage.

Sent out to establish a new branch in Minneapolis, his work made such an impression that he was offered the cashiership of the Northwestern National Bank there. He took hold of each new responsibility with the same vigor and thoroughness, and before long he had made the Northwestern one of the strongest institutions in its territory. His name was carried into other States. He was being spoken of as a banking executive fit for the highest honors. Lyman J. Gage was one of those who appreciated his merit, and in 1892 made him Vice President of the First National of Chicago. In 1900, when Mr. Gage became Secretary of the Treasury, he was succeeded in the Presidency by Mr. Forgan.

Under the Presidency of Mr. Forgan the assets of the bank grew from $49,379,962 on Jan. 9, 1900, to $258,412,781 on Jan. 31, 1915, the deposits increasing in the same period from $43,246,375 to $215,916,039. On Jan. 1, 1916, Mr. Forgan became Chairman of the board, but he continued to take an active part in the bank's affairs.

But the President was more than an extremely successful improver of bank statements. He concerned himself with the character and welfare of all his employes. Every office boy on entering his service received a fatherly talk from the President, who advised him how to conduct himself to earn promotion, urging him to begin that moment to shape his career. A banker who learned the substance of one of these talks said that it was no wonder the Forgan banks were successful, for their leader inspired his men with such splendid spirit.

For twenty-one years Mr. Forgan was Chairman of the Clearing House Committee, for five years he was a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, and for six years President of the Federal Advisory Council of the Federal Reserve Board at Washington. This last position is regarded as an emphatic national tribute of the esteem in which he was held by his fellow-bankers.

WILLIAM E. LEWIS, PUBLISHER, DEAD

Head of The Morning Telegraph Dies at His Great Neck Home After Two Years' Illness.

William Eugene Lewis, President of the Lewis Publishing Company, which publishes The Morning Telegraph, died at 7:30 yesterday morning at his home, Woodleigh, Great Neck, L. I., after a two years' illness. He was a younger brother of the late Alfred Henry Lewis, the writer. The near relatives surviving are his wife, formerly Miss Frances Oviatt of Cleveland; a son, Major Tracy Hammond Lewis, associate editor of The Morning Telegraph; a daughter, Mrs. Ethel Oviatt Grose of Great Neck, and a brother and sister in Los Angeles. Funeral services will be held from his late residence at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Mr. Lewis was born in Cleveland about 63 years ago and educated at the schools of Cleveland and Painesville, Ohio, and intended, as did his brother Alfred, to become a lawyer. In 1887, shortly after his marriage, he was made Secretary of the Board of Improvements of Cleveland, and in 1889 was admitted to the bar. He moved the next year to Kansas City, where his father lived, and he still means to practice law, but instead followed the example of Alfred and entered journalism as a reporter for The Kansas City News, now out of existence. He became city editor and managing editor of that paper.

Evidently his work made a more than local impression, for in 1891 he was offered, and accepted, the managing editorship of The Chicago Times, going to Washington three years later as its correspondent. When William Randolph Hearst bought the old Morning Journal from Albert Pulitzer he engaged the two Lewis brothers as his representatives at the capital, but at the outbreak of the war with Spain, William was put in command of the Hearst dispatch boat, and thus witnessed many of the important engagements of the war.

For a few months after the war Mr. Lewis was the Hearst correspondent at Albany, until he joined Blakely Hall, the owner of The Morning Telegraph, as managing editor. He had held this post for less than two years when he went to Philadelphia as managing editor of Thomas B. Wanamaker's North American. But in 1903, when Edward R. Thomas purchased control of The Morning Telegraph, Mr. Lewis returned to the paper, this time forming an association that ended only with his death.

Mr. Lewis was a director of the Bank of Great Neck, the Thomas Engraving Company and the Industries Development Company. He was a member of the Order of Founders and Patriots of America, the Lotos, Green Room, Oakland Golf and Manhasset Bay Yacht Clubs.

HAROLD M. SEWALL OF MAINE DIES HERE

State's Republican National Committeeman Expires After a Slight Operation.

Harold M. Sewall of Bath, Me., Republican National Committeeman from that State, died yesterday at 301 East Nineteenth Street after a slight operation. Mr. Sewall was the son of the late Arthur Sewall, who was Democratic candidate for the Vice Presidency in 1896 and head of the famous shipbuilding family of that name.

The recent State campaign in Maine was largely in the hands of Mr. Sewall. He came from Bath to New York several days ago. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Gertrude Ashe Sewall, daughter of the late Richard Porter Ashe of San Francisco; by two daughters, Mrs. Walter E. Edge, wife of United States Senator Edge of New Jersey, and Mrs. John W. Williams of Baltimore; also by two sons, Loyall Sewall, a Fifth Avenue, and Arthur Sewall of Bath. A brother, William D. Sewall, is President of the Bath National Bank. Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed.

Mr. Sewall was Consul General at Samoa in the late eighties and opposed the German pretensions there. He was attaché of the commission which negotiated the Berlin Treaty of 1889 for the joint government of Samoa, and following his reappointment as Consul General he secured the site for the naval station at Pago Pago. He was Minister to Hawaii in 1897 and the next year received the transfer of the sovereignty of the islands, acting afterward as special agent of the United States until the organization of the territory. He served a term in both Houses of the Maine Legislature, and in 1921 was on the Advisory Committee of the Conference for Limitation of Armament.

12 ORPHANS IN COURT IN SUIT FOR $100,000

One Says They Were There as Warning to Those Who Drive Autos Carelessly.

FATHER KILLED BY A TRUCK

Aunt, as Administratrix, Asks Damages From Contractors—Neighbors Help Family.

Twelve orphans, ranging in ages from 20 years to 8 months, seated in a row in the Queens Supreme Court yesterday, before Justice Leander B. Faber, constituted an exhibit in the trial of an action brought by Margaret Hughes, their aunt, as administratrix of the estate of their father, John Dugan, against Sullivan Bros., contractors of Flushing, to recover $100,000 for Dugan's death.

Dugan was riding a bicycle on Broadway, near Parsons Avenue, Flushing, on Aug. 8 last, when he was run down by a truck owned by Sullivan Bros. and driven by Thomas Cullen of College Point. Dugan was returning to his work from his home at 97 Robinson Avenue, Flushing, where he had just visited his wife, who had been brought home that morning from the hospital, convalescent from an operation. A rear wheel of the truck passed over Dugan, who died in Flushing Hospital half an hour later.

The shock of the death of her husband and her efforts to care for her twelve children were said to have been the cause of Mrs. Dugan's death on Oct. 4.

Mary Dugan, the eldest child, is a telephone operator in Flushing and earns $21 a week. Elizabeth, 18 years old, acts as housekeeper at the Dugan home which their father, who was a grocer's clerk, was paying for when he was killed.

Neighbors have helped the children. One contribution of $1,800 has been made for their support, and more money will come from a benefit given last week.

"The $1,800 we received as a gift has been placed in the bank," said Mary Dugan yesterday. "We don't intend to touch that until we have to. We have been using the $1,100 we received from papa's insurance and $600 we received from mama's. I am the only one that is now earning anything, although John, 17, expects to get a job and James and Fred are working a little after school. We are going to keep all the children in school until they get through the grammar grades at least."

Elizabeth was on the witness stand yesterday. Asked by the attorney for the defendants why all the children were brought into court, she said:

"They are here because it was the dying wish of my mother that they should be brought to court as an example and a warning for those who would drive automobiles carelessly."

Several witnesses for the plaintiff were heard. The defendants allege that Dugan's death was due to carelessness. Patrolman Francis Brick of the Flushing Precinct, testified that about a week before he was killed Dugan had ridden his bicycle in front of an approaching automobile and was almost ridden down, and that he had warned Dugan about riding in that manner.

The case will be continued today.

VERIFIES BURIED CITY ON NEVADA PLAINS

M. R. Harrington Estimates 20,000 Pueblo Indians Lived There 3,000 Years Ago.

RENO, Nev., Oct. 28.—The first detailed account of a buried Pueblo city, which 3,000 or more years ago housed probably 20,000 people in Southeastern Nevada, was brought to Reno yesterday by M. R. Harrington of the Museum of the American Indian, New York City, who returned from a ten-day investigation.

"The ruins, covered with sand, run in a continuous line six miles and are about a half mile wide," he said.

"The outlines of houses of stone and adobe and stone pavements are clearly seen. Cornerstones jutted out of the sand, and here and there the rectangular ground plan of a house could be seen. Everywhere were myriads of pieces of broken pottery.

"Some of the stone was dressed, 18 by 12 inches, and sometimes rough slabs were set on edge and the adobe joined in and over to make the walls.

"The dunes covering the dwellings are in a valley in which are located numerous water mounds. Evidently there was more moisture and water in the district in those early days than now exists.

"We found corncobs about three inches long, and evidence that the people lived on the fruits of the chase and agricultural products. We found arrowheads and bones of deer."

The first clue to the existence of the buried city was from Jedediah Smith, who, in a letter written in 1827 to William Clark, Superintendent of Indian Affairs and member of the Lewis and Clark Expedition, told of visiting the district. However, no scientist ever had viewed the site until last week.

An expedition is being organized to uncover some of the buildings.

FINDS WATER CASED IN ROCK

Scientist Puts Its Age in Crystal Prison at 10,000,000 Years.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Drops of water more than 10,000,000 years old, preserved in quartz since an age before life began to appear on earth, will be exhibited in the Field Museum here.

The water was obtained in South America by O. C. Farrington, head of the museum's department of geology, who found it imprisoned in crystal quartz taken from rock formations at Bon Jesus dos Meiras, Bahia, Brazil. The estimate of its age was based on the fact that the rock formations were of the archean age, asserted by some scientists to have existed 550,000,000 years ago. The water is clear and sparkling in its crystal container.

From the Founder's Writings

It Is Better to Wear Patched Shoes

and pay as you go than to be in debt, wearing patent leathers and silken gowns and losing your self-respect by inability to keep contracts too easily entered into.

It is said that the downfall of many men and women is to be traced to getting hopelessly into debt and becoming disgraced by broken promises, the memory of which destroyed their chances and prospects.

Be advised to think twice before you plunge head over heels into debt.

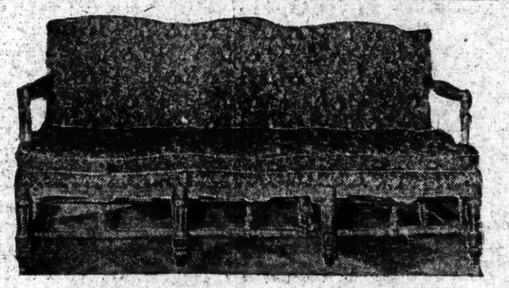
AU QUATRIEME



18th Century French

Straw-Seated Sofas and Chairs

Among the many charming examples of 18th Century French rustic furniture which came over in Au Quatrieme's recent shipment, there were none more wholly delightful than those straw-seated sofas and chairs often called chairs a la capucine.

For all their rustic flavor, these chairs figured not only in aristocratic but even in royal households. Mme. de Pompadour furnished her bedroom at Marly with straw chairs and they are to be seen again and again in every type of interior, in the paintings, prints and engravings of the period.

Au Quatrieme has highly decorative examples of the Louis XV., Louis XVI. and Directoire styles of walnut or of fruitwood, sometimes painted, and delightfully covered with the characteristic wadded cushions made from quilted peasant petticoats. The shapes of the traverses, the carvings and painted designs, are all so happy and so varied to give them most unusual decorative value, even were it not for the amusing patterns and gay colors of the cushions.

Louis XVI. straw-seated canape, (illustrated) with fluted legs and graceful carved bowknot design. Painted gray and covered with gray cushions with a beguiling chinoiserie pattern in blue, rose, green and mauve. $550.

Pair of Louis XVI. straw-seated arm chairs, painted and covered like the sofa. $300 the pair.

Straw-seated bench, with quilted cushions in dark green and rose. $200.

Louis XV. straw-seated arm chairs. $150 each.

Straw-seated side chairs, $80 each.

Directoire side chairs, finely carved. $55 each.

Set of 4 Directoire straw-seated side chairs, the backs beautifully carved with urns and cornucopias of flowers. $200 the set.

DELAY ON ARMS AGENDA

League Waits Until After Elections to Learn American and British Positions.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 28.—M. Branting of Sweden, in his capacity as rapporteur on the Mosul question, helped considerably today to clear the atmosphere at the gathering of the Council of the League of Nations, and there is good reason to believe that an arrangement will be effected which will be satisfactory both to Great Britain and to Turkey.

According to good sources Great Britain will be willing to accept the frontier denoted in the Sèvres treaty as the status quo line of the Lausanne treaty. This will require the Turks to withdraw from points which were occupied recently by subsidiary tribes, but will also require the British to make an evacuation and this evacuation would be more important than that of the Turks. The frontier denoted by the Treaty of Sèvres is the northern limit of the Vilayet of Mosul, modified to pass south of Amadia.

While the British under this arrangement would be making the greatest evacuation, they are not endangering their hold even temporarily on the oil land which is the cause of all the dispute.

The Council was informed this afternoon that the Greek delegate on the Mixed Commission for the interchange of populations was en route to Brussels, and the Turkish delegate on the commission arrives at the Belgian capital on Friday morning.

Greek Delegate Praises League's Course.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 28 (Associated Press).—A note of compromise and conciliation is clearly evident in Brussels tonight both in the Mosul conflict and the Greco-Turkish dispute over the arrest of Greek residents in Constantinople.

Not before Friday will the Council take up the Greco-Turkish conflict, because it must await the arrival from Constantinople of three members of the Mixed Commission, which is to supervise the exchange of populations between Greece and Turkey. These include General De Lara of Spain, President of the commission, and Tefvik Ruchdi Bey, Turkish member.

Hopes that the Greco-Turkish controversy, like the Mosul problem, may be settled amicably were strengthened by a statement issued by M. Politis, representing Turkey, tonight that Turkey had freed from prison all Greeks thus far arrested in Constantinople, and that no further arrests will be made pending a decision by the Council or the Mixed Commission of Control. M. Politis said:

"This certainly is another item to add to the credit side of the League of Nations' Ledger. Nevertheless, to prevent dangerous complications, we must ask a clear ruling that all Greeks living in Constantinople prior to 1918 shall be allowed to remain. For this clearly was the meaning of the Lausanne Treaty."

Lord Parmoor will return to England tomorrow on account of the elections, leaving Sir Cecil Hurst in charge of the Mosul affair.

Delays Action on Arms Conference.

The first concrete step by the League of Nations to prepare for the international conference for the reduction of armaments, scheduled to take place in June, 1925, will be taken at the session of the Council of the League, which will open in Rome on Dec. 8.

This was decided upon this afternoon by the Council, which voted to abandon the project of holding the special meeting of the Council, scheduled to take place in Geneva on Nov. 17, to arrange for the arms conference.

Postponement of consideration of the arms conference agenda until the Rome meeting was made on recommendation of Lord Parmoor, who explained that the British elections would make it difficult for Great Britain to be prepared for the meeting as early as November.

The Council also decided to add Senhor Fernandes of Brazil and M. Unden of Sweden to the committee of jurists which will take up the drafting of amendments to the League Covenant made necessary by the provisions of the Protocol of arbitration and security recently adopted at Geneva.

Disarmament experts of the League expressed pleasure over the decision to postpone the first official discussion of the agenda for next year's conference on reduction in armaments.

The experts feel that this postponement will afford additional and badly required time for the preparation of the preliminary technical information necessary. It was remarked also that by December, when the Council meets in Rome, instead of at Geneva, on Nov. 17, the elections in the United States, Great Britain and Germany all will have been concluded and the League will be in a better position to judge just what support it can count upon for an arms conference, especially from the United States.

All States members of the League have been invited to contribute suggestions concerning the agenda for the June, 1925, conference on reduction of armaments, which is expected to include reductions on land and sea and in the air. Whether the conference can be held next June depends on whether enough States have ratified the protocol for the pacific settlement of international disputes, which was approved unanimously by the League Assembly a short time ago.

TRAGEDIAN CAUSES A RIOT.

The actor, named Marcello Giora, appeared on the stage with twinkling eyes, smiling mouth, instead of wearing the fiercely intense look his part demanded. The audience, surprised, first gave vent to discreet murmurs. But when the smile grew broader the protests grew louder, until a final outburst ended the demonstrations, forcing the manager to order the curtain dropped.

Had the spectators known that Marcello Giora, while waiting to go on the stage happened to pick up a newspaper and read that he was the winner of the first prize in a large lottery, they might have shown themselves more indulgent.

Bars American Architects For Designing League Home

BRUSSELS, Oct. 28.—At a private meeting of the League Council it was decided today that American architects would be barred from participation in the competition for the new home of the League at Geneva which is to cost $1,000,000. The building when completed, like the present one, will bear a memorial plaque to Woodrow Wilson.

The discrimination is not against American architects as such, but against the nationals of those countries who are not interested enough in the ideals of the League to give it the support of their membership. By this ruling Russians, Germans and Americans are barred.

The jury which will pass on the plans, it was decided this afternoon, will consist of six members and include an architect from each of the following countries: Austria, Belgium, France, Great Britain, Italy and Switzerland.

FORM RESEARCH SOCIETY

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—In the Gallerie des Batailles in the Versailles Palace this afternoon was founded a Society for the Study of Canadian History in France. A complementary organization was formed last year in England.

The occasion was curious and unique. In the old Palace, where so many world events have happened, luncheon was served to nearly 200 persons. More than fifty years have passed since there was such a banquet within the Palace walls.

The host was Sir Campbell Stuart, President of the London society and managing director of The London Times, who is a Caandian by birth. When he proposed holding a luncheon in the famous gallery, the walls of which are covered with paintings of the greatest battles of French history, the guardians of the chateau were almost horrified at the idea. But Sir Campbell quickly overcame their objections. The French Government supported him, and at today's luncheon Premier Herriot and M. Painleve, President of the Chamber, were present. The Duke of Connaught, formerly Governor General of Canada and uncle of King George, presided, sitting, by a curious accident, just below the picture of the Battle of Fontenoy, in which his great-great-grandfather, George II., fought and lost.

In grouping his guests at some thirty tables, each named after some great French who bore a historic part in the discovery and formation of Canada, Sir Campbell Stuart had the happy idea to place side by side the Marquis de Montcalm and Mr. Wolfe Aylward, both direct descendants of those two gallant Generals who fought the battle of their countries on the Heights of Abraham at Quebec. Besides these two there were many other descendants of historical personages, like M. Jacques Cartier, descended from the man who discovered Canada. The party thus formed was one of the most unique representations ever gathered together in a historic place, of two peoples who fought so long for the supremacy of the world, only in the end to discover they had created a new world in Peking.

"Canada," Premier Herriot said in his speech, "is the creation of the complementary geniuses of England and France. In that great country there is neither victor nor vanquished. France and England fought for its possession, only to find in the end that their peoples could far better live together in peace, each helping the other develop the great resources of the country, each helping to produce a new culture and a new force, which steadfastly make for right and peace."

The Duke of Connaught, the Marquis de Montcalm, M. Painlevé, Senator Dandurand of Canada, the Duc de Levis-Mirepoix, who is President of the Society in France; the Hon. Dr. Beland, Canadian Cabinet Minister, and Sir Campbell Stuart all spoke in like fashion, in praise of the two peoples, whose close collaboration has made a great commonwealth owning fealty to the countries of their origin and playing a great part in the recent World War.

The society which has been formed will devote its efforts to the collection of all documents relating to the discovery and history of Canada, which abound in France and hitherto have never been assembled.

DUBLIN GIVES UP BODIES.

Remains of 77 Executed Men Will Be Buried in Consecrated Ground.

DUBLIN, Oct. 28 (Associated Press).—The remains of seventy-seven men who were executed by the military authorities of the Irish Free State in 1922 and 1923 were handed over to relatives today for burial in consecrated ground. The public funerals will take place tomorrow and Thursday.

The first five bodies handed over included that of Lieut. Commander Erskine Childers, whose remains were given to former Deputy Robert C. Barton, in whose home Childers was captured.

The coffins were carried in a procession through the streets to a hall where they will lie in state until tomorrow, when they will be removed to the Carmelite Church for services prior to burial at the Glasnevin Cemetery.

Baird Indicted Again in Fraud.

The Grand Jury returned an additional indictment yesterday against Charles T. Baird of Baldwin, L. I., in connection with an alleged scheme through which C. B. Richards & Co., 28 Broadway, and The Valley Rolling Mills Corporation of 120 Broadway, were defrauded out of $12,783 last June in a tool-selling scheme. The new indictment named Irving J. Feldman, a hardware merchant of 141 Wilson Street, Brooklyn, and Murray E. Baker, who is a prisoner in Ludlow Street Jail on a civil proceeding, as confederates in the scheme.

RIVAL ARMIES DIG IN OUTSIDE OF PEKING

JAPAN TO SEND MORE MEN

Diplomatic Note Warns Factions to Keep Rail Line to the Sea Open.

PEKING, Oct. 28 (Associated Press).—The advance troops of Wu-Pei-fu have arrived at Langfang, half way between Tientsin and Peking, toward which the troops of Feng Yu-hsiang, his former lieutenant, now in control of Peking, are moving. Fighting is imminent there.

Rumors that the two forces have clashed are groundless, as passengers on the international train which arrived here last evening from Tientsin passed the lines and saw the soldiers deliberately digging entrenchments only a few miles apart.

The strength of Wu's army is unknown here. The morale of his men also is a matter of doubt. His detractors declare they entirely lack morale, the bulk of the army at Shanhaikwan being at the point of a disorganized retreat.

There is no change in the political status. It is reported that President Tsao Kun desires to retire and would do so if Feng permitted it. The resignations of the Cabinet are reported to have been accepted and an effort is being made to reorganize it under the premiership of C. T. Wang, but the mandates have not been promulgated.

Wu Sends Up His Artillery.

TIENTSIN, Oct. 28 (Associated Press).—The Peking-Hankow Railway has been cut both north and south of Paoting-fu and traffic is suspended in both directions, is was asserted in private telegrams received tonight from Paoting-fu.

Numerous troop trains from Chinwangtoa arrived today and tonight were awaiting orders here from Wu Pei-fu. Wu's trains carried artillery and anti-aircraft guns.

The Military Governor of Shansi Province is reported to be holding up General Wu's hopes of getting reinforcements over the Peking-Hankow Railway.

Foreigners from Peking report considerable anxiety there as a result of the return of General Wu.

General Wu is still at Tientsin. Several main loads of troops have been sent up from Pukow, Kiangsu Province, to reinforce his soldiers here.

HANKOW, Oct. 28 (Associated Press).—Hsiao Yao-nan, Inspector General for the Provinces of Hunan and Hupeh, acting on a request from Wu Pei-fu, has ordered two Hupeh mixed brigades to proceed northward against Feng Yu-hsiang, the "Christian General," who is in control of Peking.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 28 (Associated Press).—In a proclamation issued today Marshal Chi Shieh-yuan, Military Governor of Kiangsi, announced that the Military Governors of Kiangsu, Kiangsi, Anhui, Chekiang and Fukien, and virtually the entire Chinese fleet, have decided to support General Wu Pei-fu.

The proclamation denounced General Feng Yu-hsiang, the "Christian General" and former Governor of Honan Province, as a traitor.

TOKIO, Oct. 28—The Cabinet has decided to send two infantry companies and one machine gun section to Tientsin at once. The Japanese intend to take over all railways in the war area and a two-mile zone on either side of the road.

Further minor movements of Japanese troops are likely, but the sending of an expeditionary force of any magnitude is not contemplated.

Powers Join in Rail Demand.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—A note in the form of an identic joint warning the Chinese Foreign Office and General Wu Pei-fu against interference with railway communication between Peking and the sea via Tientsin, a distance of 105 miles, has been presented by the Diplomatic Corps in Peking.

The Boxer protocol of 1901, which requires China to keep open the rail route of egress for foreigners from Peking to the sea, was invoked by the diplomats in their protest against the destruction of rolling stock or any part of the railroad by either of the forces operating in that area.

In cabling this news to the State Department today, the Legation also forwarded the text of a letter written by Wu Pei-fu, to the dean of the diplomatic corps at Peking, sent from Chin Wangtao on Oct. 25, in which Wu said that he was going to Peking to re-establish order. Wu added:

"There are residents of all nationalities in Peking and when my army enters the capital I hereby guarantee absolute law and order and that no disturbance to foreign lives and property will result from these operations."

SUDDEN STROKE KILLS EDWARD BELL IN PEKING

Death of the Legation's Charge Shocks Washington—F. L. Mayer Succeeds Him.

PEKING, Oct. 28 (Associated Press).—Edward Bell, the American Chargé d'Affaires here, died this morning as the result of a stroke suffered last night.

Ferdinand L. Mayer, First Secretary of the Legation, will succeed Mr. Bell as Chargé d'Affaires in the absence of Jacob Gould Schurman, the Minister, who is in the United States.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The sudden death in Peking of Edward Bell came as a shock to State Department officials. He was regarded as particularly well fitted for his difficult post in China.

It appears likely that there will be shifts in the service in order that a man of suitable diplomatic rank shall be in charge at Peking.

Acting Secretary Grew said in part:

"Mr. Edward Bell's death is a serious loss to the service. Personally I am deeply shocked by this loss of a warm and intimate friend of twenty-five years' standing. Our profound sympathy is with Mrs. Bell."

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Edward Bell had a wide circle of friends here among those with whom he came into contact during the war period while acting as Second and later as First Secretary to the American Embassy. His father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bell, arrived here from America a few days ago and left for a tour of the Continent.

Edward Bell, born in August, 1882, was one of the experts and secretaries attached to the American delegation at the Armament Limitation Conference in Washington in 1921, and also acted as American observer at the conversations between the Chinese and Japanese representatives in regard to the Shantung question.

He went to Peking two years ago as Counsellor of the Legation from Washington, where he was Chief of the Division of Current Information in the State Department. His service included posts in London, where he was Secretary to the Embassy for six years; Japan, Egypt, Persia and Cuba. His home was in New York.

Mrs. Bell was Miss Etelka, daughter of of Brig. Gen. Conyers Surtees of Durham, England.

Students Imitate Franks Murder in Sicily; Kill and Hide Friend, Ask $5,000 Ransom

Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

ROME, Oct. 28.—After eagerly reading all the details of the Franks murder case in Chicago, two university students in Sicily have imitated the crime in practically every detail.

The students are Simone Amore, 21, and Todaro Salvatore, 19. Both are sons of wealthy merchants. The victim of the killers was their companion, Gailes Calledora, 19, who disappeared Oct. 12 and who was believed in the hands of kidnappers for ransom.

The three youths went for a walk near the old convent of St. Augustine, at the back of which is an ossuary. As soon as all three were out of sight of the monks the two students stabbed their comrade to death and carried the body into a remote corner of a far room of the ossuary, where it was hidden among the skulls and skeletons of friars some of whom had died centuries ago.

The family of the victim at first suspected he had eloped with a girl, but finally received a letter stating that the boy had been kidnapped and was being held for 100,000 lire (roughly $5,000) ransom.

The murderers called upon their victim's family and condoled with the members on the disappearance of their friend and even went so far as to offer their services in helping to track him. Police working on the case secretly placed agents in ambush near the spot where the money was to be placed.

One of the slayers appeared at the appointed time and was caught in the act of taking the money from the place of concealment. Finally both boys confessed.

As there is no capital punishment in Italy the heaviest sentence that can be given the youths is life imprisonment.

FIND WOMAN SLAIN; HER HUSBAND HELD

Body Discovered in an Abandoned Mine—Was Apparently Killed Sunday Night.

QUARRELED OVER PROPERTY

Police Learn Prisoner Waived Right in House in Favor of His Wife.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, N. J., Oct. 28.—An hour after Frank Thomas, Jersey Central section hand, identified his wife Grace, whose nude, bullet-pierced body was found today down an abandoned mine mouth near their home in Glen Gardner, N. J., he was held in the Warren County Jail at Belvidere without bail as a material witness.

State police reported they found in Thomas's effects a debt to the Thomas home which the couple were about to sell to some New York City buyer. The real estate agent arranging the transaction said that, after long dispute and considerable feeling, Thomas had waived his right in the property in favor of his wife. The deed, according to the agent, bore Thomas's signature to that effect. The deed, so far as the realtor knew, had last been in the possession of the slain woman.

The Thomas home was a small one-story dwelling in the Rocky Run section of Glen Gardner, remodelled from a school house. The Thomas's sold it several years ago, then bought it back. Watson Rinehart, the real estate man who was helping to negotiate its sale for them a second time, said tonight that from the outset Mrs. Thomas was determined Thomas must "sign off." He said she threatened him if he did not comply. Much against his will, according to Rinehart, Thomas signed the deed in Rinehart's office to that effect, quitting all claim to the $1,000 or so the transaction called for. Thomas says now that he had been living with his wife for the past week. Apparently, it was about then they separated.

Husband Ousted Boarder.

The authorities, however, are not disposed to announce conclusions until they have disposed of other circumstantial evidence as well. For one thing, the police learned, Thomas and a boarder, Edward Bean, the same name as that of the wife's family, but no relation, had trouble which ended in Thomas ordering the boarder from the house. There will be further questioning of all concerned.

Mrs. Thomas was apparently murdered Sunday night when Thomas said he came home and found the house in disorder, a window shattered and blood stains on the floor. Her body was first seen on Monday by a schoolboy, Matthew Mooney Jr. His mother would not believe him at first, but the next morning she went with him, and looking down the ten-foot shaft of the old iron mine saw a nude body covered with burlap sacks, resting on a ledge. The mine, which had not been worked in fifty years and was overgrown with brush and trees, was about twenty feet off the road. It was surrounded by a small woods which adjoins St. Rose's Roman Catholic Church on the edge of the village, perhaps a quarter of a mile away.

The body bore gunshot wounds through the cheek and above the heart, but rigor mortis had not yet set in. The burlap sacks were found to contain a blood-stained bedsheet together with the woman's personal belongings, all of which had been thrown carelessly into the hole on top of the body. A small Testament in which her name was written led to the questioning of Frank Thomas, and the subsequent identification of the murder victim.

Body Brought by Vehicle.

The police said it was clear that the body could only have been brought there by wagon or automobile. Inasmuch as none of those who had been associated with the dead woman could drive an automobile it was assumed from the first that the murderer had had help.

Mrs. Thomas, police said, was better known in Glen Gardner as Grace Bean, her maiden name. She was a member of the Bean family which gained some notoriety a number of years ago when one of Mrs. Thomas's sisters was tarred and feathered. Mrs. Thomas was about forty-five years old, three years older than Thomas. She had bobbed hair and was accounted among her friends as attractive. Her first husband, Albert Frank, was killed in a railroad accident about twenty years ago.

County Physician Dr. G. Wyckoff Cummings, after the autopsy today, said both wounds were caused by .38-calibre bullets. Coroner William H. Fisher impaneled a jury today which will visit the home tomorrow morning.

It was believed likely that Frank Thomas would be taken to the Hunterdon County jail at Flemington tomorrow, the case properly falling within that jurisdiction.

Oliver Osborne, whose appearance as a witness in the Rae Tanzer breach of promise suit several years ago resulted in a verdict against the young woman, did not appear in the Tombs Court yesterday when he was to be arraigned for examination on a charge of being a fugitive from Chicago, and Magistrate James M. Barrett forfeited $2,500 bail which had been furnished when he was released on Oct. 21 last by Magistrate Edgar V. Frothingham.

Cauley was arrested on Oct. 10 last by Detective Sergeant John P. Barron after a three-year search on the complaint of a woman in Chicago that he had obtained $1,000 from her under false pretensions.

FAIL TO GET SLAYER OF L. K. RITTENHOUSE

Police Comb Orange (N. J.) for Young Man Who Actually Killed Manufacturer.

PRISONER TELLS OF CRIME

Negro Bandit Who Was Caught Says That His Companion Fired the Fatal Shot.

A cordon of police and civilians thrown around Orange, N. J., Monday night and maintained until long after sunrise yesterday failed to effect the capture of a young Italian suspected of having fired the shot which fatally wounded Louis K. Rittenhouse, Newark tire manufacturer, when he was held up at 10 P. M. by two men near his home at 300 Oakland Avenue, Orange.

Edward Drew, a 19-year-old negro, of 73 Hickory Street, Orange, who was arrested by Policeman Gleason before Mr. Rittenhouse died, was said to have confessed participation in the held-up and to have revealed the identity of the man who actually, he alleged, did the shooting.

The fugitive, known to the police as Dominico Tomassetti, is 21 years old and has a police record. According to Detectives Cronan and Burns of the Orange police force, he is the man who in 1921 threatened Judge Stickle in the Newark Criminal Court when he was sentenced to eighteen months for attempting to shoot the two detectives when they arrested him at his home in Orange on a warrant. The police said that despite his age the suspect has been in trouble with the police on numerous occasions, twice escaped from the Essex County penitentiary at Caldwell, and was wanted by Federal authorities as a deserter from the army.

Houses Searched in Vain.

On receiving the admission of the identity of his confederate from the young negro the police began to comb Orange for Tomassetti, as it was not believed that he could have escaped in the interim between the shooting and the forming of the cordon. Numerous houses which the police knew to have been in the habit of frequenting were searched, but no trace of him could be obtained.

To make certain that he would not get out of Orange if he had not already eluded the cordon, policemen and civilians held up every automobile and street car, and even searched railroad trains, for Tomassetti, but without getting the slightest clue on which his apprehension might be effected.

Drew confessed, according to the police, within a few minutes after Mr. Rittenhouse, dying in his home, had identified the young negro as one of the robbers. Policeman Gleason, who is attached to the Essex County Park police, caught him hiding behind the stoop of a house a quarter of a mile from the Rittenhouse home after a chase through brush in the park. It was the first time that Gleason had worn a police uniform, having been appointed earlier in the day as a substitute.

Negro Tells of Holdup Plan.

The negro was also alleged to have admitted that he owned the pistol which Policeman Gleason found in a clump of bushes a few feet from the spot where Mr. Rittenhouse was shot. Drew was reported to have denied, however, that he fired a shot. He told the police that it had been arranged by the Italian, that Tomassetti was to train his pistol on Mr. Rittenhouse while Drew searched him. When Mr. Rittenhouse, grappled with Tomassetti, Drew said, he ran, and heard the shot as he dived through the brush. He said that he obtained his pistol from another negro, and the police all day conducted an unsuccessful search for this man.

Drew was arraigned in the forenoon on a murder charge before Judge Bianchi in the Orange Police Court. He was held without bail for examination in a few days.

Mrs. Rittenhouse, who is the daughter of E. W. Marland, President of the Marland Oil Refining Company, announced after the arraignment of the negro that the body of her husband would be sent to Philadelphia today and that funeral services would be conducted in that city. The mother of the slain man, who is related to the Rittenhouse family of that city and who lives at the Oakland Avenue address in Orange, will accompany the widow to the burial services.

DAVIS IS SHAKEN AS CAR HITS PILLAR

His Automobile Is Forced to the Side in Traffic Jam in Long Island City.

John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President, narrowly escaped an automobile collision after midnight Monday on the Queensboro Bridge Plaza in Long Island City. He was on his way from New York City to his home in Locust Valley. Near the entrance to the plaza an automobile, driven by Leslie R. Lemalette of 200 East Thirty-fourth Street, New York City, passed the Davis automobile so closely that Mr. Davis's chauffeur was compelled to make a quick turn to the right and struck one of the bridge pillars. Both mudguards on the right side of the Davis automobile were damaged and Mr. Davis was shaken up.

Traffic Policeman William Boham, who was on duty at the plaza, hurried to the scene. Lemalette stopped to learn the extent of the damage. Lemalette was summoned to appear yesterday in the Long Island City police court. Mr. Davis did not appear in court; but Patrolman Boham explained the accident to Magistrate Lawrence Greaser. Lemalette told the Magistrate that his automobile had been blocked on the right by other automobiles and that the accident was partly due to the speed of the Davis automobile. Lemalette got a suspended sentence.

THE COST OF THE ADVERTISEMENT of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies of the City of New York which appeared in The New York Times yesterday was defrayed by The Public National Bank.—Advt.

GARY SEES MEXICO PROGRESSING FAST

Praises Calles as Strong Leader at Dinner to the President-Elect Here.

EXPRESS FRIENDLY FEELING

Speakers Predict Continuation of Peace and Great Development in Sister Republic.

Mexico is approaching a period of peace and prosperity and will achieve her destiny under the hand of a strong leader, said Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of the United States Steel Corporation, at a dinner last night held in the Waldorf in honor of General Plutarco Elias Calles, President-elect of Mexico.

The dinner was arranged by the American Manufacturers' Export Association, the Mexican Industrial Mission, the Mexican Chamber of Commerce in the United States and the New York Board of Trade and Transportation. In addition to Mr. Gary, who was toastmaster, the speakers included George Foster Peabody, President of the newly formed Mexico Society; James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Berlin, and Dr. L. S. Rowe, Director General of the Pan American Union.

General Calles in responding indicated that progress in Mexico depended in large measure on education of the 12,000,000 persons "now on the fringe of civilization." He pledged his Administration to improve the lot of these millions, saying that with their arrival at higher standards of living there would be created a greater Mexican market.

Sees a Big Field in Mexico.

"In order to do this," he said, "we must honorably and energetically enforce the few laws that we have secured through so many years of social and political commotions and use governmental methods no longer for the exclusive benefit of a few, but for the welfare of the larger collectivities. I know that to obtain the cooperation in this humanitarian labor of men as generous as you are I have no need to employ the logic that I intend to use, yet it is worth while to indicate here the enormous material advantages convertible into hundreds of millions of dollars for industry and commerce, which would bring along with it the economic betterment of these 12,000,000 disinherited Mexicans and economic well-being which would create a thousand new needs of production and consumption.

"If today the Association of American Exporters and all the industrialists of this marvelous country consider Mexico a magnificent market, what will it not be when we shall have succeeded in making of Mexico a community in which, on the basis of equity and justice for all the social classes, the workers in the field and in the city, who now buy nothing because he has nothing and because he barely eats, will attain to an economic and social position similar to that enjoyed by the American people?

"It is freely said since the new representative of the White House in Mexico, Mr. Sheffield, on presenting his credentials as Ambassador, departing from shallow diplomatic conventions, let us make known what the United States desires of Mexico, and what our country ought to expect from the United States. His speech can be summarized in the following sentence: 'We are not seeking any rights or privileges or powers that we in turn are not willing to concede freely.' To which President Obregon appropriately replied: 'This amply satisfies the spirit of countries sentinel, like Mexico, only the strength of their ideals, jealous of their sovereignty and respectful of all the people on earth, wishing to live within the concert of nations.

Promises Cooperation.

"The foregoing should be sufficient to indicate the legal protection, the friendly cooperation and welcome which may be expected of Mexico by all men of good-will who wish to bring to our country the justly valued contribution of their capital or their energies; for all foreigners who abide by the principle of the not exacting rights, privileges or considered consideration and who respect the sovereignty and the laws of our country have traditionally been and will continue to be received as brothers."

While the gathering was primarily to do honor to General Calles, said Judge Gary, it was also designed also to express to him the friendship and admiration of this country for the Mexican people.

"We would," he continued, "whenever proper and practicable be of benefit to her and her people. We would like to rapidly and substantially increase the commercial, industrial and financial relations between us. We desire to extend our personal acquaintance with the citizens of Mexico and to come into closer and more intimate connection as the months and the years go by.

"We hope to show by our attitude and our every-day conduct that our friendly attachment is sincere and loyal. We think that our Government has lately demonstrated a disposition to recognize her sister republic as entitled in all respects to confidence and esteem, and we heartily approve. We trust that in the long run after there will never be any disturbance, interruption or diminution of the confidence and goodwill between these two nations; that both hand-in-hand, will grow in strength and progress, in example and reputation.

Praises the President-elect.

"We confidently believe that Mexico is approaching a period of great social, educational, industrial, financial and moral advancement. Undoubtedly she will fully establish and maintain peace throughout her own domains and with all the world. She will liquidate all just claims and protect all interests in accordance with sound and equitable principles, and will do everything necessary to secure the abiding confidence of capital at home and abroad.

"Mexico needs at this time and will have a leader who is competent and disposed to secure for her a fulfillment of the hopes and aspirations of a deserving people. President-elect Calles will hold up and carry the Mexican flag and his people will follow. If the President will consult the rights and best interests of the Mexicans and at the same time consider the interests and rights of foreign nations and their people so far as propriety and justice require, as we feel certain he will do, there need be no doubt concerning the success of his administration. He is in every respect well qualified to lead in conducting the affairs of his country. By education, experience and instinct he is well equipped to properly decide and carry into practical effect all questions which may confront him. His opportunities are very great; and he will not falter nor fail.

"We think just now the Mexican national horizon is exceedingly bright and that her new President is a conspicuous part of the view which is presented."

Explains Society's Purposes.

Mr. Peabody spoke in detail on the recent educational entente cordiale established between the United States and Mexico, giving figures on the number of students exchanged during the Summer, each of them carrying back to their native land clearer understanding of the other. He also explained the aims of the Mexico Society, formed to interpret Mexico and to foster good relations between the countries.

"It is suitable on this occasion," he said, "that I outline to you somewhat the thought and purpose that have brought together the representatives of business interests and the representatives of educational interests in our United States.

"It is desired that there shall be a much more definite and specific effort to understand each other and to understand the varying conditions. The continuance of peaceful conditions in our Republic for the last half century has brought about great industrial development, which has produced vast material wealth and has given us emphatic consciousness of power and influence. This truly vast development in effect changed our country from mainly an agricultural to a predominantly industrial one. Huge waste and losses inevitably resulted, accompanied by immense misdirection of effort. This has made necessary keen and untiring striving to hold our moral and spiritual values in their true place of dominance.

"Your country is entering upon what we believe to be a great period of expansion in wealth and industrial development, and might be helped by a full knowledge of the experience of your neighbors."

Tells of Trade Relations.

Mr. Gerard reported that in 1923 this country sold Mexico $120,000,000 worth of goods and imported from her goods or other materials in the sum of $139,000,000. One item sent from this country to Mexico and to Cuba was $4,500,000 worth of eggs. The importations included $50,000,000 worth of petroleum, $8,000,000 worth of sisal and $17,000,000 in copper.

"But," he said, "there are some things misunderstood in Mexico about us, and we do not understand at all the laws and customs of Mexico. We hear much of our concessions in Mexico. By the laws of Mexico, a man must obtain a concession to do something with his own property which he is at perfect liberty to do in the United States, and the use of the word concession, instead of the word license which is a better translation of the Mexican term, has given some of our politicians here the idea that Americans were obtaining favors from the Mexican Government to which they were not entitled."

Dr. Rowe said that the misunderstandings of the past had been ironed out and that there was an ever increasing of public opinion in the United States to be helpful to Mexico whenever the occasion arose. He said, however, there never would be anything done that might be construed as "intrusion."

At the speakers' table were Otto H. Kahn, Thomas W. Lamont, Sir Thomas Lipton, Jerome S. Hess, Julius Kruttschnitt, Chairman of the Southern Pacific Railway Company; Dr. Julius Klein, Director of the United States Bureau of Domestic and Foreign Commerce; Police Commissioner Enright, United States Senator Edwards, Rear Admiral Charles Plunkett, U. S. N.; Miguel C. Tellez, Mexican Charge d'Affaires; Manuel De Negri, Secretary of the Mexican Embassy; United States Senator Royal S. Copeland; William Wallace Nichols, Assistant Secretary of the Department of Commerce; Frederick I. Kent of the International Chamber of Commerce; Lewis Nixon of the Pan American Conference of Buenos Aires, and Sealdiel A. Linatriate, President of the Mexican Chamber of Commerce in the United States.

Child's Cries Save Mother From Attempted Suicide

Her 5-year-old daughter, Ida, prevented Mrs. Sarah Wilensky, 24 years old of 651 Fifth Street, from killing herself and her one-month-old daughter, Edith, by gas yesterday morning. The cries of the child attracted the attention of neighbors, who broke into the ground floor apartment and called medical aid in time to save Mrs. Wilensky.

Mrs. Wilensky and the baby were taken to Bellevue Hospital to be treated for gas poisoning, and physicians report they both will live. She said she was driven to desperation by the thought that her youngest child was going to die because no food could be found which it could retain and she could not nurse it.

Her husband, Louis, who owns a knitting establishment at 92 Bleecker Street, told the police that his wife was in a nervous state due to worrying over the baby. He said he made a comfortable living, and it was not for want of medical attention that the infant was ailing.

RUSSIAN GRAIN EXPORT LIKELY TO BE SMALL

Preliminary Statistics Show Most of Crops Will Be Needed at Home.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Oct. 28.—Russian grain exports in the coming year are likely to be insignificant, even when the question of export is decided by the Government in the affirmative. While the desire to balance the budget requires that grain exports shall be retained in next year's foreign trade program, it is not yet certain this can be done, as collection of the single tax levy from the peasantry is not completed and the total harvest has been ascertained only approximately.

According to the preliminary figures of the Statistical Department of the Commissariat of Agriculture, the total harvest, exclusive of Siberia, Transcaucasia and Turkestan, will amount to 2,548,000,000 poods. To this must be added 74,000,000 held by State organizations and 139,000,000 in the hands of the peasantry, all left over from last year, bringing up the balance to 2,761,000,000 poods. Of this about 667,000,000 will be required for sawing, 1,648000 for revictualization of the peasantry, 335,000,000 for the towns, army and subventions in various districts and 150,000,000 as reserve for eventual use of the Government in manipulating the internal market and for famine relief. The amount possible for export, therefore, cannot exceed 665,000,000 poods.

In a report of the State Planning Commission presented to the Council of Labor and Defense it is asserted that the sowing area was not only badly curtailed as a result of failing crops but in certain areas owing to supplies of sowing seed advanced by the Government not reaching the famine-stricken districts in good time.

HAGUE DENIES A CHARGE.

Jersey City Mayor Replies to Ambry on Income Tax Payment.

In a letter addressed jointly to President Coolidge and Attorney General Stone, Robert Ambry, a candidate for Congress in Jersey City, charges that Mayor Hague has paid no income tax "although the late Attorney General possessed data" on "one item alone of $1,000 a week" and "another bulk item" of $500,000 or more that "went into the Mayor's office."

At the Mayor's office in Jersey City yesterday it was said that Ambry's charges represented the malice of a former city employe who had resigned after he had been arrested and was about to be tried by the City Commission. Ambry then was in the tax office it was said.

Mayor Hague made this comment:

"Everybody in Jersey City who knows Ambry knows him to be irresponsible. He is a dismissed employe of Jersey City and is likely to say anything and to make any kind of wild statement against any member of the Administration. He is a candidate for Congress now. He is probably using this means to get his name in the newspapers."

Asked if he cared to make any direct reply to the charge in the letter, the Mayor, through his secretary, authorized this:

"Of course I have complied with the law."

COLUMBIA TO FINISH FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

Dr. Paul Withington Succeeds Haughton for Remainder of the Season.

TO PLAY CORNELL SATURDAY

Officials Yield to Wishes of Head Coach's Family—Funeral in Boston Tomorrow.

Columbia will carry on and play through its football schedule, including the game with Cornell at Ithaca next Saturday. Dr. Paul C. Withington, line coach, will be head coach for the duration of the season, succeeding the late Percy D. Haughton, whose untimely death of heart failure Monday afternoon left the university and the football team stunned and stricken.

The above announcements were made yesterday by Charles Halsted Mapes, Chairman of the University Committee on Athletics, following a hastily called meeting of that body in the early afternoon. The regular afternoon practice was held, with Dr. Withington in charge, and the players, although showing a natural depression, buckled down to their work with the determination, as Captain Walter Koppisch put it, to show the football world how well Percy Haughton had labored.

Escorted to the station by the football squad, the casket containing the body of Columbia's late coach started on its journey to Boston at 3 o'clock last night. The funeral services will be held in St. Paul's Chapel in Boston tomorrow at 3 o'clock. At the same hour another service in memory of Mr. Haughton will be held in St. Paul's Chapel, Columbia, with Chaplain Raymond Knox conducting the service.

Mrs. Haughton did not leave Boston yesterday, but sent John Wells Farley, a classmate, fellow-player and intimate friend of Mr. Haughton at Harvard, to this city to make arrangements for shipping the body. Mr. Farley carried from the bereaved family a message to Columbia's athletic authorities and to the varsity team, urging them to go through with their scheduled games.

Student Rally Called Off.

According to this wish of the widow and to the unanimous sentiment of the team that the season should be finished out, Chairman Mapes and Graduate Manager of Athletics Reynolds Benson announced that the Cornell game Saturday would be played. However, the university has abandoned plans to take the student band along with the squad. A student rally scheduled for tonight has been called off and plans for engaging a special train to take Columbia's rooters to Ithaca were dropped, although the Lackawanna Railroad will run the train itself.

Led by Walter Koppisch, the members of the varsity team accompanied the remains when they were taken from St. Luke's Hospital to the Grand Central Station last night to be placed aboard a Boston train. Mr. Farley accompanied the body of football's most noted coach, and today it will be back in the city where Haughton reached his greatest fame.

All the funeral tomorrow will be the following representatives of Columbia: Reynolds Benson, graduate manager; James R. Knapp, Chairman of the Football Committee; Captain Koppisch and Coaches Paul C. Withington, Charles Crowley and William L. Murray. All three of the coaches were pupils of Haughton between 1908 and 1916 when "P. D." developed those mighty Harvard elevens that made the Haughton system the most famous in the gridiron sport.

On the day of the funeral the Columbia practice will be called off. The varsity squad was scheduled to go to Ithaca tonight, but the departure has been postponed to tomorrow night, after the team has rested for the day in honor of their dead leader.

The services at St. Paul's Chapel, Columbia, tomorrow, will be attended by the undergraduate body, members of the Faculty, trustees, officers of the university, including Secretary Frank D. Fackenthal and probably President Nicholas Murray Butler, and alumni. Until after the funeral the university flags will be at half mast.

Messages of condolence from practically every prominent person in the world of intercollegiate sport poured into the association's offices yesterday, and scores of other messages were received over the telephone by Graduate Manager Benson and Mr. Knapp. Expressions of deepest sympathy were heard on every side, and not the least of the striking tributes paid to Haughton was that of President Butler, who in a formal statement said that the coach's name and influence "will always remain a proud possession of Columbia University."

The Spectator, undergraduate daily, eulogized Haughton in an editorial article, and the Student Board of Representatives, the undergraduate governing body, issued a resolution expressing the "overwhelming grief" of the student body. The class of 1926, Haughton's graduating year at Harvard, passed a resolution of sympathy.

Dr. Butler's Statement.

Dr. Butler's formal statement follows:

"The news of the tragically sudden death of Percy Haughton was brought to me last evening at Pittsburgh just as I was going on the platform to take part in a great public meeting. There was then no opportunity to do more than give expression to my sense of shock at the news and to my deep personal grief.

"In two short years Mr. Haughton had made for himself a really important and influential place in the life and work of Columbia University. He had endeared himself to undergraduates and to alumni alike, and had gained not only their confidence but their warm personal attachment and regard. He had made his post as coach of the football team one of genuine educational influence.

"He cooperated to the full with the Dean of Columbia College and our other academic administrators to see to it that participation in sport and in intercollegiate contests was not at the expense of work in the classroom and in the laboratory.

"He conceived of athletics and of outdoor sport generally as occupying a distinct place in the educational scheme of American youth, and he directed his energies not only to developing a strong and victorious team but to building up those qualities of character and personality that matter so much in human life.

"It would be the gravest of mistakes to look upon Mr. Haughton's work as simply that of a coach. He was truly a member of the educational staff of this university, working in his highly specialized field, in complete cooperation with his fellow-workers in other and very different fields, for a common end.

"Mr. Haughton's own personality won him friends wherever he went. He had the true gentleman's conception of sport and of sportsmanship, and I am sure that his name and his influence will always remain a proud possession of Columbia University. I have no words with which to give adequate expression to my sense of sorrow at his sudden and untimely end."

Team Wants to Go On.

The decision to play out the schedule was reached when the athletic committee learned that this would be in accord with the wishes of the bereaved family. The attitude of the team also influenced the committee. In Monday night's meeting Captain Koppisch was commissioned to phone Baker Field and find out the sentiment of the squad. After talking with twelve varsity players Koppisch came back to the committee room and said the team was unanimous in wanting to play it out as their final possible tribute to Haughton.

This was the attitude of the athletes at Baker Field yesterday, and practice of the squad was remarkable. Instead of being broken and troubled, the varsity men were grimly determined to show that this blow of fate could not undo all that Percy Haughton had done. Withington, their new chief, encouraged them in this attitude, and after their long practice Chairman Knapp, in another talk, praised them for their courageous bearing.

The statement by Charles H. Mapes, head of the University Athletic Committee, read as follows:

"Mr. Percy D. Haughton's death was so sudden, his loss so crushing, that it left us numb, almost incapable of logical thought. Our first impulse was that everything must now stop.

"Calmer judgment shows that this must not be. His family and those closest to him tell us that he would have wanted, that they want us, to carry on. We ourselves believe absolutely that this would have been his desire.

"The team is a unit in wanting to play. They feel that the mark of the deepest respect is to show what their loved coach taught them and to carry out what they know would have been his wish.

"The Cornell game and the balance of the schedule will be played as arranged."

Appreciation from Woodruff.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 28.—Appreciation of Percy Haughton, head football coach at Columbia University, who died last night, was expressed today by Attorney General George W. Woodruff, who as football coach for the University of Pennsylvania came into contact with Haughton.

Declaring Haughton was a "splendid football player" whose "kicking in the Pennsylvania-Harvard games was practically the most effective I have ever had to fight against," the Attorney General said that after the Pennsylvania-Cornell game of 1900 in which Cornell was beaten 29 to 0, "he wrote me one of the finest letters of appreciation I ever received on any occasion. No other coach ever did the same as far as I know, either afte rvictory or defeat, and such a gracious act shows the splendid gentleman Percy Haughton was."

Harvard Squad Saddened.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 28.—The Harvard camp was saddened today because of the death of Percy Haughton. Practically every coach either played with him at college or under him on his best varsity teams. It had not been decided tonight whether the practice Thursday, when Haughton's funeral service will be held, will be called off.

Hawley Praises Haughton.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 28.—When informed of the death of Percy D. Haughton, Coach Jesse Hawley said: "The game has lost not only one of its greatest leaders, but also one of its finest sportsmen."

COLUMBIA ELEVEN DETERMINED TO WIN

Players, Undaunted, Show Spirit in Long Drill to Carry on Haughton's Work.

Under their newly appointed head coach, Dr. Paul C. Withington, Columbia's varsity squad engaged in a long and earnest but rather light workout at Baker Field yesterday. The atmosphere around the camp was subdued and the faces of the players were grave, yet there was nothing lacking of determination and spirit in their brisk practice.

Assuming the heavy responsibility of carrying forward Haughton's great task, Withington preceded the actual workout with a very brief talk to the squad. Visibly affected by the strain of the last twenty-four hours, Haughton's intimate friend told his new charges that he expected them to go on just as if P. D. himself were there to guide the work. He said that this would have been Haughton's own wish, and urged the team to give its best as a tribute to its dead coach.

Following the workout James R. Knapp, Chairman of the Football Committee, also addressed the squad. On behalf of the committee and the University Committee on Athletics, he praised the players for their brave attitude, and said the university was proud of them.

"And now go ahead and beat Cornell," said Knapp in conclusion.

John Wells Farley, Haughton's intimate friend who came from Boston to take the body back with him, was induced by Withington to watch the work-out, so that he could go back and tell Mrs. Haughton how well P. D. had builded. Farley watched every detail of the workout, and at the end he said, "Those boys are all right; they'll fight their way through this."

With Haughton's last message still ringing in their ears—"Tell them I'm proud of them"—the varsity athletes went into their work with a new vim. Scrimmaging was omitted, as it would have been under the usual program. Following a session of calisthenics and fundamentals, Teams A and B had a long dummy scrimmage in which punting was stressed. This afternoon will be held the only hard scrimmage before the Cornell game.

LONG OFFENSIVE DRILL FOR CORNELL SQUAD

Dobie Stresses Rushing Attack and Interference—Saturday's Line-Up Uncertain.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Coach Dobie sent the Cornell varsity into a long offensive drill late this afternoon in preparation for the game with Columbia Saturday, but left his final decision as to Saturday's line-up still in the air. The first backfield combination to enter the scrimmage consisted of Isaly, Wds, Hoekleman and Whetstone, while Brigden played right end, as he did yesterday, and Mumus was at right guard. Munns seems definitely to have replaced Trousdale as the scrimmage developed. Molinet replaced Wade, but Patterson remained on the second team.

The Cornell tactics were largely confined to perfecting the rushing attack, with special emphasis on interference. A defensive drill of thirty minutes also featured the practice. Dobie keeping his tackles and guards on the run. Whetstone's daily punting practice was longer than usual, and several other backs also tried their luck at kicking.

PENN STATE REGULAR OUT.

Flock, Right Guard, Forced Off Squad With Injured Foot.

Special to The New York Times.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 28.—Penn State's run of hard luck continued today, when Flock, regular right guard, was forced out of scrimmage with what is believed to be a broken bone in his foot. With Mouse also on the injured list Coach Hugo Bezdek was forced to send Klaskovich, a 206-pounder, who has yet to play his first game, into the fracas.

ELEVEN HOLDS LONG DRILL

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 28.—After two full days of rest, Harvard's football squad started work for next week's game against Princeton with a rough and tumble scrimmage with the scrubs this afternoon. With all the coaches on the field, and driving, as hard almost, as two weeks ago, the rank and file of Harvard's forces were kept at the drill until it was so dark that it was impossible to see the ball.

The scrubs were very much alert and ripped through the first team's line for long gains, making one steady march of nearly seventy yards, although then being unable to score. The only touchdown made by the varsity came at the end of the session when a scrub's kick was blocked on the second team's six-yard line, from where it took the varsity four plays to get the ball across.

After the practice tonight Trainer Donovan said that it would be possible to play all the first string men against Boston University Saturday if it were desired to do so. Even Art Miller, Harvard's heaviest back, was dressed and on the field. His ankle is all right, and his knee is now only slightly lame. Gehrke got an extra day's rest and so did Cheek, the latter having a bruised heel, which will demand a little attention for a day or two longer. Hammond was on the field in street clothes following the drill and Spalding was with him also, not getting into the scrimmage.

The first team line-up this afternoon was Robb and Chase, ends; Greenough and Lindner, tackles; Dunker and Hoague, guards; Holder, centre; Stafford, quarterback, and Howe, Puffer and Maher, backs. During the day's work Hitch and Dean played end, Nash, Taylor and Coady, tackles; Bradford and Laimbeer, guards; Adie, centre; McGlone, quarterback, and Braden and Brown were substituted for Howe and Buffer.

The real news of the day was the presence of Heinie Dunker in the line at left guard and for the first time in a scrimmage this year. Dunker had two sessions, with only a short rest between. He seemed in shape to play as hard football as anybody, but he is far behind the line on account of long absence. A year ago Dunker's place on the team was assured from the start, but this year he is going to have a mighty hard time of it to get his berth back through the elimination of C. Bradford, Dalzell and Filipour.

Still, Dunker is the most experienced guard the Crimson has, and if he can get into the Princeton game for a time he is bound to make a gallant fight for a regular rushline place before the team goes to New Haven for its wind-up on Nov. 22.

NAVY NOT DISMAYED BY SEVERE LOSSES

Starts Pointing for Penn State Game, With Taylor the Only Veteran in Line-up.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 28.—With fine spirit and determination the Naval Academy football squad has refused to be downhearted on account of the loss of so many of its regular players because of scholastic conditions, and it started this afternoon to make active preparations for the Penn State game to be played here on Saturday.

Not only did the team lose four of its most valuable players, Shapley and Filippin, backs, and Lentz and Osburn, linemen, but when the coaches began to take up the problem of their successors they found that many excellent second-string men were in the same fix. Some of these were Lewis, Query, Maloney and Hubert-Jones, backs, and Truesdow, first substitute tackle.

The team was largely a new aggregation this afternoon, Wickhorst and Stair, the regular tackles, being also lost to the team for a time, both on account of injuries. This left only Captain Taylor at left end to represent the regular team of last season.

In scrimmage the varsity worked against a strong and alert team from Squad B, which used as far as it could Penn State's style of attack. The afternoon was far from encouraging to the varsity, as Squad B made much ground, both through the line and for forward pass and making other substantial game in the same way.

HAWLEY OUTLINES PLAYS.

Dartmouth Coach Prepares Eleven for Game With Brown.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 28.—Coach Jesse Hawley delivered a long lecture to the Dartmouth football team this afternoon, stressing the mistakes made in the Harvard game and outlining in great detail the preparations that are to be made for the hard contest with Brown on Saturday. The Brown game is a big objective on the Dartmouth schedule, as Brown is an old rival of the Green, and the desire to win is always intense on both sides.

The scrubs have been rehearsing Brown plays and are prepared to run them off against the varsity in a dummy scrimmage tomorrow. The entire coaching staff will concentrate on the first team, showing the men how to break up plays and explaining the styles of individual players.

The second and third teams went through the hardest fourth scrimmage seen at Hanover this year. Although the third team put up a great battle, it was outclassed, 17-0, by the second string men, most of whom are certain of getting into action with the varsity in the remaining games. The outstanding performers of the afternoon were Robinson and Reeder, halfbacks of the second team.

C. C. N. Y. REGULARS REST.

Have Only Light Drill, but Remainder of Squad Works Hard.

Light work for the regulars who were used in the game Saturday but intensive drilling for the rest of the squad featured yesterday's practice session at City College. Coach Parker is not entirely satisfied with the defensive showing his teams made against Rhode Island, and for the rest of the week he will drill his men in tackling and breaking up plays. Several of the team came out of Saturday's game somewhat used up and are being rested, but will be in the practice in a day or two in preparation for the contest against Hamilton at Clinton next Saturday.

One regular who was not able to practice yesterday was Raskin, who injured an ankle. His place was taken by Heber. Oshins and Cotton were drilled yesterday by Coach Parker in an effort to groom them for the place vacated by Sam Bonstein, who is out for the season. A signal drill would be yesterday's work. A scrimmage is on the program for today. The team will depart on Friday for Hanover.

YALE HOLDS DRILL IN DEFENSIVE PLAY

Coaches Pleased as Varsity Team Breaks Up West Point Style of Attack.

OFFENSIVE WORK IS SLOW

Eleven, With Several Regulars Out of Line-Up, Fails to Show Its Best Form.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 28.—Defensive drill was emphasized by the Yale varsity in the opening scrimmage of the week today. Four times the ball was given to the scrubs at the regulars' 20-yard line and only once did the reserves succeed in counting, Jim Alexander plunging the ball over the crossbar on a fourth down. On all other cases where they failed to penetrate the 20-yard line.

As the invaders used West Point maneuvers the varsity coaches were pleased at the varsity defensive improvement, but they were dissatisfied with the lethargy exhibited by the varsity on the attack. Only after the regulars had been held by the scrubs on the latter's 5-yard mark on downs and the scrubs had taken the centre of the stage for their ramming at the varsity 20-yard mark was the latter able to tally, Dan Allen plunging five yards for the score.

The slowness of the regulars' attack was laid to the coaching order for Captain Lovejoy, centre, Pond and Cottle, halfbacks, Bingham and Luman, ends, and Quarterback Bench to retire. All these players were in uniform, however, except Captain Lovejoy, who, in civilian's clothes, followed the practice with the coaches.

While the hot wave may have had something to do with the varsity slump, it is felt that the strenuous battles fought with Georgia, Brown and Dartmouth on consecutive Saturdays paved the way for the coaches said tonight that while little scrimmaging would be ordered for tomorrow actual football would then close until the West Point engagement Saturday. Johnny Field, Ray Paige and Emerson Qualle joined the coaches today.

The varsity today lined up as follows: ends, Hart and Osborne; tackles, Butterworth and Joss; guards, Wentham and Sturhahn; centre, Burt; quarterback, Bunnell; halfbacks, Allen and Kline; fullback, Noble.

BRENNEN IS ELECTED NEW FORDHAM LEADER

Is Named to Succeed Injured Smead, Out for Season—Team in Stiff Drill.

Paul Brennen has been appointed to succeed Ray Smead as captain of the Fordham football team for the remainder of the season. Smead suffered a broken leg during the Holy Cross game on Saturday, and the injury will keep the big guard out of the game for the rest of the season. Brennen has played centre on the Maroon team for the past two years and during that time has been a tower of strength in the Fordham line. The new captain and Manning returned to practice yesterday and were given a light workout after their brief absence from the squad.

The squad was given an intensive practice yesterday, of which a signal drill made up the greater part. Before the signal drill the team was put through a long punting practice, with Graham, Bickey and Stanford doing the kicking. Stanford is one of the best punters on the squad, and there is a possibility that Gargan will give him the kicking responsibilities. The first backfield was composed of Graham, Woerner, Manning and Zakszewski, while Team B had Howley, Slane, Delaney and Malone in the backfield.

Brennen worked out with the first team for a short time, after which Stevenson took his place. Manning also was with Team A, and Malone replaced him after the regular halfback's brief workout. Slane's name was also crossed off the hospital list and he was ready for a stiff practice yesterday. With the exception of ex-Captain Smead the team is in perfect condition for its game with N. Y. U. this Saturday.

SPEARS TRIES NEW TEAM.

West Virginia Veterans on Side Lines as Scrimmage Is Held.

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 28.—Veteran West Virginia players who have failed to come up to expectations this Fall are paying the penalty for alleged mediocre work against Centre at New York last Saturday. Dr. Spears had the letter men on the side lines this afternoon during a scrimmage against the freshman eleven and there was a marked improvement in the varsity's work as the newcomers played with all their strength to make a good impression.

This afternoon the new regular team showed the power and aggressiveness that Dr. Spears demands and though he found much to censor he believes the team that plays Bethany here Saturday will be harder to stop than the eleven that met Centre.

Long runs by Hardy, Bruder and Farley featured today's practice game. Ingberg was at quarterback while Morrison was given a much needed rest. Lough, Straight and Jenewine drew regular line assignments, and if they can continue the pace set today, will get the call over Mahan, Davis and the other veterans in coming games.

WESLEYAN VARSITY SCORES.

Carries Ball Over Twice in Scrimmage—Several Regulars Idle.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 28.—Coach Martin sent most of the Wesleyan regulars in against the scrubs for a short scrimmage this afternoon. Several of the regular linemen were kept out of the rough work, because of injuries received in the Massachusetts Aggies game.

Two touchdowns were scored, with Captain Cooke, McLane, Boyd and Wislinn making most of the gains. Coach Martin gave particular attention to the backfield work and to the punting. Several of the good punters were on the sidelines, but Martin and Steele pulled off some good ones. The coaches say the men will be in fairly good condition for the Tufts game on Saturday.

PENNIMAN SEES PENN DRILL.

University Provost Present as Varsity Scores on Scrubs.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—Provost Josiah Penniman of the University of Pennsylvania was among the Franklin Field spectators late this afternoon when Lou Young's varsity put on a stubborn offensive and defensive drill in preparation for the Lafayette game. The provost arrived just about the time that the varsity was walking through Joel Keogh's freshmen for two touchdowns. A different tale followed, however, when the scrubs took the ball and marched to tally on the regulars, Captain McGraw and Fields went the honors of scoring the touchdowns in the scrimmage against the freshmen.

OFFICERS TO BE BARRED.

Only One to a Service Eleven Next Year, Army Rules.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 28.—The War Department has ordered the elimination of officers and grads from all army athletic teams which includes football. Teams will be made up next year from the enlisted personnel and only one officer will be allowed on each team.

Sarazen Makes Hole in One In Night Golf Exhibition

BRIARCLIFF MANOR, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Before a crowd estimated at 10,000, Gene Sarazen, former professional golf champion, tonight made the first hole on the Briarcliff Lodge course in one by the light of two powerful searchlights and several smaller lamps. This is the first time such a feat has been accomplished on an illuminated course. When the ball landed on the green a few feet from the hole and then rolled in, the spectators broke into applause. The ball was plainly visible throughout its flight from the tee to the hole. Sarazen's performance was the second night's test of night golf staged as a feature of the annual convention of the Illuminating Engineers' Society. Powerful lights were erected at regular intervals along the fairway and were supplemented by two searchlights of 4,000,000 and 1,000,000 candle power.

ARMY TEAM DRILLS AGAINST YALE PLAYS

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Head Coach McEwan sent the Army football men through a grueling workout on the plains gridiron this afternoon in preparation for the game with Yale in the Bowl at New Haven on Saturday. A hard scrimmage was ordered for the varsity and "B" squads. McEwan, with his sleeves rolled up, sent the men through a long drill tending to try out Army's defense against Yale formations as executed by the scrubs.

Both the varsity and reservists got their full share of the type of football Yale is likely to spring on the Cadets Saturday. The "B" squad smashed through for long gains at times, which worried the trailers on the side lines. Working on into the darkness by aid of the artificial flood lights the mentors, demanding speed in the attack, gave the varsity the ball at midfield. Charging the line and dashing off tackle, Wood and Wilson pressed the scrubs back until Wood finally went over the line for the only touchdown registered.

Schmidt, a tackle, and Johnson, a substitute quarter, were hurt but not seriously. Prior to the heavy work the squad, working in groups, went through a long session of fundamentals. Berry's work at right end on the varsity and Farwick's high-class play at guard were pleasing features.

The varsity lined up today with Garbisch at centre, Sillinger and Farwick guards, Schmidt, Griffith, Mack and Westphalinger alternating in the tackle positions, Wilson left half, Gillmore right half, and Wood full back and Harding and Yeomans alternating at quarter.

Wrestling Season Opens Tonight.

The professional wrestling season in this city is scheduled to open tonight with the initial series of mat struggles of the Campania A. C. to be held in the Fourteenth Street Theatre. The bouts arranged are: Oreste Vadalfi vs. Joe Rosacki, Nick Lutze vs. Harry Steinbach and Nazzareno Rossi vs. Joe Brown.

ROPER MAY OMIT REAL SCRIMMAGE

Princeton Coach Believes Men Can Learn More by Dummy and Signal Drill.

SLAGLE WATCHES PRACTICE

Back-Field Regular Gets Rest—Dignan, Dinsmore and Ewing in Kicking Session.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 28.—There was no scrimmage for the Tiger football squad today and Bill Roper asserted that he was strongly considering omitting it for the rest of the Fall as he has come to the conclusion that the men can learn more by dummy scrimmage and signal drill than by the battles with the scrubs. The Tigers have been through three hard games this Fall and are fairly well seasoned, so that in Roper's opinion the experience gained in scrimmage is hardly worth the danger of injuries. Even if he does not take such a radical step as the abolition of all organized scrimmage it is fairly certain that the scrubs will be let off easier this Fall than ever before.

Slagle was the only regular who was not in uniform today, but he watched the workout. There is nothing wrong with the elusive little back, but he took a hard pounding against Notre Dame and Coach Fitzpatrick is anxious to give him a chance to build up his reserve strength for the Big Three games, as he is one of the main cogs in the Orange and Black machine.

The hardest work of the day was a session of going down under punts for the varsity, with a scrub line attempting to block Dignan's kicks and scrub backs returning the ball. Dignan was getting the ball away well but his distance was only forty-five yards. Dinsmore and Ewing were also given an opportunity to drop kick with a scrub line hurrying them, but were getting the ball over consistently from the 20-yard mark.

Some time was devoted to walking through new plays and then going through them at top speed in a long signal drill. Williams, who has not been much in evidence this Fall, broke into the first team line-up for the first time in weeks and was giving the plays in the absence of Slagle, who directed the team on Saturday. With him in the backfield were Weekes, Dignan and Gibson, with Stout and Drews on the ends, Gates and Beattie of the tackles, Hills and Davis guards and McMillen centre. Caldwell and Howard resumed their old places for the last part of the drill, displacing Dignan and Davis.

Skeleton teams of ends and backs were given a little work on forward passing and the defense against the Harvard passes, although there was no tackling of the scrubs who executed the plays.

N. Y. U. IN HARD PRACTICE.

Squad Put Through Intensive Drill by Coach Thorp.

An intensive practice session was held yesterday afternoon by the New York University football squad. Coach Thorp and his assistants sent the team through a hard scrimmage. It was announced yesterday that the practice the rest of the week will consist chiefly of offensive work.

Punting and kicking will be stressed during the week. The defensive work of the team has been good so far and the line is being bolstered. The entire squad is in good condition and no serious injuries should be able to put up a strong front against Fordham Saturday.

Tilden the Only First Rater In World, Patterson States

Copyright, 1924, by Chicago Tribune Co.

SYDNEY, Oct. 28.—"Tilden is the only first-class tennis player in the world. Richards, Johnston, Anderson and Le Costa are second graders." Gerald Patterson, the Australian star, who returned here today, thus summarized his impression of the Davis Cup players. He said he did not intend to retire. Discussing Australia's hopes for next year he said that with Tilden it would be almost impossible to beat the Americans, but without Tilden the Australian team could give Richards and Johnston a hard tussle.

"The Americans make tennis businesslike and really commercialise it," he added. "If the Australians followed the same system, playing day in and day out and had nothing to worry about except to improve their game they might get players of the same calibre as the Americans."

ILLINOIS-IOWA GAME AROUSING INTEREST

Clash at Urbana Saturday Will Have Important Bearing on Big Ten Title.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—The outstanding Western Conference football game this week—the Illinois-Iowa contest at Urbana, Ill.—will see a pupil summoning all that he learned under a veteran mentor and all his own strategy in a great attempt to down the greatest player of many stars developed by the older coach.

Burt Ingwerson, who replaced Howard Jones at Iowa after stellar playing on the Illinois eleven and two years as freshman coach at Urbana, is patinting his Hawkeye charges towards their great task of stopping "Red" Grange and his ten helpers in the plays taught by little Bob Zuppke.

Ingwerson knows Zuppke's system and has had excellent opportunity to study Grange. Conference opinion is that if the Illini are to be tumbled from their present leadership in the chase for the Big Ten championship, a combination of circumstances, not excluding eleven powerful players, affords Iowa and Ingwerson a golden chance.

Zuppke, back at Urbana after scouting Iowa against Minnesota, is applying the results of his observations in hard work to strengthen the line is on the program.

Chicago, another challenger of Illinois for the title in the Conference, shuts out Nov. 8 in mind in its workouts for Purdue this week-end. A victory over the Boilermakers would advance Chicago's chances, while a defeat would temporarily set, at least, eliminate the Maroons. Purdue has been put out of the early running by Ohio State.

Interest in preparations for other Conference teams is not so keen. Michigan and Minnesota, meeting at Minneapolis, are hopeful of retrieving prestige lost to Illinois and Iowa, respectively.

Northwestern and Indiana, both beaten have little at issue in the game at Evanston Saturday. In addition the Purple is crippled as a result of its victory over the Michigan Aggies. Indiana, after a vacation last week, is resuming strenuous scrimmages with Lorber and Marks outstanding as ground gainers.

Ohio State, with a slim fighting chance at the title, has its game next week with Indiana as a practical objective, this week's clash with Wooster being considered as an appetizer.

PRENTICE PUTS UP NEW TENNIS TROPHY

Donates Cup to Be Competed for by Oxford-Cambridge, Yale-Harvard Teams.

WILL PERPETUATE SERIES

Play for Cup Will Start Next Year and Is Expected to Promote International Sport.

A new trophy has been put up in tennis to take its place with the Davis and Wightman cups in international competition. Bernon S. Prentice, President of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club, has offered a cup, it was made known yesterday by the United States Lawn Tennis Association, to be played for between teams of undergraduates representing Harvard and Yale and Oxford and Cambridge. Mr. Prentice is Chairman of the International Intercollegiate Committee of the U. S. L. T. A., in addition to being a member of the Davis Cup and Selection Committees of the national organization, and has taken a keen interest in the promotion of the matches between the American and English universities.

The trophy, which will probably become known as the "Prentice Cup," is an unusually handsome one. It is of the urn design and is mounted on an ebony base. In some respects it resembles the Walker Cup, played for between the United States and English amateur golf teams.

Combined Oxford and Cambridge teams have been meeting joint teams from Harvard and Yale for the last four years and have come to look upon the series as a regular fixture. The International Intercollegiate Committee was formed during the last season with American and English divisions, to look after the playing of the matches and to see that the visiting players were efficiently looked after. Mr. Prentice's object in offering the cup is to perpetuate the competition and offer the same incentive for the teams to make the trip across the sea that is offered by the Davis and Wightman trophies.

This is the custom for the English to come to the United States one year and for Harvard and Yale to go abroad the following season. It is proposed under the new regulations that will govern the competition for the cup that the matches shall be played at least every three years and that they will be held alternately in the United States and England, as has been the custom, regardless of which team holds the trophy.

During the past summer the Harvard-Yale team invaded England and preliminary to the meeting with the English collegians played a number of matches with the leading clubs of England. The meeting between Oxford and Cambridge took place at Eastbourne and that of the Irish won. This was the first time that the American collegians came out on the short end in the competition and indicated the ability of the English team that is being developed at Oxford and Cambridge.

The Oxford-Cambridge team is expected to come to the United States for the fifth series next Summer, starting the first part of the tour. Further matches is planned by the International Intercollegiate Committee in the event of the English coming over to arrange a series of team matches between them and the Princeton and Columbia undergraduate teams, the Rockaway Hunting Club, the Nassau Country Club, the New port Casino and the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club, in addition to the intercollegiate match with Harvard and Yale. The English players will also compete as individuals in the national intercollegiate championship and, if possible, in the more important invitation tournaments at Seabright, Southampton and Newport and in the national championship.

The Greatest Club Opportunity Ever Offered to New Yorkers

GOLF (18 Holes—Championship Length) TENNIS (15 Courts) SWIMMING (World's Largest Outdoor Pool—Indoor Pool Too) WINTER SPORTS (Skating—Skiing—Tobogganing—Snowshoeing)

THE BRIARCLIFF LODGE TENNIS AND SPORTS CLUB announces its new club plan for the twofold purpose of presenting simultaneously the details of the plan before a large group of desirable prospects for membership and, to make the statement that, in its belief, no other club in the United States offers at a similar cost to its members the advantages and sports facilities available to the members of this club.

In the heart of Westchester County, "The Country Club Eden," the Briarcliff Lodge Tennis and Sports Club is accessible to persons living anywhere in the Metropolitan district. It is directly adjacent to beautiful Briarcliff Lodge, and through arrangement with that hotel its members are entitled to the privileges of its beautiful buildings, surroundings and social activities. Although within an hour's ride by New York Central express trains to Scarborough or Ossining stations, the club is scenically thousands of miles from the metropolis. Care and worriment are foreign to its atmosphere, for nowhere are there more complete facilities for relaxation, rest and enjoyment of life. The club membership is but one year old, yet it has become one of the dominant clubs of the United States, holding membership in the United States Golf Association, The Metropolitan Golf Association, The United States Lawn Tennis Association and other Associations of various sports activities. Its achievement last January in holding an international ski-jumping event featuring the United States Olympic Ski-jumping team, importing snow from the Adirondacks, made history and was indicative of the spirit which animates the club membership. In its swimming pool, the largest in the world, the final tryouts for the women candidates to the United States Olympic swimming team were held. Many prominent foreign tennis players from England, France, Japan and other countries have appeared on our courts. Gene Sarazen, formerly National Open Golf champion and twice P. G. A. champion, is the Club's present professional. In every way the Club has endeavored to provide the best, and always with the desire to keep its membership lists available to young people. The Briarcliff Lodge Tennis and Sports Club in summer or winter, has a particular appeal through the completeness of its sports facilities and the reasonableness of its membership charges. Sportsmen and women will see in this club plan a sensible return to the basis where they may enjoy a distinctive club at a cost which will appeal to their business logic as an equitable one.

BOXING BOARD SETS DATE FOR TOURNEY

First Series of Bouts to Decide Featherweight Title to Be Held in Garden on Nov. 21.

SIX ARE INVITED TO BOX

Kaplan, Kramer, Paluso, Lombardo, Mike Dundee and Garcia Listed —Must Enter Friday.

The machinery of the State Athletic Commission to produce a qualified successor to the world's featherweight championship vacated by Johnny Dundee because of his inability to make the class weight was set in motion at yesterday's meeting of the boxing governing board when plans were adopted for the initial series of elimination matches, and six eligibles for the title were selected. In a conference with Matchmaker Frank Flournoy, representing Madison Square Garden, it was decided to hold the first series of elimnation bouts at the Garden on Nov. 21.

The six title contenders whose eligibility for the tournament was approved are Louis (Kid) Kaplan, Meriden, Conn.; Danny Kramer, Philadelphia; Lew Paluso, Salt Lake City; José Lombardo, Panama; Mike Dundee, Rock Island, Ill., and Bobby Garcia, Camp Holabird, Md. Chairman George E. Brower announced that the boxers, with their managers, will be assembled Friday at the request of the commission, when the boxers named will be asked to accept or reject the commission's invitation to compete. In the event that all six accept, it is planned to hold a drawing in the commission's offices Friday, when matches among the six will be determined.

It was pointed out by Chairman Brower that the participation of the boxers in the proposed tournament is entirely voluntary on the part of those selected. As yet the commission has received no official word from the six boxers as to whether they will enter the tournament. With regard to the announced intention of Max (Boo Boo) Hoff, manager of Kramer, to withdraw the Philadelphia southpaw from the tournament if the elimination series involved abrogation of a contract Hoff previously signed with the Garden management for a bout between Kramer and Kaplan, Chairman Brower said he had no comment to make on behalf of the commission beyond the announcement that those boxers who see fit to ignore the tournament because of objections they might entertain toward its provisions will simply be eliminated from the commission's consideration as championship contencers.

Board May Use Power.

From a source close to the commission, however, it was learned that the board can, if it so desires, introduce drastic measures in dealing with recalcitrant eligibles, under powers conferred upon the board in a clause contained in every contract issued for bouts in this State. This clause, the closing paragraph on all contract forms, provides that:

"This contract must be executed in triplicate, one copy to be filed with the New York State Athletic Commission, and all conditions herein mentioned are subject to the law and rules of said commission."

An interpretation of this clause, made yesterday by one close to the situation, makes all contracts subject to the approval of the commission. Using the signing of Kramer and Kaplan for purposes of illustration, it was pointed out that in view of the fact that the contracts for this bout have not yet been submitted to the commission, it is altogether within the jurisdiction of the board to refuse its approval of the documents.

Such action, it was said, would mean that the commission would not recognize the existence of contracts for a bout between Kramer and Kaplan and would obviate the probability of the Garden management or Kaplan being held responsible for violation of a contract in the event that Kaplan entered the tournament and Kramer, refusing to enter, sought to hold the Garden to the contract.

The same conditions exist with respect to Sid Terris, east side boxer, whose manager, Dan Kaplan, has announced his intention of refusing to enter Terris in the proposed lightweight championship contender elimination tournament, it was pointed out.

Lightweight Plans Held Up.

Chairman Brower announced that plans for the proposed lightweight tournament have been temporarily halted because of the absence of a promoter to hold the bouts. Conflicts because of previous contracts signed and the lack of suitable dates for the tournament makes the Garden unavailable for the bouts, Matchmaker Flournoy notified the commission. It was decided that until a promoter applies for this tournament plans for the eliminations will be held in abeyance. The names of the six boxers selected to compete in the tournament, likewise, will be withheld by the commission until more definite plans for the series are adopted.

Paddy Mullins, manager of Tommy O'Brien, Milwaukee lightweight, visited the board for the purpose of issuing a challenge on behalf of O'Brien to Benny Leonard, the inactive lightweight champion. The commission, however, refused to accept Mullins's challenge. During his visit Mullins, who also is listed as manager of Mike McTigue, world's light-heavyweight champion, informed the commission that he had no personal knowledge of McTigue's contemplated civil suit against the board.

Mullins added that he would recommend to McTigue, upon the champion's return here from Providence, that he abandon whatever plans he has of instituting suit against the commission. The commission had no comment to make on McTigue's reported plans for a suit beyond the announcement that no member of the board had received any official notification of the contemplated court action.

WALKER IN RING TONIGHT.

Will Meet Malone in Twelve-Round Bout in Newark Armory.

One of the most interesting bouts of the indoor boxing season is expected tonight at the 113th Infantry Regiment Armory, Newark, where Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, is scheduled to clash with Jack Malone, veteran middleweight of St. Paul, in a bout slated for twelve rounds under the auspices of the National Sportsmen's Club. The contest will have no title significance because of the fact that the boxers are not meeting at the welterweight class weight limit of 148 pounds. Despite this absence of title importance, however, the match has attracted unusual attention and is expected to be witnessed by a large crowd.

A ten-round semi-final bout will be between Harry Martone, rugged Jersey City welterweight, and Willie Harmon of the east side. In an eight-round contest Miguel Ferrara, and Gordon Munce, heavyweights, will be opponents. The opening bout of six rounds will be between Mickey Biss of Passaic and Sammy Wilson of Newark.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Oct. 28.—Willie Hoppe, world's balkline champion, defeated Gus Copulos of Detroit in their 200-point three-cushion match game at the Recreation Parlors here, 200 to 172, in 187 innings.

Hoppe lost the opening block yesterday, 50 to 45, and last night the score was 50 to 50.

Goldstein Will Defend Title Against Eddie Martin Dec. 12

Abe Goldstein, Harlem boxer who holds the world's bantamweight championship title, has signed articles to defend his honors against Eddie (Cannonball) Martin, aggressive Brooklyn bantamweight, in a bout at Madison Square Garden on the night of Dec. 12, it was learned yesterday. The match will be for fifteen rounds at the bantamweight class weight limit, 118 pounds. Martin is expected to sign a contract for the bout within a few days.

DILATION OF HEART ENDED BOXER'S LIFE

Acute Attack Caused Death of Thomas in Yonkers Ring, Autopsy Discloses.

Acute dilation of the heart was the cause of of the death of Ralph Thomas, Bronx middleweight, in the ring of the new State Armory, Yonkers, Monday night, it was announced yesterday following an autopsy performed at the order of Corner Edward Fitzgerald. Following the autopsy, Corner Fitzgerald announced that the technical charge of homicide on which Alberto Ycochea, South American boxer, who was Thomas's opponent, was held, would be dropped because he was convinced evidence was conclusive that death was due to natural causes.

Ycochea had been released in $1,000 bail supplied by Paddy Mullins, manager of boxers. Six others taken into custody as witnesses when Thomas was pronounced dead after collapsing in the Armory ring also were released. Dr. G. C. Enright of Yonkers, who examined Thomas before the boxer entered the ring, said the Bronx middleweight was in good condition. Thomas played football Sunday at New Rochelle, it was said, and had worked all day Monday at his trade of plumber. It was thought, under the circumstances, that the boxer was probably under too great a strain.

Thomas collapsed in the second round of the bout with Ycochea. The dead boxer's name was Ralph Thomaso, and he was 27 years old. His relatives live in Cleveland, from which city Thomas came several years ago.

HIRSCH DRAWS WITH DOYLE.

Boston Boxer Substitutes for Friedman at the Pioneer A. C.

A ten-round bout between Paul Doyle, east side welterweight, and Vic Hirsch of Boston, which featured the card last night at the Pioneer A. C., was declared a draw. Hirsch substituted for Sailor Friedman of Chicago, who was originally signed to box Doyle. It was an ordinary bout in which Doyle failed to show up to expectations. The east sider claimed after the match that he was handicapped by an injury to his right hand which he sustained in the fourth round. Doyle weighed 143¾ pounds and Hirsch 153.

In the ten-round semi-final bout Wilbur Cohen, Harlem negro flyweight, and Tommy Milton of the east side fought an interesting draw.

RUBIEN TO PROPOSE NEW TIMING SYSTEM

Will Recommend That A. A. U. Use 1-10-Second Watches Only in Races Up to 440 Yards.

WANTS POLE-VAULT CHANGE

Will Ask That a Uniform Take-Off Box Be Adopted—Rule on Close Finishes Advocated.

A change in the method of timing track events in Amateur Athletic Union competitions will be instituted in future athletic meets if a recommendation of Secretary Frederick W. Rubien is adopted at the union's national convention to be held at Atlantic City Nov. 16, 17 and 18. It became known yesterday that Rubien has prepared for consideration of the A. A. U. Legislation Committee a proposed amendment under which the time of one-tenth-second watches will be recognized in record performances only up to and including 440 yards. Sentiment in A. A. U. circles is said to favor the adoption of this amendment because of the desire of the athletic officials to eliminate inaccuracies in the timing of races under their jurisdiction.

The purpose of the recommendation is to provide conformity with the rules and regulations of the International Amateur Athletic Federation. A similar rule was adopted by the international body last Summer, following a long discussion in Paris. The method of timing races in excess of a quarter mile by one-fifth of a second watches was followed at the Paris meet.

At the discussion of the matter in the Paris Athletic Congress it was brought out by the French Federation that exhaustive tests of the one-tenth-second watches in the Government Observatory in Paris had disclosed the fact that the watches were accurate up to one mile, bue beyond that distance they were not to be relied upon.

Pole Vaulting Discussed.

Another recommendation to be submitted by Rubien will provide for the installation of standard take-off boxes of wood in all pole vault competitions under A. A. U. jurisdiction. This plan is advocated because it is calculated to eliminate complaint from competitors and disappointing performances attributable to a lack of uniformity in the competitive conditions for this event. It has been pointed out that in some districts pole vaulters are accustomed to competing under conditions which permit them to set their poles for the vault in a groove of about three inches, only to find when they compete away from their home districts that grooves of as much as one foot in depth have to be contended with.

Rubien's recommendation provides that a standard wooden box to be used as a take-off be installed at all vaulting pits, the take-off to measure 3 feet 4 inches in length and be two feet wide, tapering off to one foot in width at the stop board, where it shall be eight inches in depth.

A recommendation from the Southern Pacific A. A. U. advocates the adoption of squash tennis as a sport under A. A. U. jurisdiction, thereby increasing the number of sports governed by the union to eleven. In support of their recommendation the Pacific Coast officials point out that their association has as members several clubs where squash tennis is being popularized at present without any controlling influence from the A. A. U. or any other amateur body. The recommendation resulted in correspondence between the A. A. U. and the National Squash Tennis Association, which controls the sport in this section of the country.

It was revealed that the N. S. T. A. exercises jurisdiction over the sport for territory extending to Denver. Under the circumstances it is proposed to amend the A. A. U. recommendation to provide for cooperation between the two sports governing bodies in an effort to extend the jurisdiction of the N. S. T. A. to the Coast and thus make more representative the national title tournaments which the N. S. T. A. have been conducting annually for fifteen years.

Will Ask Hurdling Change.

The competitive rules for hurdle racing will be amended if a recommendation of the Metropolitan A. A. U. is adopted, to provide that in races up to and including seventy yards competitors will be disqualified if they knock down two hurdles. The present rule provides that competitors knocking down three hurdles are disqualified. Another recommendation submitted by the local body provides that in cases where judges of track events are unable to agree upon a winner the referee shall ascertain from the timers the athlete on whom they stopped their watches in determining the winner in close races. This system now is employed voluntarily, but the purpose of the proposed amendment is to make it a compulsory regulation.

Penalties for false starts in track events included in the pentathlon and decathlon tests are the subject of attention in another recommendation. This problem, it was explained, has stumped athletic officials repeatedly in the past. The natural impulse, it was pointed out, would be to penalize the athlete committing a false start in the manner ordinarily employed in the average track event, but there is nothing in the rules governing these all-around competitions to invest a clerk of the course or referee with this authority. At times, too, athletic officials have been puzzled as to whether three false starts disqualified a competitor from the particular event or from the remainder of the competition.

To provide some tangible rule on which athletic officials may act in the future, it is recommended that the A. A. U. adopt the following rule in use abroad:

"For each false start after the third in the 200-meter dash the offender shall be penalized 20 meters. In the decathlon, for each false start after the third in the 100-meter and 400-meter flat and 110-meter hurdle race, the offender shall be penalized one-tenth of the distance."

OTHER BILLIARD RESULTS

Tadao Suganuma, Japanese 18.2 balkline player, and James Maturo divided the first two blocks of their 200-point match at three cushions at Julian's Fourteenth Street Academy yesterday. In the afternoon Maturo was the winner at 50 to 44 in ninety-one innings. His high run was 8, while Suganuma's was 4. In the evening Suganuma ran 56 caroms while Maturo was getting 48, in ninety-eight innings, making the score 100 to 98 in Suganuma's favor. Suganuma made a run of 5 in the evening game, while Maturo's was 4. The last two blocks will be played this afternoon and evening.

Herbert Hammer of Sheepshead Bay, playing 18.2 balkline, defeated Joseph Honsch, playing straight rail billiards, in the second book of their 600-point match at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Manhattan last night. The score was 200 to 109. Hammer started off by getting 97 caroms in six innings and went out in thirty-six innings. His high run was 36, while Honsch's was 25. Hammer now leads at 400 to 238. The final block will be played tonight.

Erich Hagenlacher, holder of the 18.2 balkline championship of Germany, made a run of 156 in defeating Charles Kortman at the Fourteenth Street Academy last night by the score of 200 to 15 in six innings. In the afternoon he won from Jack Savage at 200 to 30 in the same number of innings and made a high run of 58.

Tom Bresnan defeated William Adams by the score of 50 to 28 in forty innings in the Class A handicap three-cushion tournament at Doyle's Academy last night. Bresnan made a high run of 7 and other runs of 5 and 4. Adams's high run was 5. At the same academy William Downs won the first block of a 300-point snooker match with Courtney Wood, 100 to 64, in two frames. Downs made a high run of 21, while Wood's best run was 12.

Henry Walters defeated John Morton in the fourteenth game of the Brooklyn straight rail championship last night at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Brooklyn, 125 to 118. The game lasted sixty-one innings. Walters had a high run of 20, while Morton's was 14.

Edward Marshall defeated Henry Frantzen in the only game played in the Greater New York three-cushion championship at the Hoppe Academy last night by the score of 25 to 20 in forty-five innings. Marshall made a high run of 3.

G. Leonard was the winner over W. Nemes in the amateur three-cushion tournament at Julian's Fourteenth Street Academy last night. The score was 30 to 20. Leonard made a high run of 4.

Landis Sends Out $41,000 To the Robins and Pirates

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Baseball Commissioner Landis today sent out more than $41,000 in checks to the players of the clubs which finished in second and third places in the National League pennant race for 1924. The Brooklyn National League Club, which finished second, received $24,531.94, of which there were twenty-two full shares of $983.23 each. The Pittsburgh Pirates, dividing $16,544.62, had twenty-seven full shares of $569.81 each. The Secretary, bat boy, coaches and trainers were taken care of by each club.

CONCANNON BEATS ST. JEAN TWICE

Evens eries in National Pocket Billiard League—Runs 100 in 15 Innings.

Joseph Concannon, representing Brooklyn in the National Championship Pocket Billiard League, turned the tables on Andrew St. Jean of Minneapolis yesterday when he won the third and fourth games of their tournament series at the Recreation Academy in Brooklyn, evening the score between the two at 2-all. In the afternoon Concannon ran 100 balls in twenty-four innings while his opponent was getting 65. His high run was 23, while St. Jean got 28 balls on a single turn at the table.

In the evening Concannon played consistently fine billiards, making his 100 points in fifteen innings, during which time St. Jean got only 38. The Brooklyn player made a high run of 39 and another run of 25. St. Jean's high run was 28. In the afternoon game the Minneapolis player was in the lead until the tenth inning, when Concannon went ahead and stayed there for the rest of the match. While his best run was 23, it was his ability to score regularly on almost every turn at the table that brought him through by so comfortable a margin. St. Jean was unable to play the kind of billiards he had shown in winning the first two games by close margins.

In the evening game Concannon took the lead in the fourth inning. After that he was always out in front and there was little doubt as to the outcome of the game. St. Jean could not find himself and passed up several opportunities for good runs. The final two games of the series of six between the two men will be contested this afternoon and evening.

The papers will be filed in a Federal court here not later than Friday, Fallon said.

Mr. oJhnson said he had not even been invited by Commissioner Landis to attend the meetings to make preliminary arrangements for the series, and was not consulted in regard to the alleged attempt to bribe Player Sand.

Correct

THERE is a code of correctness in evening clothes which demands scrupulous allegiance on the part of the designer. JOHN T. D. TRIUMPHS IN RAINBOW STAKES

Beats Field of Seven Juveniles at Empire City—Sun Audience Takes Ramapo.

Is Set Back for Interference in Stretch—M. Fator, Marinelli Are Suspended.

John T. D., William Daniel's bay son of Assagai and Hussy, yesterday afternoon won his third victory in four starts since his appearance in the East after the campaign at Tijuana last Winter, when he captured the seventh running of the Rainbow Claiming Stakes at the Empire City course, beating seven other smart juveniles over the course of about six furlongs. Ridden by George Cooper and in well under 108 pounds, the colt ran the distance in 1:08 4-5. He was second choice in the wagering, closing at 7 to 2. The victory was worth $2,890 to the owner of the winner, which easily beat Edward Arlington's Barney Google for the money.

The Ramapo Handicap, at a mile and seventy yards, for three-year-olds and upward, was an easy victory for Lee Rosenberg's Sun Audience over the Swingalong Stable's Rival, the only other starter. Callahan brought the son of Sun Briar home six lengths to the good in 1:44 1-5 to earn $1,160 for his owner.

The second race resulted in the disqualification of P. J. Lavin's old Ballot gelding Valor, which finished second, for interference in the stretch drive. M. Fator and B. Marinelli were set down by Starter Mars Cassidy for the remainder of the meeting for disobedience at the post. Three favorites rewarded their followers.

Favorite Is Beaten.

F. E. Brown's War Cloud colt Watts, just acquired from the Rancocas Stable, was the warm favorite in the Rainbow Stakes and was backed to 6 to 5 at post time. There was a lot of wise money on John T. D., however, and the confidence was rewarded by a finely run race. The colt broke well and Cooper did not hurry with him, being content to lay behind the pace set by Barney Google. Cooper saved all possible ground by hugging the rail, came to the front when ready and won going away. Barney Google set a fast pace, weakening at the end. James Butler's Bright Steel came through on the inside and was up to take the place in the last jump by a head from Peter Paul. White Wash, the other Butler entry, was practically left at the start. The fractional times of the race were: 0:22 3-5; 0:46 4-5; 1:08 4-5.

The Ramapo Handicap was hardly a race. Nose Dive and Fraternity II. were scratched, leaving only the Swingalong Stable's Rival and Lee Rosenberg's Sun Audience to run—the mile and seventy yards. The latter took the lead at the paddock turn and held it to the end, to win with ease by six lengths. The winner, under 111 pounds, was in receipt of five pounds from Rival. Sun Audience, a three-year-old son of Sun Briar and Conference, was the 7-to-10 favorite, Rival being held at 11 to 5.

The Oakdale Purse, a gallop for a mile and seventy yards, for three-year-olds and upward, brought out only four in the parade, and the race was a duel all the way between the Swingalong Stable's three-year-old gelding Swingalong and H. M. Howard's five-year-old Nose Diva. The latter went into the lead around the paddock turn, Thomas holding the son of Whisk Broom II. and Balanoire II. off the pace. Thomas felt the leader out before reaching the far turn and Swingalong quickly took the older gelding's measure. He drew away into a four-length lead and finished three lengths in front, an easy winner. King O'Neill II. took third money. The winner was held at 8 to 5 at post time. Nose Dive being the 9-to-10 choice. The race was run in the fast time of 1:43 1-5.

Broomfield Takes Purse.

Twelve went to the post for the mile and a sixteenth of the Valhalla Purse, a claiming event, for three-year-olds and upward, in which S. Gooch's three-year-old colt Broomfield ran a slashing race to take the money. He had No. 3 post position, but Allen was forced to take him back on the paddock turn, and he was far back as they rounded into the backstretch. Around the second turn Broomfield gradually improved his position, coming around the leaders to take the lead at the top of the stretch. In the drive for home he drew away, to beat P. J. Lavin's Valor easily by four lengths. Mrs. W. M. Baird's Intrepid was third.

At the eighth pole Valor interfered with Intrepid and Invictus, both of which were knocked back and for this Valor was disqualified, moving Intrepid up to take second money, with Peter J. taking the short end. The winner was the 13-to-5 favorite. The race was run in 1:47 4-5.

The Rancocas Stable's gray colt Silver Fox, by Gray Fox-Mary Queen of Scots, graduated from the maiden class in the opening number, the Sumach Purse for two-year-olds, maidens and winners of one race. The colt had to run fast to beat Lee Rosenberg's Polly McWiggles by a head in 1:06, three-fifths of a second slower than the track record for the five and a half furlongs.

CLOVERDALE IS WON BY NEW HAMPSHIRE

TWO LONG SHOTS TRIUMPH

Wild Goose, at 75 to 2, and Rose Cloud, at 18 to 2, Victors—Malben Triple Winner.

Special to The New York Times.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 28.—Commander J. K. L. Ross's New Hampshire, four-year-old son of Granite and Annagh, this afternoon took the measure of A. C. Bostwick's speedy gelding Shuffle Along in the race for the Cloverdale Handicap, the featured number of the afternoon card at Laurel Park. The latter was the favorite, while the winner was second choice and paid $6.30 for a $2 ticket.

Shuffle Along was asked to take up 128 pounds and failed to give eleven pounds and a beating to New Hampshire, which broke fast and held on well to win by a head in a driving finish. Shuffle Along broke rather slowly and was outrun at first. He gained steadily in the stretch and was wearing the leader down at the end. Mrs. A. Swenke's Red Wingfield, last to get away in the field of six, saved ground on the turn for home and was up to take the short end of the purse. The six furlongs were run in 1:13 3-5 over a muddy track.

Two long shots came home in front during the afternoon. In the six-furlong dash for three-year-olds and upward, third on the card, S. Louis's three-year-old Ed Crump gelding Wild Goose beat nine others and paid $76.50 for a $2 ticket, $31.60 for the place and $10.60 to show. In the opening number P. B. Codd's filly Rose Cloud led thirteen other maidens of all ages over the six furlongs and paid her backers $18.20 for a $2 ticket.

Johnny Malben was in fine riding form, bringing in three winners in addition to Rose Cloud, he won with Primrose in the fourth and Triumph in the sixth.

SQUASH IN CLASS A WILL START TODAY

Six Teams to Begin Competition for Metropolitan Interclub Championship.

GOULD TO ENTER TOURNEY

Columbia Club Lead-Off Man Will Face Coward of Yale in Feature Opening Match.

Six teams begin competition today on the opening of play in the Metropolitan Class A interclub squash tennis championship in what promises to be one of the hardest fought struggles for the title in the history of the tournament. Practically all of the players who were in action last season are again available and in addition several stars who were almost entirely inactive last year will take their places in the line-ups of several clubs.

Most prominent among those who will return to activity this season are Jay Gould of the Columbia University Club, who, because of his inability to take the time from his business affairs, played only one match in squash tennis last season. Gould will be the lead-off man of the Blue and White, and in addition Frank Kidde and W. A. Kimbel also are returning to the Columbia lineup, along with P. M. Shields Jr. and R. V. Mahon. These, with R. B. Haines, W. Murray Lee, Kingsley Kunhardt and W. D. L. Starbuck, constitute a worthy array to represent the Blue and White, and it is practically assured that Columbia will make a considerably better showing than it did last year when it was represented mainly by substitutes from the team that won the Class B title for the club.

The Princeton Club will benefit by the return to play of Dr. Harold R. Mixsell. Dr. Mixsell took an active part in conducting and officiating in the various tournaments last year but did not play himself. He has been practicing daily at the Princeton Club. With Dr. Mixsell as lead-off man it is expected that the other members of the Orange and Black seven will be able to make a better showing at lower positions in the lineup. Armin W. Riley, John C. Neely, Gavin Brackenridge, Basil Harris, Jarvis Crowell and R. L. Farrelly, who is the national Class B champion; John Taylor and J. M. Denison will play again, while O. S. Greene and H. D. Harvey may be available later in the season.

Hyde to Lead Harvard.

The Harvard Club, which won the championship last season wit ha perfect record, will again be a strong contender for the title. F. Van S. Hyde, the national champion, will head the team. His exhibition against Thomas Coward of the Yale Club in the final of the national championship last year was one of the finest performances ever seen on a squash court in this city. Hewitt Morgan, who took his place last year with the leading players of the country, will probably be the No. 2 man on the Crimson team. F. S. Whitlock will captain the seven, while the other members will be William Lloyd Mitchell, J. M. Denison, John G. Neely, Gavin Brackenridge, R. L. Farrelly, Armin W. Riley, Basil Harris, John Taylor, O. S. Green and Jarvis Cromwell.

Crescent A. C.—R. Nari Fink, Charles M. Bull Jr., Donald Bellows, L. M. Banks, E. P. Cyplet, Norman F. Torrance, J. C. Tredwell, A. C. W. Fyfe and H. W. Danzler, Jr.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Fractional Recovery on Stock Exchange — Money Rates Firm, Sterling Holds.

Without any movement of significance in the markets, yesterday's news with a bearing on the situation provided an interesting instalment of that "record-breaking" which always impresses the financial mind. The "new high records," moreover, occurred in directions very vital to the question of trade revival. Loadings of freight on the country's railways, as reported for the third week of October, overtopped the hitherto unmatched achievement of the closing week in September, 1923, and it was much to the point that the movement into the first place on the record was not primarily a result of the large grain shipments, but of a loading of merchandise and miscellaneous freight whose total volume, 674,040 cars, not only surpassed all weekly figures, but engaged 26,451 more cars than the largest weekly loadings of such freight last Autumn, which at that time held the record.

Along with this striking testimony to the magnitude of actual trade in motion came the Commerce Department's report on last week's huge grain exports. It showed the shipment of wheat to have apparently gone beyond any previous weekly figure, and brought the total in the four weeks of October to 39,407,000 bushels, whereas the largest wheat export of any full month in the grain trade's previous history was the 35,802,977 bushels sent out in October, 1920. No combined external and internal trade movement of such proportions as this indicates has been witnessed since the early war years. For a time of peace, it brings up natural reminiscence of such periods as 1897, when another grain season of American abundance and foreign shortage was marked by precisely similar phenomena. Exactly what relation these present-day trade achievements bear to the weekly reports of cautious merchants and hand-to-mouth buying, possibly nobody but the interior merchants themselves can explain.

The stock market ended as a rule slightly higher, but only after a day of purposeless movements which gave alternately the appearance of weakness and strength. Even the final net changes were more or less conflicting, and no positive direction seemed to be taken. Monday's firmness in money rates was repeated and slightly emphasized, as was not unnatural on the near approach of the month-end settlements. Grain markets reflected nothing but readjustment of speculative accounts. The September railway statements continued to show rather remarkable increase in net earnings; in railway circles it was recognized as a possibility that, in this direction also, a new "monthly record" may be set when all the returns are in.

It is a familiar experience in Wall Street, when a business situation has changed decisively from depression to cheerfulness, for the market's reviving spirits to be dampened by quarterly statements, measuring in dollars and cents the scope of the bad times past. The American Woolen dividend performed that unpleasant duty for the textile trade last month; the Steel Corporation's quarterly earnings statement performed it for the steel trade yesterday. It showed net earnings for the September quarter $10,600,000 less than in the three preceding months and $19,300,000 below the March quarter's result.

The three months' earnings were the smallest since the December quarter of 1922, and August's results were the poorest of any month since February, 1923, before that year's steel trade recovery had begun. The full quarter's surplus fell slightly short of meeting dividends at the rate maintained since last Autumn. All this may or may not affect Wall Street's feelings; the statement was issued yesterday only after the close of business. It can hardly be classed as anything but past history, however. Wall Street knew, even in August, that the steel industry was working at barely 40 per cent. of capacity, the lowest in two years. It knows now that a 65 per cent. capacity is at work.

MONEY.

TUESDAY, OCT. 28, 1924.

Money was again a shade firmer, demand funds going to 3 per cent. at midday, after opening and renewing at 2½, with hardening in Federal Reserve checks to 2@2½. Money was plentiful at the maximum figure, those institutions with out-of-town connections being busy on the offered side. Short maturity accommodation jumped ¼, to 2¾, per cent. for sixty days, with three-four months at 3@3¼ per cent. There was little inquiry for the more distant periods, which were quoted at 3¼@3½ per cent. Call loans against acceptances also stiffened, rate moving ¼ to 2¼ per cent., but futures were unchanged.

SOUTH AFRICAN LOAN SOLD.

Entire Issue of £8,000,000 Taken in London.

The National City Company was informed by its London office yesterday that the £8,000,000 of 5 per cent. bonds of British South Africa offered on Monday in London had all been purchased. The bonds were priced at 99¼ to yield about 5.09 per cent. The London bankers reported that subscriptions were heavy, indicating that British investment capital, although called on to absorb some large pieces of financing this year, is still abundant.

Dispatches from Ottawa indicated that the Government, in refunding its $108,000,000 Victory loan maturing on Nov. 1 next, would provide for security conversions totaling $20,000,000, leaving a balance of $88,000,000 of the maturing bonds to be paid for in cash.

Financing to provide for this work was accomplished recently, the entire Nov. 1 program of Canada calling for a $90,000,000 short-term loan in the American market in addition to an issue of Government bonds placed in the home market.

DUTCH SEND 5,250,000 GOLD.

Shipment for Commercial Account the Largest in Weeks.

A consignment of 130 cases of gold, valued at $5,250,000, arrived in New York yesterday on the Holland-American liner Volendam. It was shipped by the Bank of Netherlands to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. It was the largest gold shipment here in recent weeks.

Previous shipments from the Bank of Netherlands contained many Austrian gold pieces. These, it was understood, were shipped out of Austria prior to the efforts more than a year ago to stabilize that country's industry. The current shipment, as in the two preceding shipments, was understood to be for commercial account entirely. The Bank of Netherlands is the issue bank of Holland.

Inland Steel Income $4,599,748.

Beginning March 22, 1923, the Stock Exchange officially quotes Liberty bonds in units and fractions, the fractions being 32ds of a unit, and the quotations after the decimal point representing one or more 32ds. In the above table, therefore, the figures of highest and lowest prices during 1924 and since date of issue are reduced to the form now used in the Stock Exchange quotations.

MAY ALTER LEASES TO VAN SWERINGENS

WOULD SATISFY MINORITIES

Otherwise Plan for Consolidation of Several Roads May Be Changed Radically.

Because it may result in drastic changes in the Van Sweringen leases or a complete revision of the proposed Nickel Plate consolidation plan, an informal meeting today of the counsel representing the various parties is considered by many in the financial district to be of vital importance.

Only those in close touch with the attempts of the Van Sweringen brothers of Cleveland to link the Nickel Plate, the Chesapeake & Ohio, the Hocking Valley, the Pere Marquette and the Erie into a single system knew yesterday of the impending meeting. According to reports in the financial district, the meeting will be attended by representatives of White & Case, who prepared the plan; W. A. Colston, counsel for the Nickel Plate system and the right-hand man of the Van Sweringens; Henry V. Poor, counsel for the Peré Marquette, and G. F. Brownell, Vice President and general counsel for the Erie Railroad Company.

With this array of legal talent the Van Sweringens, it is understood, will make an attempt to remove what is said to be the one obstacle to success—the lack of provision for the minority stockholders. Persons who have seen the original copies of the leases as submitted by the Van Sweringens said yesterday that they contained no provision for the minority stockholders. The Van Sweringen brothers evidently took it for granted that all of the stockholders would accept the plan. Directors of some of the railroads are not as ready to accept this conclusion and have asked for protection for the minority stockholders.

Various methods are said to be open to the Van Sweringens. For instance, they can make provisions for the minority stockholders by operating the properties as separate companies and paying dividends out of earnings. In this case the value of unification would be lost. Or they can agree to pay the minority stockholders a fixed rate of interest as a part of the lease. That would give the minority stockholders a guaranteed stock, which might be more attractive to some shareholders than the terms offered in the consolidation plan.

Should the counsel of the various interests fail to work out a plan today, or in the near future, the alternative of revising the whole plan is suggested. As such a step would cause tremendous delay, it would only be resorted to as the "last hope," it was pointed out. To do this the Cleveland interests would have to approach the whole proposition from a different angle—that of a merger rather than a series of leases. This would take much longer, but would be far more effective in the end, it was said.

As a further possibility, it was suggested that some of the railroads which object to the present form of the lease might be omitted from the consolidated system.

DOUBTS GERMAN BONDS.

Arthur Lewin Says Post-War Issues Promise Small Returns.

Arthur Lewin, 25 Broad Street, a dealer in foreign bonds, said yesterday that according to his information from Berlin holders of post-war German bonds, especially those put out subsequent to 1919, when the depreciation of the market had gone very far, will not have a very good chance of getting their claims for payment recognized and if they do only at a very small percentage based on the value of the marks at the time they were issued. He said that present prices of many of these post-war bonds are due to reckless speculation.

"What probably has been going on and still is going on," said Mr. Lewin, "is that the Government as well as cities are buying back their own pre-war obligations. They are in dire need of new capital and must therefore strengthen their financial position in order to get new credit."

ERIE PLACES STEEL ORDER.

The General American Tank Car Company reported that it had accepted orders from the Mobile & Ohio for 200 gondola cars and from the Hutchins Car Roofing Company for 900 tons of car ends. The Western Steel Car Company will repair 140 cars for the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, and the Great Northern has contracted for 500 stock car bodies to be delivered by the Selma-Siemba Company. The Northern Pacific is reported as being in the market for 800 gondolas.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Light Demand Accounts for Reaction After Firm Start—Canadian Dollar at Premium.

Trading in the European exchanges was a quiet and featureless affair yesterday. Rates started generally higher and maintained the improved levels for the better part of the first hour, but absence of the demand which was in evidence on Monday, coupled with an increase in offerings of export bills later, canceled all of the gain.

The advance in sterling carried it ¾ cent up, to $4.50¾, but selling of cotton and grain bills sent it back ¾ cent, with a subsequent rally to $4.50 at the close, which left it unchanged. French francs also reacted from their best price, yielding 1½ points, to 5.20¾ cents, but later came back to 5.21½ cents for a slight gain. The movement in the Continentals dovetailed with the leaders, and only unimportant fluctuations were noted at the finish.

The one interesting movement was that in Canadian exchange, which advanced to a premium of 1-32 of 1 per cent, with a corresponding discount on American dollars in Canada. Bankers attributed this to heavy purchases of Canadian grains to assist in our shipments abroad, together with the heavy demand for cash to cover purchases across the border.

BRAZIL CUTS LOAN BELOW 43 MILLIONS

GAINING DESPITE REVOLT

Bankers in England and America Have Closely Watched Conditions in South America.

Dillon, Read & Co. announced yesterday the receipt of $4,325,000 from the Brazilian Government, which is due as interest and sinking fund on the Brazilian Government's 8 per cent. and 7 per cent. bonds on Dec. 1. Under the loan contract the South American republic is required to provide these funds one month in advance of the interest payment date.

The bankers issued a loan of $50,000,000 to Brazil in 1921, proceeds of which were used in the acquisition of railroads, the initiation of a large irrigation project in the north of Brazil, and other general purposes. This loan requires a semi-annual deposit with the bankers of $1,715,300 for interest and $1,362,500 for sinking fund. In this way the loan has now been reduced to less than $43,000,000. In the same manner the $25,000,000 7 per cent. loan for the Central Railway of Brazil, issued in 1922, has been reduced by $1,659,000.

In view of the Sao Paulo revolt and other difficulties the progress of Brazil has been closely watched by New York and London bankers. With the current payments on her two New York loans of $75,000,000 now provided for, the Brazilian Government has in three years paid off in excess of $8,700,000, or more than 10 per cent. without recourse to additional foreign loans.

A large part of Brazil's coffee valorization loan, of which $7,000,000 was floated in London in 1922 by Rothschild, Baring & Schroeder and $2,000,000 was sold in New York by Dillon, Read & Co., has been retired. This loan was secured by the deposit of 4,350,000 bags of coffee, all of which it was announced yesterday have been sold at a profitable figure. The proceeds of the coffee in the form of cash and British Government securities are now held in London by the bankers' committee.

PENNSYLVANIA'S INCOME.

The report shows that the gross revenue was $56,664,502, or $5,952,988 less than the same month of last year. By saving $1,071,204 in maintenance of way, $3,052,440 in maintenance of equipment and $3,037,678 compared with September, 1923, the company was able to reduce its operating expenses by $7,215,[illegible] and make them $43,721,946 for the month.

During the first nine months of the year gross revenue was $480,644,250, or $66,408,875 less than a year ago. Expenses were $383,233,228, or $64,575,736 less than a year ago. Net operating income for the nine months was $30,121,-606, a decrease of $4,876,515 compared with the same period last year.

CAR LOADINGS SET A NEW HIGH RECORD

MISCELLANEOUS IN LEAD

Live Stock Also Shows Large Gains, Along With Grain and Merchandise—A Decrease in Coal.

Railroads of the United States set a new high record for all time in the number of cars loaded, with a total of 1,102,336 for the week ended Oct. 18. This record exceeds by 4,843 cars the previous high record of 1,097,493 cars in the last week of September, 1923, and is 13,878 cars more than the previous high record for 1924.

On Oct. 16, the railroads handled a total of 1,030,221 loaded and empty freight cars, the greatest number for any day on record. The figures also show that the car loadings in the third week of October were running 29,241 cars ahead of the record-breaking record of the third week of October in 1923.

The loadings of miscellaneous freight were the greatest for any week in the history of the railroads. Live stock showed a decided improvement from the previous week and with grain, merchandise and forest products showed an increase when compared with the same week of 1923. The loadings of coal, coke and ore were less than in the same week a year ago.

The new record for miscellaneous loadings was 412,394 cars; 18,017 more than the previous week; 26,737 more than the corresponding week in 1923, and 62,189 above the same week in 1922. Merchandise and less-than-carload lot freight amounted to 256,808 cars, 3,811 less than the previous week but 2,835 more than the same week of last year.

Live stock loadings with a total of 45,092 cars were the highest for any week this year. Compared with the corresponding week last year they represent an increase of 705 cars. In the Western district alone the loadings of this commodity totaled 33,701 cars, an increase of 1,654 cars, compared with the same week last year.

Grain and grain products accounted for 69,998 cars, the second largest loading on record, being exceeded only by the 71,124 cars loaded in the week of Oct. 4 this year. Compared with the same week in 1923 the loadings were 21,235 more than the same week of last year.

The total loadings of all commodities compare as follows:

Oct. 18	1,102,336	1,075,005	988,600	988,292
Oct. 11	1,088,462	1,085,688	989,427	910,529
Oct. 4	1,071,005	1,079,776	958,952	899,681
Sept. 27	1,097,447	1,097,493	978,791	901,978

All districts reported increases compared with the corresponding week last year except the Eastern, Allegheny and Northwestern. All except the Eastern district showed increases over the corresponding week in 1922.

ACCEPTANCE BILLS ACTIVE.

Federal Reserve Reports Increases for Marketing Season

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The Federal Reserve Board reported this afternoon that the acceptance market was characterized by the greatest activity for the year during the period between Sept. 11 and Oct. 15. Seasonal increases in the demand for funds to finance the marketing and exporting of agricultural commodities were evident, and the volume of new bills was larger than for any earlier month this year, exceeding the total for the same period in 1923.

"Fluctuations in money rates caused frequent changes in dealers' rates and the demand for bills was irregular," the Board reported.

"Cotton, grain, sugar, silks, hides, leather and provisions were the principal commodities against which bills were drawn, but acceptances against cotton and grain were in largest volume.

"Rates in the New York market at the close of the period were 2⅛ per cent. bid and 2 per cent. offered for 90-day bills, 2¼ per cent. bid and 2⅛ per cent. offered for 60-day bills, and 2⅜ per cent. bid and 2¼ per cent. offered for 90 and 120-day bills."

Edwin B. Appointment of the following new officers is announced by the Commonwealth Bank: Louis F. Bach, Chairman of the Executive Committee; Julius R. von Sternberg, George A. Arciero and Hugh F. Donnelly, Vice Presidents; Paul W. Hoenack, Assistant Cashier, and Peter T. Blank, George F. Keckeisen and Edwin B. Fraser, Assistant Vice Presidents, of which Bernhard Beinecke is Chairman, and Charles A. King President, showed in its statement, as of Oct. 1, deposits of $14,871,743.

This is equivalent, after preferred dividends, to $1.55 a share, par value $10, earned on the 5,456,000 shares of outstanding stock. This compares with a net income of $700,407 in the corresponding period of 1923.

The net income for the third quarter of this year, before Federal taxes, was $276,611, equal to 56 cents a share on the common stock, which compares with a net income of $302,836 in the same period of 1923.

NEW UTILITY HOLDING CO.

Standard Gas and Bylleshy & Co. Control the Corporation.

Announcement was made yesterday by H. M. Bylleshy & Co. of the formation of a new holding company, an engineering and management concern, for public utility companies and important dydroelectric power sites located so as to supply large interconnected power sources. The new organization will be known as the Standard Power and Light Corporation and will be controlled by the Standard Gas and Electric Company and H. M. Bylleshy & Co. The properties to be acquired are now under "immediate and favorable consideration," according to the Bylleshy Company, "but will be purchased only after exhaustive analytical surveys."

NEW FRENCH LOAN SOON.

Public Offering Here Expected a Few Days After Election.

Public offering of the new French loan in the American market is expected a few days after the national election next Tuesday.

J. P. Morgan & Co. have had nothing to say regarding negotiations for the French loan. Other banking houses which are expected to participate in the offering group have stressed their belief that such a loan, although larger than the recent issue of German bonds, could readily be disposed of if properly priced. This figure, it was indicated, would be in line with the present prices for outstanding French Government dollar bonds which are selling to yield around 7¼ per cent.

The offering would be divided into two sections, according to their opinion, the first to consist of $50,000,000 French Government thirty-year bonds, probably bearing a 7 per cent. interest coupon, which would be offered early in November, and the second to consist of $100,000,000 of bonds to be offered around the first of next year.

A nationwide syndicate of nearly the same size that handled the German issue will be established to sell the French bonds.

Changes in Ticker Abbreviations.

The New York Stock Exchange yesterday announced the changes of abbreviations on the ticker of several stocks, effective Oct. 31, carrying out the policy of shortening abbreviations to save time. Phillips Petroleum will be known on the tape as "P," instead of "PHM"; Pacific Mail, "PM"; New York Central, "CN" instead of "CEN"; Columbus and Ninth Avenue bonds, "CME" instead of "CM," and F. W. Woolworth & Co., "Z" instead of "WW."

INTERBOROUGH LOWERS SEPTEMBER DEFICIT

Improvement of $318,557 Over Same Month Last Year—Receipts Increase.

The Interborough Rapid Transit Company yesterday reported a September deficit, after all charges and maintenance, of $87,177, an improvement of $318,557 as compared with the same month last year. Total revenue was $4,619,683, a gain of $204,142 over September, 1923.

For the three months ended Sept. 30 there was a deficit of $923,184, an improvement for this period of $936,854 as compared with the same quarter of 1923. Total revenue was $13,279,986, a gain of $445,806, compared with the same quarter last year.

The report of the Third Avenue Railway System for the year ended June 30 shows net income after charges, taxes, interest, &c., of $75,261, compared with $391,275 in the preceding year. Total operating revenue was $14,049,983, against $14,406,784. Operating expenses increased $448,495, to $11,178,470, this increase being larger than the increase in receipts.

A slowing up of service, due to increasing traffic congestion on the streets, was the reason assigned by the company for the smallness of the increase in receipts.

Another Deficit by Coal Concern.

The Pennsylvania Coal and Coke Company reports a deficit of $147,544 for the third quarter, after depreciation and depletion, but before Federal taxes, against a surplus of $150,947 a year ago. The deficit for nine months was $238,455, after charges, but before Federal taxes, against a surplus of $741,903 in 1923.

NEW RADIO STOCKS BOUGHT UP QUICKLY

Last Three Offerings Were Oversubscribed From Two to Seventy Times.

TRADING ON CURB ACTIVE

Bankers and Brokers Careful to Explain Issues Are in the Speculative Class.

One of the interesting developments in the financial district of recent weeks is the eagerness with which speculators and investors have taken new radio issues which have been offered by bankers and brokerage houses in the financial district. Of the last three offerings, each one has been oversubscribed from 2 to 70 times, and in practically every case it has become necessary to cut down the allotments to a very small amount. The course of these stocks follows a general routine.

Most of them are underwritten by banking or brokerage houses, then go on the New York Curb Market for trading, with the hope that they will receive sufficient prominence to become listed later on the New York Stock Exchange. At the present time there is but one radio stock on the Stock Exchange. In a large majority of offerings which have been made, it is carefully explained by the bankers and brokers that the stocks are speculative and not yet entitled to an investment rating. Nevertheless, these issues which have been made and those "new on the fire" appear to have caught the speculative eye of a large number of people and trading in them on the New York Curb Market is in tremendous volume.

Trading started yesterday on the Curb in the shares of the Freed-Eisemann stock when issued. This was an offering of 75,000 shares at $30 a share by Pritchitt & Co. The first sale yesterday was 33¾, after which the stock declined to 32 and then advanced to 36¼ on a volume of 37,500 shares. H. D. Williams & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, who later in the week will offer for subscription 70,000 shares of Thermiodyne Radio Corporation stock at approximately $12 a share, have received preliminary subscriptions greatly in excess of the offering, and the problem of the firm now is to cut down these subscriptions to a reasonable amount.

It is expected that the De Forest Radio Corporation will make a new stock offering within the next few days.

FEW BETS PLACED ON NATIONAL RACE

Lengthening of Odds on Coolidge Brings Out Little Davis Money.

Betting activities have switched from the Presidential candidates to State of New York tickets, according to the reports yesterday of betting commissioners. Lengthening of odds on the chances of President Coolidge to succeed himself brought forth little Davis money and yesterday G. B. De Chadenedes & Co., 20 Broad Street, announced that it had $14,000 to bet against $2,000 on the Republican candidate, or 7 to 1, the highest odds yet reached. W. L. Darnell & Co. reported their odds on Coolidge at 6½ to 1.

De Chadenedes & Co. offered odds of 2 to 1 that Davis would receive more votes in Greater New York than La Follette, and announced that the firm had $10,000 to bet even that Coolidge would carry New York State by 650,000 votes.

Governor Alfred E. Smith was quoted an 8 to 5 favorite over Colonel Roosevelt for the Governorship. Darnell & Co. offered $16,000 against $10,000 on the Democratic candidate. De Chadenedes reported that it had been commissioned to bet $20,000 on Roosevelt's chances against $36,000 on Smith.

Darnell & Co. said that considerable money had been offered for wagering on the chances of New York candidates. The firm said it laid one wager of $4,500 against $1,000 that District Attorney McGeehan, Democrat of the Bronx, would be re-elected; $6,000 against $5,000 that Gustav Hartman, Republican, running for Justice of the Supreme Court would win; $2,500 against $1,000 that Congressman Frank Oliver would be re-elected from the Twenty-third Congressional District and $6,000 against $5,000 that Sol Bloom, Democratic Congressional candidate in the Nineteenth District, would be elected.

WEEK'S GRAIN EXPORTS.

Show 1,943,000 Bushels Increase Over Previous Week.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Grain exports from the United States last week totalled 15,727,000, against 13,784,000 bushels for the previous week. Figures as compared with the previous week made public today by the Commerce Department, follow:

Barley, 2,306,000 bushels, against 1,843,000 bushels; corn, 147,000, against 111,000; oats, 626,000, against 625,000; rye, 1,400,000, against 3,073,000; wheat, 11,248,000, against 8,632,000.

United States and Canadian wheat flour in transit, 518,000 bushels, against 415,000 bushels.

The week's total grain exports are less than in the weeks ending Oct. 4 and Oct. 11, when the figures reached 16,025,000 and 16,637,000 bushels, respectively. Last week's 11,248,000 bushels of wheat exports, however, were the largest of the season; they compares with a weekly average of 5,387,000 bushels in the three preceding weeks.

PIERCE-ARROW CO. INCOME.

Net Income for September Quarter Is Placed at $137,281.

The report of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Company for the three months ended Sept. 30, shows a net income of $137,281 after interest, depreciation, &c., equivalent, after allowing for dividends on prior preference stock, to $1.05 a share earned on the $10,000,000 of 8 per cent. cumulative preferred stock. This compares with $138,144, or $1.06 a share on the preferred stock, after prior preference dividends, in the preceding quarter, and $41,178, or 9 cents on the preferred in the third quarter of 1923.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1924, the net income totaled $354,154, equivalent, after dividends on the prior preference stock, to $2.59 a share on the preferred, as compared with $300,089, or $2.14 a share in the first nine months of the previous year.

Coal Company Reports Deficit.

The Pennsylvania Coal and Coke Company reports a deficit of $147,547 for the third quarter, compared with a surplus of $139,957 in the same quarter of last year. The company deficit for the first nine months of this year was $368,655, compared with a surplus of $741,963 in the same period of 1923.

FEDERAL SUGAR OMITS DIVIDEND ON COMMON

Unsettled Trade Believed to Have Led to a Policy of Cash Conservation.

The Federal Sugar Refining Company yesterday omitted the quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent. on the common stock, but declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the preferred, payable Nov. 1 to stock of record Oct. 30. From June 15, 1917, to Nov. 1, 1922, quarterly dividends of 1¾ per cent. were paid on the common, but on Feb. 1, 1923, the payment on the common was reduced to 1¼ per cent.

The directors gave no explanation for their action, but unsettled conditions in the sugar trade are believed to have caused them to adopt a policy of cash conservation. The Federal has been the leader in making price cuts on sugar recently.

An extra dividend of 1½ per cent. on the common stock besides the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. on the same, and the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred, all payable Nov. 15 to stock of record Oct. 31 were declared yesterday by the Sherwin-Williams Company. In the second quarter an extra of 12½ cents was paid on the common.

The Brooklyn Edison Company yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend of $2, payable Dec. 1 to stock of record Nov. 14.

TO DISTRIBUTE ASSETS.

Midland Securities Company Will Reduce Capital Stock.

Assets of the Midland Securities Company, organized in 1910 to pool the Texas natural gas investments of certain individuals, will be distributed to stockholders according to a plan announced yesterday. At the time of its inception the directors of the company were John W. Gates, John J. Mitchell, Alvin W. Krech, J. F. Harris, E. C. Lufkin, L. H. Lapham, J. J. Lapham, A. C. Miglietta, I. D. Fletcher, Arnold Schlacht, W. C. Hogg, H. B. Rice, R. A. Ferris, E. C. Tower and James Campbell. Today the board is made up of L. H. Lapham, Amos L. Beatty, James N. Hill, E. C. Lufkin, J. F. Harris and C. E. Herrman.

Stockholders of the Midland Securities Company have been notified that the company purposes to distribute its surplus assets, and reduce its capital stock from $5,000,000 to $300,000. To do so the par value of the stock will be decreased from $100 to $10 a share. The notice calls for a meeting of stockholders on Nov. 10 at Augusta, Me., to vote on the proposal.

RAILROAD LEASE FAILS.

Pennsylvania and the Norfolk & Western Unable to Agree on Terms.

Directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Norfolk & Western Railroad have failed to agree on terms under which the Pennsylvania could agree to lease the Norfolk & Western, according to a statement credited to President A. C. Needles of the Norfolk & Western, which was received in the financial district yesterday. According to this information the terms offered by the Pennsylvania were not such as would have satisfied the stockholders of the Norfolk & Western.

It was made clear that the conclusion of the negotiations would not in any way interfere with the friendly relation between the two companies. As of Dec. 31, 1922, the Pennsylvania reported that it owned $11,420,000 of the common and $43,414,000 of the preferred stock of the Norfolk & Western.

CRUDE OIL PRICE UP.

Advance in Cotton Valley Announced —Gasoline Cut on Coast.

The Standard Oil Company of Louisiana announced yesterday an advance of 15 cents a barrel in the price of Cotton Valley crude oil, bringing the price up to 95 cents. This price has been met by similar advances made by other pipeline companies, and is considered as an equalizing measure. The advance had been anticipated since the last general change in North Louisiana and South Arkansas crude oil prices.

At the same time the Standard Oil Company of California announced a reduction in the price of gasoline at refineries of 2 cents a gallon to 18 cents in San Francisco, and, due to a drop in water rates, made a further cut of a cent in Oregon and Washington.

HARDWARE TRADE BETTER.

Fall Business Reported Near the Level of Last Year.

The hardware business is improving, according to a review published today by The Hardware Age. The journal thus summarizes this industry, in part:

"Fall business appears to already have reached a point nearly equal to the volume recorded for the same time last year. Factory shipments are unusually prompt. Collections have improved materially in all sections, and there appears to be a minimum of bad debts.

"There are very few failures reported, and a very small number of new stores being started. There is also very little evidence of shopping, with the result that prices generally are fairly firm."

SEARS-ROEBUCK STOCK.

Company Will Retire All Its $8,000,000 Preferred.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. will retire all of its $8,000,000 outstanding 7 per cent. preferred stock on Nov. 15, according to announcement in Chicago yesterday following a meeting of the Board of Directors. The stock will be called at 125, and with the preferred stock retired the company will have outstanding only 1,000,000 shares of common.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. preferred became active on the New York Stock Exchange, where it is listed, following the announcement, which was received in New York yesterday during trading on the Exchange. It ran up about 4 points to around the 125 level.

STIR IN WALL ST. OVER FIRE.

Small Blaze in Building Going Up for Bank of America.

The clanging of fire engines through the financial district caused considerable excitement at 11 A. M. yesterday. The fire, which was in the superstructure of the twenty-eight story building going up as an addition to the Bank of America, at Wall and William Streets, was quickly extinguished. The damage was nominal.

Allis-Chalmers Profits $824,561.

For the quarter ended Sept. 30, the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company, Inc., reports net profits of $824,561, after Federal taxes equivalent after preferred dividends to $2.07 a share earned on the $25,770,750 outstanding common stock. This compares with $756,423, or $1.61 a share, in the preceding quarter and $756,881, or $1.62 a share, in the third quarter of 1923. For the nine months ended Sept. 30 net profits totaled $2,412,146, or $5.99 a share earned on the common after allowing for preferred dividends. This compares with $1,654,085, or $3.53 a share, in the corresponding period of 1923.

VERY LARGE TRADE REPORTED IN WEST

Reserve Bank Tells of Record Volume in Some Producing Lines.

BANK DEPOSITS AT HIGHEST

Meat-Packing Industry More Active Than in Three Years—Retail Merchants Still Move Slowly.

The Kansas City Reserve Bank, reviewing in its end-of-October bulletin the physical volume of this Autumn's trade, states that reports from the district "tell of quickened activity in almost every line" and of "further improvement to conditions affecting industry, trade and banking." It states that complete figures now available for the volume of business in September not only show that it was the largest of any month this year, but that "in some lines it was the largest for two and three years, or for all time. Several new high records were established, as the summary of the month's activities discloses.

"Clearings of checks of banks through the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City and its branches at Omaha, Denver and Oklahoma City were 28.3 per cent. larger in amount during September than in the corresponding month of last year and the largest for a single month in more than two years. The increase in deposits in banks, which began in July with the inflow of new crop money, continued through September, and on Oct. 1 gross deposits reported by Member Banks were the largest of record.

"Commercial failures were fewer than in any previous month this year and the amount of liabilities was 37.4 per cent. less than the amount reported for the corresponding month in 1923.

"Output of flour from Southwestern mills was 22.6 per cent. greater than a year ago, and in fact was the largest month's output of these mills since August, 1921.

"September was the high record month of the year in receipts of cattle, calves and sheep and the low record month of the year in receipts of hogs. It was noted that 39.6 per cent. of the receipts of cattle and 48.7 per cent. of receipts of sheep were reshipped to the corn belt for fattening.

In the Cattle Trade.

"Meat packing operations, under enormous market supplies of livestock, were the heaviest for the slaughter of cattle and calves on record dating back to 1910. More sheep were killed and dressed by packers than in any previous month since August, 1921, but the September hog-killing record, because of decreased supplies, was the lowest since December, 1921.

"Increased activity in precious metal mining was reported with production of gold running considerably ahead and of silver slightly behind last year to this date.

"September was the greatest month of the current year in building, value of new construction exceeding that for each previous month since May, 1923. It was indicated by the reports that a greater amount of public improvement is being made during this Fall season than at any other time since the beginning of the World War.

Farmers Paying Debts, Not Buying Goods.

"Wholesale and retail trade improved perceptibly, but the improvement this season has been slow, due to the agricultural population restricting purchases to necessities and using the funds derived from the marketing of crops to discharge the more pressing obligations.

"The Government's reports show 1924 was one of the best years in farm crops, both in yields and prices. The October report shows increases over last year for the Tenth District of 71 per cent. in Winter wheat, 2.5 per cent. in Spring wheat and 96.6 per cent. in all wheat. Oats increased 9.8 per cent, cotton increased 89 per cent. and sugar beets increased 21.8 per cent. Decreases from last year's production were: In corn 5.15 per cent., in hay 8.3 per cent., in potatoes 9.2 per cent. and in tobacco 11.6 per cent."

TRADE CONDITIONS SHOW MARKED GAIN

Department Stores Report 12% Increase for September Over a Year Ago.

MAIL ORDER SALES HIGHER

Federal Reserve Statement Also Indicates Improvement in Wholesale Business.

Business in New York City and nearby territory has picked up considerably, according to the regular monthly survey of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Department stores, mail-order houses chain stores and wholesale trade all reported September business in excess of the same month last year.

In the monthly review of credit and business conditions, issued by the Federal Reserve Agent here, the following digests of trade conditions will be shown:

"September sales of sixty-three department stores in this district were 12 per cent. larger than a year ago, partly because of more selling days than in September, 1923, and partly because of an unusual number of special sales in the month. Average daily sales for the district were 4 per cent. larger than a year ago, and for Newark and New York City stores were 5 to 7 per cent. larger than in 1923. Stores in Buffalo, Syracuse and various other selected cities reported small increases in aggregate sales over last year, while stores in Bridgeport and Rochester reported decreases.

"All major departments of the stores showed substantial increases in business over last year, except silk goods, in which there was a decrease of about 11 per cent. The increases were particularly large in woolen goods, furniture and home furnishings. The average value of the individual sales transaction for the stores was $3.05, compared with $3 last year.

"Sales by leading mail order houses in the United States increased 44 per cent. over August to the largest total since April, and were 17 per cent. larger than in September, 1923. This bank's index of mail order sales, after allowance for seasonal variation and price changes, was 4 per cent. above the computed trend of past years.

"September sales of reporting chain stores were substantially larger than a year ago in the cases of dry goods, grocery, ten-cent and candy chain systems, but smaller than last year in the cases of tobacco, shoe and drug chains. In all lines, however, except ten-cent stores, the volume of sales per store was either unchanged or showed a decline.

"Wholesale trade in this district continued to increase in September, and sales of representative dealers were 4 per cent. larger than a year previous. The chief increases in sales over a year ago occurred in diamonds, wearing apparel and stationery, but sales of drugs and silk goods continued larger than last year, and those of groceries and shoes rose above 1923 for the first time since the early part of the year. Sales of hardware, jewelry and cotton goods, on the other hand, remained smaller than last year, while machine tool sales were at the lowest point in two years."

WHEAT DECLINES ABOUT TWO CENTS

CORN MARKET UNAFFECTED

Reports of Poor Husking Returns in the Main Belt Carry It 1⅛ Cents Higher.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—The wheat market continues to act contrary to the desire of the bulls, and with a light speculative trade prices react sharply as soon as buying ceases. The close today was about the bottom, with net losses of 1⅝@2 cents in the face of export sales estimated at 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 bushels. In the past ten business days, the seaboard has reported 15,000,000 to 17,000,000 bushels of wheat sold for export; yet, at the close tonight, December was 7¾ cents under the finish on Oct. 17.

Premiums on cash wheat were easier, with No. 1 Northern Duluth reported offered, c. i. f. Buffalo, at 1½ cents over December at the last, after selling at 2 cents over, early in the day.

Foreign news is attracting little attention now and the local market no longer reflects advances in Liverpool. Late cables told of frost Monday night in Argentina, which created a little uneasiness among local shorts after the close. A shortage in store room in many of the leading markets is a factor in shaping the trend in values. Winnipeg declined 1⅛@3¼ cents, October leading.

The bulk of the export business continues to be for deferred shipment. While the removal of hedges against the grain causes sharp upturns at times, there is not the broad speculative interest so necessary if bulges are to be maintained. To some extent this light trade is due to the approaching national election.

Estimates on the Argentine exportable surplus ranged today from 112,000,000 bushels to 144,000,000 bushels, the latter by Broomhall.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 3,649,000 bushels; week ago, 3,504,000; last year, 1,116,000. Shipments were 2,401,000 bushels; week ago, 3,846,000; last year, 494,000.

There was a larger commission house trade in corn, with more numerous buying orders, based on decidedly disappointing husking returns received from a wide area in the main belt. The market showed independent strength and closed ⅛@1¼ cents higher. Shorts covered freely on the way up.

Two cars of new corn were received here during the day. A care of No. 5 white, from Illinois, was applied on a contract for year shipment, while a car of sample grade white sold at 85 cents, having 24 per cent. moisture.

Oats closed ⅛@⅜ cent lower, while rye was off 1½@1¾ cents. Cash rye is selling at 3 cents under December on track, or better than a full carrying charge, while 5,000 bushels of October sold at 6 cents under December. Export demand was also low.

Primary arrivals of corn today were 709,000 bushels; week ago, 773,000; last year, 850,000, and shipments, 395,000 bushels; week ago, 779,000; last year, 262,000.

Another Sharp Advance in Cash Coffee—Dairy Products Higher —Other Staples Firm.

The advance in cash coffee was again a notable feature of the dealings in the wholesale markets yesterday. No. 7 Rio moving up ⅛ cent, to 22¼ cents. This is a new high price for several years, and compared with a week ago shows improvement of 1⅞ cents. Short crops and heavy demand for the staple are responsible for the strength. Dairy products were also higher, butter advancing ½ cent, to 39½ cents, and eggs, a fraction, to 44@50 cents a new high for the year. Wheat, oats and lard declined, but textiles and metals were uniformly steady.

EXPERTS DRAFT AGENDA FOR PARIS CONFERENCE

Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—The financial experts of the allied countries met today to draw up the agenda for a conference to partition the reparations payments and annuities of the Dawes plan.

The most important sitting of the conference cannot be held until Monday, Nov. 3, as the British, Belgian and Italian Governments are unable to spare their Finance Ministers from internal political problems until then. Both the British and Belgian Governments may pass out of existence this week, in which event new Finance Ministers will be appointed to supplant Philip Snowden and M. Theunts, who originally intended to sit in the conference.

Italy, Great Britain and France were represented by two experts at today's meeting and Japan, the United States and Belgium each by one. Fred Bate took Colonel Logan's place as official representative of the United States, as Colonel Logan is slightly ill. Mr. Mitani represented Japan, but Viscount Ishii will take his place when the Ministers arrive.

The meeting today was restricted to spade work. Mr. Bate asked that America's claims for the costs of the Rhine army of occupation be placed first on the agenda. This was granted, and Colonel Logan's demand for priority for America's occupational costs will be the first important debate in the conference when the Ministers arrive.

PALESTINE MANDATE BEFORE LEAGUE BOARD

Commissioner Says Troubles Are Due to Arabs' Efforts to Dominate the Territory.

GENEVA, Oct. 28 (Associated Press).—The Permanent Mandates Commission of the League of Nations reached today what is perhaps the most interesting problem of the fifth session, when it listened to an account of the Palestine Administration from Sir Herbert Samuel, the British High Commissioner.

After hearing Sir Herbert, the commission discussed such difficult points as a reconciliation of the Jewish and Arabian elements of the Palestine population and the development of self-governing institutions there.

Commissioner Samuel's report attributed the difficulties met with in Palestine to the insistence of the Arab organization on dominating the Administration of that territory. He said that the members of the organization were mostly young and that many had received a secondary education and all spoke Hebrew. The majority had taken up cultivation of land.

The High Commissioner described two attempts to obtain Arab collaboration in a consultative council, both of which failed, he said, as the Arabs refused to participate. A consultative council, therefore, composed of ten functionaries only, was created in December.

The British Government, Sir Herbert explained, did its utmost to limit Arab immigrants to the country's capacity for absorption. Consequently, having noted during the last year an increase in the number of unemployed, the immigration of laborers was stopped. Most of the immigrants, it was stated, came from Poland, Rumania and South Russia.

The Government had granted Palestine no subvention, Commissioner Samuel added, but the budget had always been balanced. The Jewish National Home, as provided by the mandate, was also discussed.

Before taking up Sir Herbert's report in detail, the commission expressed the desire to receive next year a special report on Transjordania, which is part of the British mandate, although having a special Administration.

YIELD IN COTTON HEARING.

Southern Exchange's Officers Testify—Court Orders Secrecy.

In the proceeding brought by Attorney General Sherman to question the officers of the Southern Cotton Exchange, dealer in odd lots at 90 Wall Street, the officers appeared yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Guy. Counsel for the Exchange contended that their testimony should not be made public until it is determined whether or not the Attorney General has ground for an action under the Martin law.

Justice Guy upheld this contention, and the officers then agreed to submit to examination by Deputy Attorney General Chambers.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—The general hog market was quoted 25@40 cents lower at the last, with some pigs off $1 from the best on Monday. There was another flood of pigs and underweights in the receipts of 34,000 and, at the last, 23,000 were estimated left over. The top price for the day was $10.20 and the average $8.95, a decline of 40 cents from Monday. Receipts of 15,000 sheep and lambs were the smallest in three months for a Tuesday and the let-up in the run caused a steady market. Top natives sold at $13.75. Many cattle were carried over unsold at the last, with a slow demand. The market was dull and easier, with receipts 14,000. The top on yearlings was $12.90, while handy weight steers brought up to $12.50 and top heavies $10.50.

Hears Ship Liquor Suit.

Argument was heard by Federal Judge Winslow yesterday in the action of the Neptune Association, which seeks to prove that the treaty with Great Britain permitting British ships to bring liquor to this port conflicts with the Constitution. The action is directed at the Cunard Steamship Company and the Attorney General. Decision was reserved.

DAWES OFFICIALS ASSUME CONTROL

Supersede Reparation Board as Complete Economic Evacuation of Ruhr Is Announced.

GILBERT SUCCEEDS YOUNG

French Premier Gives Dinner for New Agent General—Perkins Joins Reparation Commission.

PARIS, Oct. 28 (Associated Press)—Execution of all of the preliminaries of the Dawes plan was registered today in the presence of Seymour Parker Gilbert Jr., Agent-General for Reparation Payments, and Joseph Edmund Sterrett, American member of the Transfer Committee, who were formally presented to the commission by Owen D. Young, the retiring Agent-General.

The final act, which completed the steps necessary for the declaration of complete operativeness of the Dawes plan, was the official notification of the re-establishment of the economic unity of Germany by the withdrawal from the Ruhr of the allied economic machinery. This complete withdrawal of the allied Administration from the occupied region was made known to the commission by the Belgian and French Governments.

The Dawes organizations now supersede the Reparation Commission in direct control of reparations with the bulk of responsibility falling upon Mr. Gilbert as Agent-General and on the Transfer Committee.

Thomas Nelson Perkins, recently appointed a member of the Reparation Commission to arbitrate the Dawes plan disputes, and also as trustee of the German external loan, was introduced to the commission by President Barthou with a few words of warm welcome.

Premier Herriot this evening gave a dinner in honor of Mr. Gilbert. Among the guests were Sheldon Whitehouse, Counselor of the American Embassy; Etienne Clementel, French Minister of Finance; Louis Barthou, President of the Reparation Commission; Georges Robineau, Governor of the Bank of France; M. Jacobs, President of the Stock Brokers' Association, and many members of Parliament, especially those attached to the Finance and Budget Committees.

URGES EATING 'APPLE A DAY.'

Dr. Monaghan Says It Supplies Vitamins and Isn't Fattening.

Paraphrasing the old saw "An apple a day keeps the doctor away" to make it read "An apple a day keeps many an unfavorable condition at bay," Dr. Frank J. Monaghan, Commissioner of the Health Department, gave a hearty endorsement yesterday of National Apple Week, which is from Oct. 31 to Nov. 6.

While the object of apple week is directly commercial, the Commissioner said, it is indirectly of distinct hygienic benefit to humanity. "If we can influence people to eat more raw fruit," said Dr. Monaghan, "we shall accomplish an inestimable amount of good. It is desirable to eat an apple a day. Persons who do not care for raw apples should eat them cooked—baked or stewed. Apples supply vitamins. They do not increase weight. Eaten at night, they prevent decay of the teeth. Thus it is seen that an apple a day keeps many an unfavorable condition at bay."

Sherwin-Williams Profits Decline.

COTTON PRICES SAG AFTER EARLY GAINS

Reaction Toward Close Leaves Only Minor Net Changes for the Day.

FOREIGN BUYING STILL BIG

This Sends Liverpool Quotations Up and Arbitrage Dealings Develop.

Another sharp advance occurred in cotton yesterday, but the rise of a cent and three-quarters in two days proved too rapid to hold and final quotations were virtually unchanged on the day. For a time the buying movement proceeded aggressively, rushing prices up about half a cent until January sold at 24 cents and May at 24½ cents. This rise attracted realizing operations on contracts bought at lower levels and a material reduction in the short interest during the sharp advance left an easier market during the afternoon. The last hour brought a reaction of over $2 a bale, leaving final prices at a decline of 2 to an advance of 3 points.

That European cotton interests continue to buy on a liberal scale was again demonstrated yesterday when Liverpool quotations advanced nearly fifty English points. This represented a full response to the violent rise in American markets on Monday and brought arbitrage buying at the opening here. As was the case last year, foreign spinners have secured the largest percentage of the crop movement up to the end of October. After starting the day at a slight decline from previous closing, demand for contracts from various quarters ran prices up over $2 a bale before the market ran into a larger supply of cotton. Profit taking, as well as increased offerings from the South, furnished a more liberal quantity of contracts and a two-sided course of prices followed. Whereas Southern holders were less disposed to accept bids on a basis of 22¼ cents in New York, private advices reflected more inclination to market cotton on the rise around 24 cents. After touching 24 cents for the January position, the upward movement halted and the tone quieted down materially. Uncertainty over the outcome of British elections had an unsettling influence on afternoon trading and realizing developed a setback of nearly half a cent. January closed slightly above 23¾ cents.

Nearly 20 per cent. of the stations reporting to the Weather Bureau, heavy to killing frosts have occurred the past week. In many sections the plant is still growing and making cotton in parts of Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Tennessee. Reports indicate comparatively little top crop in Atlantic sections. Temperatures yesterday were higher with very little rainfall at any part of the belt.

Gray Goods Prices Steady.

Prices for gray goods in this market yesterday were steady to firmer. Trading did not run into any large volume, but more business was done than on the preceding day. For 38½-inch 64-60 printcloths buyers paid 9¾ cents, and they also paid 7¾ cents for 60-48s in that width. First hands would not trade in 39-inch 68-72s under 9¾ cents, but so far as known that price was not paid. Small business was done in 32-inch 80-squares at 12¾ cents. Sheetings sales included 40-inch 4.25s at 9¾ cents; 40-inch 3.75s at 10¾ cents and 40-inch 2.35s at 14 cents. Sales also were made of 36-inch 4.50-yard sheetings at 7¾ cents. The rest of the market produced little of interest.

Ostrich to Continue Strong.

The upward trend of prices at the opening of the quarterly auction of ostrich feathers in London on Monday gives rise to the belief in this market that not only will the popularity of this merchandise continue, but that there will be an active ostrich Spring season. Despite the size of the offering, the value of which reached £125,000, or about a third more than that of the feathers put up at the last previous auction, the sale opened with immediate buying of an encouraging nature. Among the cables received here regarding the results of the selling was one which read: "Good wings firm; under 90 shillings, 15 per cent.; shorts, 10 per cent., and boos, 15 per cent. dearer." Another said: "Good wings, no change; feathers, up to 50s, 20 per cent.; 50s to 70s, 15 per cent; 70s to 90s, 10 per cent.; best spadones and boos, 20 per cent. higher; others firm."

New Atomizers and Dolls.

A leading item on the list of one novelty house is a perfume atomizer, selling at $36 a dozen wholesale. It consists of a glass container about four inches long, in an enameled standard of Colonial design, in pastel colors. The use of perfume atomizers is rapidly increasing, it is said, in view of the expensive perfumes commonly used today, because of the economy effected in the use of the atomizers. The same house is having great success with domestic copies of the imported Gaby Dolls, at $5.50 a dozen. They are used as hair-pin holders, the pins being thrust in the thick wool wigs of the dolls.

Heavier Cloths Being Used.

With the advance of the Fall season, velvets and flannels have come into prominence in children's and girls' clothes. Velvet dresses are shown in black, brown and blue, the last-named in both sober and bright shades. Embroideries are used on the models, and sometimes combinations with crepe and taffeta are effected. Flannel dresses are so much in demand, according to a bulletin sent out by the United Infants', Children's and Junior Wear League of America, that manufacturers can hardly keep enough on hand. Both plain and plaid flannels are featured, and styles include the one-piece frock and combinations of overblouse and pleated skirt. Leather belts and collars and cuffs are frequently seen on school dresses.

***

More Call for Hair Nets.

One indication that the bobbed hair fashion may be on the wane is the great increase in the demand for hair nets, says a leading manufacturer of this article. One Southern department store has just placed an order for nets amounting to more than $500. A local store has in the past two weeks sold 100 gross, and throughout the country the demand has increased proportionately in the past few weeks.

***

Indications for Glove Sales.

Manufacturers of men's gloves report that the staple caps glove in the shades of tan is coming back strong. While the prevailing warm weather has had its effect on business generally, indications are said to point to a fairly good holiday business. In the more exclusive shops the demand for pigskin and Swiss deer is keeping up, while there is some indications that the washable chamois will have an increased popularity next Spring. At present there is no change in prices, although the rise in the cost of raw materials may denote an upward trend in the near future.

Tailored Overblouses Wanted.

Tailored overblouses of English broadcloth are now coming strong in the local ready-to-wear trade. They are shown in severely tailored styles with high collars for sports wear, and also with convertible collars and with pointed neckline and rolling collars. They are finished off with mannish-looking cuffs that fasten with links. White is the shade most in favor right now, although pale blue blouses of the type described are also selling well. Next to them in favor come the lighter shades of tan. The vogue for the two-piece suit and the prevailing styles in Fall sports garments are held responsible for the call for the tailored blouses.

Holiday Lines Are Attractive.

By no means the least attractive of the lingerie lines that are being offered to buyers here for the Christmas trade are those turned out by manufacturers of petticoats. One of the features of the better grades of these goods is the amount of trimming they show. Some silk models of crepe or radium are trimmed with embroideries from their scalloped edges to the knee lines. Evening slips made of silk with a metallic gleam are being offered again. In the cotton petticoat lines the principal call of the buyers is for slips made either of imported or domestic plain sateens with pleated flounces. All through the merchandise in question the high colors are selling freely. Those most sought include emerald green, rose, yellow and other bright shades.

Silk Exports From China.

A cable has been received from R. E. Butchanan, special representative of the Silk Association of America in China, giving the exports of raw silk from Shanghai for the month of September. A comparison with last year's figures for the same month shows increases of 61.8 and 11.6 per cent. in the exports to America and Europe, respectively. The total exports show an increase of 22.7 per cent. The figures for the 1924-25 season, however, which cover four months ended Sept. 30, show a decrease of 24 per cent. in the exports to America and an increase of 53 per cent. in the exports to Europe as compared with the same period last year. The total exports for the four months show an increase of 11.4 per cent.

Market for Worsted Yarns.

The worsted yarn market is growing stronger each week, says the market letter of Thomas H. Bail, despite the high prices spinners are forced to quote. To maintain present labor and overhead costs even without a reasonable profit, spinners must obtain the highest current quotations, and much higher prices are indicated as the season advances. The comparatively large business booked by spinners during July, August, September and October has provided many of them with business to carry for several months ahead. Large contracts for weaving yarns for men's and women's wear were placed last week. Outerwear knit yarns have shown improvement, with sizable contracts reported. A slight improvement is also reported in jersey cloth yarns. Hosiery and underwear yarns, however, show no appreciable increase. Wool spun yarns continue active for both men's and women's wear lines.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Meetings of buyers of men's and women's knitted underwear for Spring will be held today at the offices of the Dry Goods Union, 432 Fourth Avenue.

George W. Calhoun, credit manager for Bernhard, Ulmann & Co., Inc., is to be given a testimonial dinner by members of the Alphabet Association, Inc., a private organization of credit men in the women's wear market, at the Hotel Pennsylvania on Nov. 25. It will mark his rounding out ten years of continuous service in the interest of the association.

Louis Malina, who recently withdrew from the Malina-Grieman Company, has established a new firm that will do business at 6 West Eighteenth Street under the name of the Malina Company.

OBTAINS DAMAGES FOR STOLEN STYLES

Verdict of $17,500 Against Dress Contractor Said to Be First of Its Kind.

UNDERSOLD HIS CUSTOMER

Max Greenberg Charged With Using Exclusive Models Given to Him to Make Up.

A verdict, said to be the first in which a dress contractor is found to have damaged a customer by making copies of exclusive styles sent to be manufactured into dresses, was returned before Supreme Court Justice Mahoney yesterday in favor of Hugh A. Schroeder & Co. against Max Greenberg. The jury fixed the damages at $17,500.

The question came before the court in a suit of Greenberg against the Schroeder corporation for a balance of $4,500 for manufacturing dresses. The Schroeder Company, through its counsel, Mortimer Hays, of Hays, Podell & Shulman, counterclaimed for $100,000 damages on the ground that Greenberg agreed not to display to any competitors the exclusive styles submitted by the Schroeder Company. The counterclaim was based on allegations that Greenberg was a member of the two firms which made up the Schroeder models and sold them throughout the country at lower prices than the Schroeder company charged.

Buyers were called to testify that they quit buying models from Schroeder when they were found in the stock of the firm of which Greenberg was alleged to be a partner. A number of the dresses were offered in evidence.

SAYS DUMPING COST GREW UNDER HYLAN

Municipal Operation of Ashes Plant on Riker's Island Put at $435,000.

SAVING PROVED A MYTH

The Mayor's Policy and the Board of Estimate Criticized by Citizens Union.

Following Mayor Hylan's retort to the Citizens Union's criticism of the 1925 budget, the Citizens Union yesterday made public a more specific statement in regard to one of the aspects of the Hylan Administration's budget making. This latest chapter deals with the municipal operation of the ash dumps on Riker's Island, with its increased cost to the city for the coming year, which the Citizens Union declares will amount to about $435,000. The statement says in part:

"At a meeting of the Board of Estimate on June 27, 1924, it authorized the purchase for the Street Cleaning Department of the plant at Riker's Island, owned by a private corporation, for unloading deckscows containing ashes, street sweepings and rubbish collected in Manhattan and the Bronx. The purchase was authorized at a cost of $216,000.56 and was made, notwithstanding that under date of June 1, 1921, a special committee appointed by the Mayor, including the President of the Board of Aldermen, the then Street Cleaning Commissioner and the engineers of the Board of Estimate and of the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx, reported that 'Riker's Island can be used but a short time longer unless the present bounds are extended; otherwise it will be necessary to furnish a new place of disposal for the ashes from Manhattan.' The bounds were not extended and on April 7, 1922, the Board of Estimate formally determined not to spend any money on an unloading plant at Riker's Island. For some unaccountable reason, however, after a lapse of two years, the Hylan Board of Estimate changed this determination, and the purchase, as stated, was authorized in June, 1924, on the claim that municipal operation of the plant would save $110,000 annually.

"Now comes the proposed street cleaning budget for 1925 with its demonstration of the falsity of this claim and the folly of this purchase. Included in allowances to the Street Cleaning Department are the following:

Increase of force due to 140 men for the operation of the unloading plant at Riker's Island	$348,890
In addition to the present force, 24 additional men	58,625
Provision for the equipment of the unloading plant at Riker's Island	95,000
15,000 tons of coal for use at Riker's Island, say at $5 per ton	75,000
For construction of fire lines at Riker's Island	10,000
For materials at the new unloading plant	30,000
For repairs to new unloading plant	10,000
For repairs to scows and dumpers in connection with the Riker's Island plant	62,675
Telephone service for the plant	700
Total	$670,690

"As against this increased operating cost of $670,690, due to municipal operation of the Riker's Island plant, the only offset is a reduction of $236,000 in the lump appropriation for the disposal of garbage, ashes and rubbish. In other words, this bit of municipal operation under Hylan, instead of resulting in the promised saving of $110,000 a year, will cost the city an increased sum of $434,690 for next year. Obviously, somebody succeeded in 'unloading' a 'plant' on the Hylan Administration.

"Such incompetence is not surprising in view of Mayor Hylan's excuse for maintaining 200 policemen who do no police work, but who spend their time performing in the Police Band and the Police Glee Club.

"Apparently the Mayor believes that music catches criminals or prevents crimes. It is doubtless on the same theory that the Mayor justifies the payment of $4,300 per annum to the General Inspector of the Board of Purchase, who, instead of inspecting purchases made by the city departments, spends his time as the Mayor's personal squire, when he is not conducting the band of the Street Cleaning Department. Only yesterday (Tuesday) this individual appeared in his usual rôle of stage manager of one of the daily performances at the City Hall."

TWO HIGH-GRADE SALESMEN.

We have openings for two very unusual high-grade salesmen to complete our sales force of forty men in the East. Two years ago we began to develop a sales force in the East and today we employ some of the most successful salesmen this country has ever produced, doing a million-dollar business this year.

We will consider only applications from salesmen who have sold successfully for three or four years or more, men who are in the habit of earning over $8,000 per year in commissions, and who will not become top-heavy if they earn twice that amount.

The man we desire must possess real specialty sales experience and must exceptionally high standards. He must be able to present our product to chief executives of all lines of industry and general business houses.

We sell an improved industrial service practically without competition. Our service is in use and highly endorsed by thousands of leading executives in the United States. Every concern employing ten or more people is a prospect. There are no dull periods. September beat all records and October at this moment is ahead of September.

Many of the salesmen we have accepted have produced business their first day, earned over their quota their first week, are still with the organization and showing steady increase.

Once you become associated with us nothing can stop your earning big money if you follow our tried-and-proven sales methods and will WORK. We give a very thorough and concentrated training, preparing you to make big money right from the start.

Several of our best producers have been with us one to two years and are happy, prosperous and contented. If you possess the necessary qualifications and are prepared to WORK, we outline our entire experience in your first letter, giving address and telephone number, we will make an appointment with you and prove absolutely that we have the greatest opportunity in America for the man who measures up to our standards. CITY MUST PAY BILL OF HYLAN'S NURSE

INVESTIGATED HOSPITALS

She Was Appointed to a Municipal Job After Her Attendance on the Mayor.

Miss Edna S. Steiger, who nursed Mayor Hylan last Summer and later was appointed a hospital investigator by Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield, won yesterday her demand for the payment of a bill of $590 for services, when Supreme Court Justice Levy granted to her a writ of mandamus against Controller Craig. The Controller's refusal to pay the bill has been the subject of communications from the Mayor and Commissioner Hirshfield, and of heated discussion in Board of Estimate meetings.

In his opinion Justice Levy stated that the payment, based on a clause of the civil service rules providing for the employment of persons to render services of a "professional, scientific, technical or expert nature," was opposed by Controller Craig on the ground of testimony she gave in an examination conducted by Craig. She testified that she had been engaged to visit the hospitals of the city and make a survey to determine whether the patients were cared for properly and whether the hospitals were overcrowded. After quoting testimony by Miss Steiger that she had never done such work before, for which reason the Controller asserted that she was not competent for the work, Justice Levy said:

"While it is true that these admissions on the part of the petitioner would seem to indicate that she had no experience in just this kind of work, the fact remains, nevertheless, as the testimony discloses, that she was a professionally trained nurse who had performed extensive services in orphanage and refugee work in Turkey, had acted for a considerable time for the Red Cross in several foreign countries, and also was in the service of the American army. It would appear, therefore, that the petitioner easily came within the purview of this rule and rendered service of a character contemplated by her retainer."

The Court pointed out that the Controller had no power to determine whether or not Miss Steiger was competent, and that he had paid to her vouchers approved by Commissioner Hirshfield for the period from Jan. 24 to March 16, but held up those for March 15 to June 5. The Court said:

"I am unable to reconcile this, and it strikes me that the preceding payments would seem to constitute a recognition on his part, passively in any event, of the validity of the petitioner's appointment and her qualifications."

Are You Afraid to be Examined?

MANY people say "I will never be examined. If there is anything wrong with me I don't want to know it."

That is strange and reckless reasoning. If any trouble exists it will probably yield to treatment. Almost certainly their lives and usefulness can be prolonged. If no trouble exists, they will feel far safer and happier to know this and will worry less over imaginary ills.

People need to be told that there are few chronic maladies—even those of a serious character which affect the heart, arteries and kidneys—which cannot be held in check. The discovery that you have such impairments does not by any means condemn you to an early death. Quite the contrary. Such knowledge gives you an opportunity of using preventive measures with a long and useful life as a reward.

Investigation has shown that large numbers of men and women refused by insurance companies because of just such impairments have lived far beyond the ordinary expectation of life. It was a knowledge of their condition and a careful adjustment of their living habits that allowed them to carry on, in average good health, for many years beyond their allotted time.

Get yourself examined at least once every year either by your family physician or through the Life Extension Institute and follow the counsel of science as to the correction of your defects and the better ordering of your life. Write to the Institute for information about its different health memberships and for free booklets on the prevention of disease and the prolongation of human life. Send in the free coupon below.

How To LIVE LONG

The Life Extension Institute was organized in 1913 by a large group of public-spirited professional and business men. The Institute's facilities are available to the public through annual memberships among which are Standard Health Memberships costing $20.00 and $25.00 a year and an Unlimited Examination Membership costing $100.00 a year. The Institute renders no treatment, performs no operations, but makes a scientific survey of your life and body and submits reports which, if some form of medical attention is needed, assist your physician in making the final diagnosis and applying the necessary treatment for the correction of your physical defects. The Institute's service also includes instructions in all phases of correct personal hygiene, monthly health journals, keep well leaflets and other valuable privileges. There are separate departments for women and children at the Home Office. The Institute has over 8,000 examining physicians listed throughout the United States and Canada. At the Home Office of the Institute there is a staff of about forty men and women examining physicians. If you are not upon the Institute's list, as a member or inquirer, send in the coupon below. Your inquiry involves no cost or obligation:
